A SAD TALE!

Or How They Socked it to Him.

"Man wants but little here below,
But wants that little long."
At least 'tis true, as all do know.
If the fit of his socks is wrong.
But of all the wrongs he has to bear
And with christian fortitude meet.
In magnitude none can compare
With that of sock discolored feet.
If at night he removes his socks
And finds his feet an inky hue,
His language strong, his good wife shocks
And turns the atmosphere to blue.
His one ambition all else mocks.
And this passion fairly thrills him.
He thinks of him who sold the socks
And his own joy when he kills him.
This hitherto quite upright man.
—A creature now thirstinx for gore—
And all this trouble first began
By his mistake about a store,
For if he had but come to us
And bought the kind we always sell,
The wrecked life of this poor cuss
We would not now have had to tell.

The moral of this sad, sad tale
Is plainly seen by every eye—
When you buy socks, you should not fail
To see the mark—"Hermsdorf's Dye."

REIGN OF DEATH

Texas Swept by a Cyclone.

Nearly Two Hundred Lives Lost

And Double That Number Hurt.

Whole Towns and Villages Destroyed

And Entire Families Crushed in the Debris.

Gribble Springs, Justin and Keller Witness the Storm's Greatest Fury.

SHERMAN, Texas, May 16.—A most disastrous cyclone struck Sherman at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, wiping out the entire western end of the town. The loss of life is appalling.

By 6 o'clock last evening twelve bodies were lying cold in death in the county court house, and as many more are scattered about and across the desolated west end of the city.

The work of rescue and the search for the missing goes on. The business part of the town is deserted and the greatest excitement prevails. Every available wagon, buggy, and horse is in use by the searchers and workers of the field of death. As time grows, later reports of greater loss of life and prperty arrive. The Sherman court house is insufficient to hold the dead and wounded. The vacant Moore building is utilized, and eleven colored people, dead or dying, were placed there. Express drays, baggage wagons and all kinds of vehicles continue to come in with dead bodies. The storm struck Sherman without warning on the southwest corner of the city and cleared a path of 100 yards wide along the west end of town. Houses, trees, fences and everything went before the terrible force of the cyclone. The negro part of the town suffered the most severely. There are probably thirty negroes killed. Ten bodies have been picked up in Post Oak creek. The flood of rain which attended the storm was severe. The town is a mass of mud and floating debris, and there is much difficulty in finding the dead and injured.

The names of the dead so far as known at this hour are:

Mrs. Otto Baldinger and three children.

I. L. Burris, wife and two children.

John Aimes, wife and two children.

Rev. J. D. Shearer, Christian minister.

Mrs. L. M. Montgomery and two children.

William Hamilton.

Mrs. George Anderson and babe.

T. H. Perce, three daughters and one son.

T. W. Jenkins.

John Fields.

The colored people killed so far as identified are:

James Walker.

Nora Nicholson.

Two children.

Sloan Baldinger.

Kate King.

Eliza Cox and infant.

Mary Lake.

John Lake.

Letitia Lake.

Fatus Lake.

From the point where the cyclone seems to have first descended to where it suddenly arose from the ground just north of the city, it left terrific marks of its passage, not a house in its pathway escaping and not a tree or shrub is left standing or that is not twisted and torn out of shape. An iron bridge on Houston street is completely wrecked and blown away, notwithstanding its hundreds of thousands of pounds of steel and material. The number of persons wounded will reach not less than 100 and it will be several days before the exact number of fatalities can be given, as many persons, especially children, are missing, and many of the injured are in such critical shape that a score may die.

In a few minutes after the cyclone the police were appealed to for shelter for the dead and wounded and the ambulances and all kinds of conveyances were pressed into service. Physicians and druggists responded promptly to the call for succor. Hundreds of ladies responded to the call of humanity and with a score of physicians were soon at work. The cries of the injured were supplemented by the agonizing shrieks of those who, passing from corpse to corpse at last to find some loved one, perhaps a husband, or wife, or son, or daughter.

NEARLY TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

About three miles of wire belonging to the City Electric Light works, was torn down by the cyclone, and in consequence the city was in darkness all night. A great number of inquiries for lost persons are being made, over 100 having been received by the police thus far. Physicians from VanAlstyne, McKinley and Denison are here in numbers, also nurses from all of these cities.

Later reports show that Mrs. J. J. Johnson and child were killed four miles west of Howe, and twelve miles southwest of this city. Mrs. Samuel H. Hendricks, who lives near them, is fatally injured. The last reports indicate that a family by the name of Connor, consisting of an old lady, her son and daughter, are seriously injured. They cannot live.

Reports are coming in constantly that the direction of the main cyclone which passed through Sherman went between Denison and Pottsborough. The width or strength of the storm has not varied. It still maintains a breadth of about 150 or 200 yards through the entire country.

Between Sherman and the river no fatalities have been reported, although there are unconfirmed rumors of a number of houses being blown down.

The total number of injured will reach 150 and the total number of killed outright so far as word from Sherman and other points in the country, is about sixty, and it is estimated that at least that many more are missing and dead.

Conservative estimates place the total number of killed in Grayson county at between 120 and 150. The path of the storm, which passed west of town, passes through a section of country which has no telephone or telegraph connection with the city. All telephone communications west and northwest of the city is down.

A VILLAGE DEMOLISHED.

JUSTIN, Tex., May 16.—At this town, W. J. Evans was killed by the cyclone and seventeen wounded. The most severely injured are: Mr. Wilson, wife and children, Ed R. Reynolds. At Gribble Springs, north of here, three persons were killed and several more injured. The dead are: Mrs. Shannon and her small child; Mr. Hill, a young man. A baby, which was thought to have been killed by the storm, was found to have died just before and had been blown away. A Mr. Hurst and family are severely injured. It is expected that at least two of them will die. One child was found with a large wooden splinter stuck through its head, but was, when discovered, still living. Ed True, a farmer, northwest of here, had three ribs broken by being blown from a wagon. Gribble Springs is almost demolished, but few houses remaining standing.

STARTED NEAR DENTON.

DENTON, Texas, May 16.—The cyclone which cut out the heart of this county and Grayson county, just to the northeast, started within a mile of Justin, in this county. A terrific wind was experienced here. People were blown down, houses demolished and farm buildings completely removed. Reports from the country districts indicate some five people killed, most of whom were traders in Denton, but whose names cannot be ascertained at this time. The roads are impassable and the small streams of the county swollen beyond their banks. So far no one has been reported killed in this town, but the place is in darkness, half under water and searching parties are slow in reporting. Reports from Justin, Sherman and Gribble are to the effect that $500,000 worth of property has been destroyed in the two counties.

AT CARPENTER BLUFF.

DENNISON, Tex., May 16.—At Carpenter Bluff, seven miles east of here, the dwelling of John Devant was blown down and four persons, Devant and wife and Devant's hired hand, named Armour, and a little child received injuries from which they will die.

ONLY ONE HOUSE LEFT STANDING.

JUSTIN, Tex., May 16.—Keller, a small town to the north of Justin was almost entirely wrecked by the cyclone, and it is reported that only one house in the hamlet is now standing. All that section of the country immediately north was left in ruins by the storm. Further reports from Gribble Springs say that the injured in that place will number thirty.

FLOOD IN MISSOURI.

Willow Branch Becoms a Raging Torrent.

Houses Flooded and the Occupants Driven to the Uplands—Much Damage Done.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 16.—This place was visited this morning with an extremely heavy rain, swelling Willow Branch, which crosses Main street, to a width of 200 feet. Many business houses were flooded. Two hundred feet of the Pittsburg and Gulf railroad is washed out south of the depot. Many mines are flooded and will throw hundreds of men out of work for some time. A score of families were driven from their homes. The water on Main street arose to a height of six feet and stores were flooded so that the doors were burst open, while the foundations of three were undermined.

Barney Assies and Theresa Scherls, Adolph Schilling and Julia Wilson, Henry Hartman and Clara Trier, C. B. Claybaugh and May Boylard have been licensed to wed.

BANKER ARNOLD

Must Serve Out His Prison Sentence.

Governor Matthews Concludes That the Convict is Not Deserving of Clemency.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 16.—Governor Matthews decided today not to pardon Thompson Arnold, bookkeeper of the South Whitley bank, convicted of embezzlement. Judge Pennfield, of Auburn, who tried the case, refused to recommend a pardon and the governor became convinced that the depositors of the bank felt that Arnold should be punished. His mother learned of the governor's decision here this morning.

DEED OF A FIEND.

A Farmer and His Two Sons Slain.

Louis Billua, a Forbidden Lover of the Dead Man's Daughter, Commits the Crime.

FREMONT, Ohio, May 16.—A terrible tragedy last night, one mile east of the village of Lindsey, and about eight miles from this city, took place, in which one man was killed outright and two sons are in such a condition that death may result at any moment. The deed was committed about midnight and evidently was well planned. At that hour of the night the family of Jacob Hess were aroused by an explosion, which shattered their home, but no one was injured. Mr. Hess and his two sons immediately prepared to leave the house and ascertain the cause, and they had hardly stepped out when the old gentleman was shot dead. Another shot and one of the sons fell pierced in the breast with a quantity of buckshot; again a shot, and the other son received a shot. The fiend then escaped and thus far has not been captured.

Suspicion points strongly to the deed having been committed by a young farmer named Louis Billua, who has been desperately in love with the daughter of Mr. Hess, but his suit has been strenously opposed by the father and also the brothers. Lately he has been prohibited from making calls and this so enraged him that he has been nearly wild. People who know the young man think he has brooded over the love affair so much that he has become insane. The sheriff and a posse started at once to capture the man, but so far have not been able to locate him.

ONE BOY DEAD.

A report has since been received which says one of the sons has died and that the other will probably recover.

A DEADLOCK.

The Conference Takes Six Ballots to No Avail.

Ex-Governor McKinley Receives an Ovation at the Hands of the Delegates.

CLEVELAND, O., May 16.—When the M. E. general conference was called to order this morning the third ballot for bishop was announced amid intense excitement. Like its predecessors, it was not decisive, 340 were necessary to choice, and McCabe, who lead, got 252 votes. A fourth and fifth ballot then followed, and both failed to elect. While the fifth ballot was being counted, routine work was taken up. The proceedings were soon interrupted by great applause near the door and a short man was seen ascending the stage. As he turned to the audience it was seen the man was Major William McKinley and the applause was deafening. Bishop Boice presented him and the air was white with handkerchiefs. Three times the applause died away and three times it was renewed. It was the greatest ovation of the conference.

The regular recess was made fifteen minutes instead of ten, and nearly every delegate in the house took advantage of the opportunity to greet Governor McKinley.

After the recess the chair announced the next ballot. It resulted in no choice, but revealed some remarkable surprises. The vote on the six leading candidates was as follows: H. A. Butts, 266; Earl Cranston, 245; C. C. McCabe, 236; J. W. Hamilton, 137; J. E. W. Bowen, 75; T. B. Neely, 21.

The conference next decided to take up the memorial service. Bishop Joyce called Bishop Foster to the chair to preside over the memorial services. This act of courtesy was greeted with great applause. The remainder of the session was occupied by the reading of memorials. A memorial on Henry J. Liebhardt was read by A. J. Nash, another on Rev. R. F. Crary, editor of the California Christian Advocate, by John Coyle, and the third on Sanford Hunt by E. S. Eaton. Upon the conclusion of these services the conference adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

LOWERED THE RECORD.

Roma Dow and Bert Parker the Champions.

Pushed a Tandem Two Miles in Four Minutes and Eleven and Three-fifth Seconds.

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 16.—The world's tandem unpaced record for two miles has been broken at the Garden City cycler's track by Roma Dow, of San Jose, and Bert Parker, of Michigan. The time, 4:11 3 5, was remarkable in view of the fact that the first mile was made against a strong head wind in 2:02 2 5, the second mile being made in 2.09 1 5. The world's record was 4:19. The record was made under L. A. W. sanction and will stand as the official record for the distance.

REMOVE THE BAN.

The A. P. A. Not Opposed to McKinley.

The Advisory Board Recommend That He be Put On a Level With Other Candidates.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Today's session of the American Protective association's supreme council was the most interesting of the convention, because the action of the executive committee of the advisory board in blacklisting Mr. McKinley as a presidential candidate was to be reviewed. The report of the advisory board upon the action of its committee was made to the council late in the session. It was technically an endorsement of the executive committee. It asserted, in substance, that the executive committee was warranted, in view of the evidence presented to it, in placing a ban upon Mr. McKinley. But in addition it states that a further examination of the testimony by the full board has convinced the members that the witnesses were unreliable and that their statements were incorrect. Therefore, the board concludes, Mr. McKinley should be placed upon the same footing, so far as members of the A. P. A. are concerned, with the other candidates for presidential nominations and should not be discriminated against. Appended to the report was a statement in writing by Delegate Huddleson, of California, who asserts that a committee, of which he was chairman, interviewed Mr. McKinley at his home in Canton, Ohio, on the 14th instant, and that the interview was satisfactory. The other members of the committee are stated to have been Delegate Van Fossen, of Washington, and C. E Zent, state chairman of Kentucky.

NINETEEN YEARS.

Henry Bolln Receives a Severe Sentence.

Robbed the City of Omaha of $211,000 and Will Go to Penitentiary in Atonement.

OMAHA, Neb., May 16.—Henry Bolln, ex-city treasurer of Omaha, was today sentenced by Judge Baker, of the criminal court, to a term of nineteen years at hard labor in the state penitentiary and in addition to pay a fine of $211,000. Bolln was for nearly four years city treasurer. His speculation commenced a few months after his election. His shortage was discovered last July. He was convicted on his second trial last week, the jury having disagreed on the first trial. Bolln is fifty-five years of age and nineteen years practically amounts to a life sentence in his case.

INDIANA'S NEW COMMANDER.

H. M. Caylor, Who Was Chosen by His Comrades at South Bend.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., May 16.—The veterans of this city are much elated over the success of their candidate for the office of commander of the department of the Indiana Grand Army. H. M. Caylor, who was elected yesterday at South Bend, is a citizen of Noblesville, with an excellent record in war and peace.

Mr. Caylor, who is now 54 years old, went into the federal army when a young man as a member of D company, Seventy-fifth Indiana volunteer infantry. He served the remaining three years of the war following his enlistment. After the war closed he began life in a humble way as a cooper.

He afterward came to this city and engaged in mercantile pursuits. All of his ventures have proved successful. He amassed a comfortable competency and is rated at about $60,000. He has erected a number of the best buildings here, some for his own purposes and some as a contractor.

NEGRO FIGHT.

Two Colored Men Have Their Throats Cut.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16.—At Arlington, Tenn, last night, during the progress of a festival at a negro Baptist church, a general row broke out. Ferrell Miller and Will Thompson had their throats cut, Sarah Jarrett was severely cut about the neck and arms, and a number of others seriously injured. All the parties are negroes.

The Spanish soldiers in Cuba are badly fed, and they have not been paid for months. They do not like it. The Cuban soldiers, on the contrary, are not fighting for pay. They fight for liberty and live off the country. In the districts where Gomez and Maceo are in command the rearing of cattle and live stock is fostered, and these animals are carefully guarded for the food of the patriot army. This, with sugar cane juice, is enough to keep any army in good condition. The Cubans declare they can live for five years in this way. As to clothing, in a climate like that of Cuba it does not count. Arms, ammunition and men constitute the needs of the revolutionists, although they are not badly in want of even these, if their story is to be believed.

Sly old Uncle Paul Kruger knows how to twist the British lion's tail to some purpose.

THE LAY OF THE BELL.

Beautiful German Oratorio to be Given in This City.

St. Paul's Catholic Church Arranging for a Musical Event—The Caste of Characters.

Next Thursday evening at Library hall, the German oratorio, "The Lay of the Bell," will be presented by local talent for the benefit of the St. Paul Catholic church. The local talent which will take part in this interesting musical production includes some of the finest singers, who, under the direction of Prof. John Hauck, have been rehearsing for it for some time past. It will be the first Gorman oratorio ever given in this city, and will consequently be a musical event which will attract a great deal of interest. It will be given in three parts and between these parts solos will be sung by Prof. A. Rager and Albert Jauch. There will be a chorus, and Reineke's orchestra will furnish the instrumental music. The caste of characters in the oratorio will be as follows:

Director—John Hauck.

Master—Prof. A. Rager.

Tenor—S. Entrodacher, John Wegmiller, Albert Jauch, William Suelzer, and Frederick Kinstle.

Bass—Martin Sternberger, Alexander Luethe, Valentine Fox, Adolph Haller, Samuel Haller, Charles Schlatter and Joseph Schnee.

UNDER PROTEST.

The Gas Company Pays the Pipe Line Tax.

A Check for $1,083.13 Was Handed in to the City Comptroller This Morning.

The Fort Wayne Gas company has paid its pipe line tax, according to the provisions of the Fisher ordinance. This morning the company's representative called at the office of city comptroller and handed in a check for $1,083.13, which is one quarter of a cent for each foot of their pipe lines, in this city, amounting to 433,253 feet.

Accompanying the check was a protest from the company, which stated that the company believed the law unconstitutional and that the payment was therefore made under protest. It was signed by Henry C. Paul for the company.

THEY JOLLIFIED.

Frank Purcell Given a Rousing Reception by Winchester Democrats.

Among the towns which are regularly visited by Frank Purcell and in which he is well known, is Winchester. There are not more than a dozen or fifteen democrats in Winchester, the republicans being overwhelmingly in the majority. Some of the democrats down there told Frank that if he should be elected councilman at large by the democrats in this city at the late spring election they would jollify with him the next time he came to town. Last Thursday Frank was in Winchester for the first time since he had been elected. The Winchester democrats had not forgotten their promise, and they at once began preparations for the event. They had a bonfire, speeches were made, and they enjoyed a lot of refreshments, consisting of lemonade, rye bread, bologna and onions. No one was present except the handful of democrats, but they had the best time they ever had in their lives. They said it was the first time a democratic jollification had ever been held in that town.

STATE CONVENTION.

Nearly 500 Doctors Will be Here for Two Days.

The Indiana State Medical Association to Meet in This City During the Latter Part of This Month.

During the last week in May between 400 and 500 physicians from different parts of the state will assemble in this city for the purpose of attending the state convention of the Indiana Medical association which meets here for a two days session. The convention will be held at the Plymouth Congregational church. The president of the association is Dr. M. F. Porter. The address of welcome will be delivered by Dr. H. V. Sweringen. The program includes papers from many of the distinguished physicians of the state and will be an interesting and instructive one to the profession. The local committees have not yet completed full arrangements for the meeting, but our doctors will care in a royal manner for their visiting brethren and make their stay in Fort Wayne pleasant and profitable to the many guests who will be here at that time.

NEW HAVEN LINE.

Petition for Entrance Into the City is Presented.

A. B. White Before the Board—West Jefferson Is to be Paved With Asphalt.

A. B. White appeared before the board of public works last night and filed the following petition:

"To the Honorable Board of Public Works of the city of Fort Wayne:

"GENTLEMEN:—Your petitioner, Alexander B. White, would respectfully show that he desires to construct, maintain and operate a line of street railway from the town of New Haven, in the county of Allen, and the state of Indiana, to Calhoun street, in the city of Fort Wayne, in said county, of the guage of four feet, eight and one-half inches; that within the limits of said city of Fort Wayne he desires to locate, construct, maintain and operate said line of street railway over and upon the following streets; namely:

"Beginning at the corner of Glasgow avenue and Maumee road in said city, thence west on Maumee road to Division street; thence south on Division street to Madison street; thence west on Madison street to Barr street; thence north on Barr street to Washington street; thence west on Washington street to Calhoun street.

"Wherefore, your petitioner asks that you give and grant to him the right of way in, over, and upon the said designated streets as above described, thereon to construct, maintain and operate said line of street railway.

"ALEXANDER B. WHITE."

The petition was filed for future reference.

The board passed a declaratory resolution for the paving of West Jefferson street with asphalt from Broadway to Garden street.

A petition was presented for a system of sewerage in South Wayne, and the petition was referred to the city engineer.

A petition for an electric light at the corner of Main and Calhoun streets was filed.

A remonstrance was filed against the grading and laying of a sidewalk on the east side of Lillie street, south of Creighton avenue.

A sewer builder's license was granted to Henry Krah.

John Tremmel was appointed city scavenger in addition to his duties as poundmaster.

NOVEL LAW CASE.

John Anderson Sues the Maccabee Order

For $3,000 Because He Was Suspended.

Decision in the Celebrated Boyle Case is Reversed by the Appellate Court.

Quite a novel law case has been brought in the superior court, through his attorneys, Woodward & Keegan, by John W. Anderson against the supreme tent of the Knights of the Maccabees of the World.

The defendant is a fraternal association, with supreme headquarters at Port Huron, Mich., and gives to the heirs of a member, at his death, amounts ranging from $1,000 to $3,000 provided the member had paid his assessments and was in good standing in the order.

The plaintiff alleges in his complaint he became a member of Wayne tent, No. 54, in this city, of the Maccabee order on March 7, 1893, and that by virtue of said membership he was given an insurance protection of $3,000. He further says that in February, 1896, the said order suspended him from membership, although at the time he was in good standing and had complied with all the provisions and requirements of the order. He had asked for a reinstatement in the order but was refused.

He says that he was wrongfully dismissed from the said order, and that by reason thereof he has been disgraced and humiliated in the opinion of his neighbors and friends. For this suspension and disgrace and humiliation he claims that his name and his character have been injured to the extent of $3,000, and hence he asks judgment against the supreme tent of the Knights of Maccabees of the world for this amount.

BOYLE CASE REVERSED.

Yesterday at Indianapolis the appellate court of the state reversed the decision in the case of Anna Boyle against the supreme council of the Catholic Benevolent Legion and the case will be sent back to the superior court of this county for rehearing.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Boyle recovered a judgment against the council for the death of her husband, William Boyle, who was said to have been drowned in Lake Michigan at Chicago, he being a member of the legion, by virtue of which Mrs. Boyle would be entitled to the amount of the insurance of the policy which he held.

His wife immediately made application for the payment of the policy, but the supreme council refused on the ground of insufficient evidence of death, which created a suspicion of the validity of the claim, the body never having been found.

Messrs. Breen & Morris were the attorneys for the defendant, and the reversal of the decision in the case is quite a legal victory.

"SIX LITTLE TAILORS"

Establish An Agency in Fort Wayne With the Globe.

William B. Appel, general agent for the "Six Little Tailors," of New York, is in the city. Mr. Appel is westward bound across the country establishing agencies for this world famous tailoring establishment. He placed the agency in this city with A. K. Hurst & Co., proprietors of the popular Globe Clothing house.

The "Six Little Tailors" have been in business in New York city for over twenty years and now have agencies in more than 300 cities in the country.

Their clothing has a world wide reputation for fit, style and quality of material, and will undoubtedly receive a liberal patronage in this city.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Annual Meeting to Be Held Next Monday.

The first annual meeting of the Associated Charities of Fort Wayne will convene Monday evening, at 7:45, in the council chamber. The association was formed a little over a year ago and during the past season charity organization methods have been on trial for the first time. Those who wish to know what the results have been and especially those who have helped to support the society in any way should be present to hear the reports at the annual meeting. The exercises will include an address by the president, the annual reports of the general secretary and treasurer, and the election of officers for the coming year, followed by impromptu speeches. The voting membership includes one delegate member from each religious and benevolent society of the city, and all who subscribe $2 00 or more to the support of the society. The public is invited.

IN POLICE COURT.

Several Prisoners Faced the Mayor This Morning.

Among Them Was Jeff Myers, the Old Timer—Ella Armstrong Taken to Richmond.

Mayor Scherer had a good grist of business in police court this morning. Ella Parker, Lizzie Mooney, William Jones and Samuel Smith were two couples who were picked up by officers in Lakeside yesterday evening. They had been having a high old time and the residents of that part of the city made complaint. In police court this morning the girls were fined $14.50 each for prostitution. They went to jail. The boys were also fined $14.50 each, but the mayor suspended sentence upon promise of good behavior.

Three vags, who had been rounded up by the officers, were allowed to go after they had promised to leave the city.

John Hamontre was sent to jail for fifteen days for begging on the streets near the Pittsburg depot.

James Traber and the one and only Jeff Myers were also found guilty of having been drunk and were sent to jail for eleven days.

TAKEN TO RICHMOND.

Yesterday afternoon Detective Page, of Richmond, arrived in the city and called at the police station. He came for the purpose of returning to Richmond with Ella Armstrong, the woman who was captured by Detective Coling a few days ago on a charge of forgery, as detailed in THE SENTINEL yesterday. Detective Page returned to Richmond last night with his prisoner.

THE DAY'S MISHAPS.

Ed. Longfield Has a Leg Broken.

Stepped on a Stone Wheel Alighting From a Car—Andrew Kohler Loses Two Fingers.

Ed Longfield, who lives at No. 67 Charles street, is laid up with a bad injury. This morning he had been down town and started home on a Hanna street car. As he alighted from the car on Wallace street his foot struck a stone and turned, breaking his leg near the ankle. Dr. J. E. Miller reduced the fracture.

LOST TWO FINGERS.

Andrew Kohler, an employe of the Olds Wagon works, had his hand caught in a machine at the factory this morning and suffered serious injuries. The hand was badly torn and lacerated. Dr. J. E. Miller attended him and found it necessary to amputate the first two fingers of the hand. Kohler lives at 25 Force street.

The Evening Sentinel.

BY E. A. K HACKETT.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1896.

McKinley maintains his silence on the silver question and his reply to all interviewers is, "I have nothing to say."

Our soldier organizations are making preparations for the observance of Memorial day, which occurs two weeks from today.

At the St. Louis convention, gold bugs and straddle bugs will for the time make the usual numerous June bugs quite forgotten.

The decision of the board of public works last night to pave West Jefferson street with asphalt will give the west end four asphalt pavements.

Since Illinois has decreed the face may be shaved on the Sabbath, thirsty New York would like a little more privilege with its Sunday mug, too.

The official call for the election of delegates to the democratic state, county, and joint representative conventions appears elsewhere in The Sentinel today.

The promptness with which the jury in the Scott Jackson trial returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree will go far toward restoring confidence in the jury system.

With the close of the present congress the terms of thirteen republican senators will expire and fourteen democratic senators will go out. In addition to these, Peffer, of Kansas, and Kyle, of South Dakota, both populists, and Jones, of Nevada, who is a free silver republican, will also retire.

It looks very much as if the New Haven electric line will be built. The city council should do everything it its power to help it along. Every suburban electric railroad built into Fort Wayne will be worth thousands of dollars to our merchants.

The Democrats Won.

The democrats gained a substantial victory in the supreme court of this state by the decision of that body, which was announced in yesterday's Sentinel, declaring that the legislative apportionment act of 1885 cannot be set aside, and that it is the only act under which the senators and representatives can be elected this fall. The effect of the decision is to elect members of the legislature under an act that the democrats passed when they had a majority in the legislature, and which, if there is any advantage in it, is in their favor.

When the court set aside the laws of 1893 and 1895, and thus brought the laws of 1885 into effect, the democrats proposed that no further questions should be raised, and that the two parties should acquiesce in the decision. The republicans, however, attacked the law of 1885 on the ground of unconstitutionality, and this decision sets the matter at rest, although there are suits pending to set aside all apportionment laws under the present constitution, which was adopted in 1851.

The court enters upon the discussion of the points involved by declaring that the law of 1885 is the only act now upon the statute books under which an election of members of the legislature can legally be held. Prior to 1869 the franchise was limited in this state to the white male population above the age of twenty-one years, and all apportionments made before that time excluded the negroes from voting. If a law, argues the court, were revived under which this class of citizens could not vote, it would be in conflict with both the state and federal constitutions, and no election held under it now would be legal. Referring to the proposition presented by the republican appellee, the court intimates that the end sought after is anarchy, and says that the suit is really an attempt to coerce the governor into calling a special session of the legislature by invoking the aid of the court in setting aside all laws.

SLUGGING MATCH.

Fort Wayne and Jackson Had One Yesterday.

The Colts Won an Easy Victory—Wheeling, New Castle and Saginaw Also Win Their Games.

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Per ct.
Fort Wayne	11	9	2	.818
Wheeling	10	7	3	.700
Newcastle	10	6	4	.600
Toledo	11	6	5	.545
Washington	10	4	6	.400
Jackson	11	4	7	.364
Youngstown	10	3	7	.300
Saginaw	11	3	8	.273

Fort Wayne again defeated Jackson yesterday in a game that looked very much like nine acts of the "Comedy of Errors. The score of 21 to 12 tells the story. Carrick, who pitched for Fort Wayne, and Miller, who did the twirling for Jackson, were both wild, and the slugging was something awful. Tebeau's colts can bat some and it will not do for any pitcher to go up against them unless he can control the ball and shoot the curves over proper. Carrick was also an easy mark for Jackson, but they could not win. The same teams play again at Jackson today, and tomorrow the colts play at Saginaw.

The score of yesterday's game was as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E
Jackson	4	0	0	1	1	0	0	0	6	12	15	4
Fort Wayne	0	0	1	3	2	7	5	3	0	21	24	4

Earned Runs—Jackson, 7; Fort Wayne, 9. Bases on Balls—Jackson, 4; Fort Wayne, 7. Struck Out—Jackson, 6; Fort Wayne, 3. Batteries—Miller and Myers; Carrick and O'Meara. Umpire—Andrews.

OTHER GAMES.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 15.—The Wheeling club took a second game from Washington yesterday. The score:

Wheeling	0	0	4	0	1	3	1	0	1	—10
Washington	0	0	0	0	5	0	0	2	1	— 8

Base hits—Wheeling, 18; Washington, 17. Errors—Wheeling, 8; Washington, 2. Batteries—Johnson and Shaw; Martin and Gregg.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 15.—New Castle defeated Youngstown in a closely contested game up to the sixth inning, when the home team got rattled and the visitors won. Score:

Youngstown	0	5	0	0	0	0	0	0	—5

Hits—Youngstown, 10; Newcastle, 10. Errors—Youngstown, 4; Newcastle, 2. Batteries—Stryker, Stevens and Zinran; Brown and Lavelle.

Saginaw, Mich., May 15.—Saginaw defeated Toledo in a close game at Union park yesterday afternoon. The home team did excellent work in the field. The "mud hens" held the "tigers" from the plate until the seventh inning, when they scored two and followed up with two more in the finish. Score:

Toledo	1	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	—3

Hits—Saginaw, 9; Toledo, 8. Errors—Saginaw, 2; Toledo, 4. Batteries—Rutherford and Thorpe; Kelb and Arthur.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN?

Tomorrow the colts open at Saginaw for three games. The question is what the result will be. The Saginaws have been materially strengthened by the addition of Sumner, who went from the Fort Wayne team, and Smith and Heller, both of this city, and they are playing fast ball at present. They have already taken two games from Toledo and are figuring on the one today. Saginaw promises to send some other club to the bottom of the list in a very few days, and if the colts do not mind their p's and q's they may find themselves assisting in this act.

TOLEDO NEXT WEEK.

Next Thursday Toledo will come to this city and try for three games with the colts Fort Wayne people are waiting to receive them with open arms and a large amount of rooting for our own team.

AMONG THE UMPIRES.

President Power has given the Inter State league staff of umpires an overhauling. Umpire Stellberger, who was doing work at Toledo, but who mysteriously disappeared and three days later wrote that he was not feeling well and had gone home to take a rest, will be given all summer to recuperate. Wally Andrews, of Indianapolis, at one time a prominent ball player, has taken Stellberger's place and will report in Jackson tomorrow.

Umpire Mitchell has been deposed. One day last week Mitchell stopped a batted ball with one of his legs and concluded that this was sufficient grounds for an extended vacation, but did not deem it necessary to notify the president of the league. Mitchell has not umpired a game for nearly a week, neither has the president received any word from him directly, although informed that he was in Pittsburg Sunday and Monday. U. T. McNeirney, of this city, who made an excellent record in the Iron and Oil league last year, succeeds Mr. Mitchell.

President Power is also negotiating with Umpire Daniels, of West Brookfield, Mass., who is highly recommended by Manager Mack, of the Pittsburg club.

Umpire Frank O'Brien was taken sick at New Castle Tuesday, but has recovered and officiated at Youngstown Thursday.

Substitute Kane, of Youngstown, has had enough of a good thing and wants no more of it. Hereafter Dan Alexander, formerly a well known pitcher, will be the "sub" in Youngstown.—Youngstown Vindicator.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GAMES.

Chicago 8, Baltimore 7; Louisville 9, Philadelphia 3; St. Louis 5, Washington 2; Cleveland 10, New York 4; Boston 8, Pittsburg 6.

Seems sometimes as if the world were all wrong. Seems as if all the things we like disagree with us, and all the things we don't like, agree with us. Dyspepsia lurks in most of the good things we eat, and indigestion follows the gratification of appetite. Of course, it isn't Nature's fault. Nature does the best she can, and if a man will only help her a little bit at the right time, he may eat what he likes and as much as he likes. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for people who are troubled with indigestion. Particularly for those in whom it manifests itself in the form of constipation. The "Pellets" are quick and easy in their action. They are in perfect harmony with Nature. They effect a permanent cure. You need take them regularly only a little while. After that, use them occasionally when you need them—when you have eaten something that disagrees with you. They are not violent in their effect, do not derange the system at all, and may be taken just as freely as you would take water or any other necessity of life. Once used they are always in favor. You can get the "Pellets" at any drug store. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well.

A GREAT BOOK —ABSOLUTELY— GIVEN AWAY!

Few books printed in the English language have reached so great a sale as has Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is a book of 1008 large pages and contains over 300 illustrations—some of them in colors. It is a complete family doctor book. It is written simply and concisely, and is indexed so that reference to it is made easily and quickly. Over 680,000 copies have been sold at the regular price of $1.50. The profits on this enormous sale enable the publishers to distribute 500,000 copies absolutely FREE. A copy bound in strong paper covers, will, therefore be sent FREE to any one who will send 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only.

THE BLUES.

A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THE DREADFUL FEELING.

What Is Meant by This Form of Acute Misery—Where Doctors Make Mistakes.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the blues, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way:—

She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached, and back also; has slept poorly; been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart has beat very fast; then that bearing-down feeling. Her doctor says, "cheer up, you have dyspepsia; you'll be all right soon."

But she doesn't get "all right." She grows worse day by day, till all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake.

She has lost faith in him; hope vanishes; then comes the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting blues. Her doctor, if he knew, should have told her and cured her, but he did not, and she was allowed to suffer. By chance she came across one of Mrs. Pinkham's books, and in it she found her very symptoms described and an explanation of what they meant. Then she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, feeling that she was telling her troubles to a woman. Speedy relief followed, and vigorous health returned.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the story recited above is the true experience of hundreds of women, whose letters of gratitude are to be found on file in Mrs. Pinkham's library.

NEAR THE WHITE HOUSE!

Personal Friends of the President Indorse Paine's Celery Compound.

Following the Testimonials of Judge Powers and Congressman Grout Come Hearty Letters From Congressman Meredith, of Va, Asst U. S. Attorney John G. Capers, Maj. Gen. Birney, Congressman Wilber, of N. Y; Congressman Bell, Lieut. McAllister, Congressman Neill and Many More.

The proprietors of Paine's celery compound has never exaggerated either the virtue of this wonderful remedy nor the astonishing character of the endorsements it has received.

This greatest of all blood purifiers and restorers of nervous energy, this remedy which is today in greater demand than all the so-called spring remedies put together—

This Paine's celery compound, which was first discovered and prescribed by America's most eminent physician, that giant among medical scientists of this progressive age, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college—

This remedy, which has been a blessing to thousands upon thousands of homes in every state and city of the country, which has been energetically endorsed by the ablest physicians, which has received thousands of heartfelt testimonials from women and men in every station in life, and has been publicly recommended without solicitation by persons of such high character that they are honored by the whole nation—this remedy that makes people well, has received so many letters in its praise within the last two or three months, coming in every mail from every section of the country—that it would be impossible to print them all in the daily issue of any one paper.

Mr Hearst's great paper the Journal in New York, the Globe and the Journal in Boston, Mr Kohlsaat's powerful Times-Herald in Chicago, have each of them, within a month, devoted from one to three pages at a time to the most remarkable canvass ever made of the druggists in the great cities And their best reporters, unprejudiced one way or another, have found that the druggists are meeting not only a larger demand than ever before for this one remedy, but that this demand—because Paine's celery compound cures where everything else fails—is so far greater today than that of any other remedy that it has no competitor.

Among the thousands of testimonials that have been received by the proprietors of Paine's celery compound this spring, none has been more noteworthy than those that come from the national capital. The enthusiastic letters of Judge Powers and of Congressman Grout were recently published in this paper. Above is a good likeness of one of the ablest members on the democratic side of the house, a leader of acknowledged ability, a personal friend of the president, a man of great weight,—Congressman Elisha E. Meredith, of Virginia. A letter from him, dated Feb. 4, from the house of representatives, says:

"After a fair trial I have no hesitation in saying that I believe Paine's celery compound all that is claimed for it, and it gives me pleasure to commend it."

A letter from Congressman Robert Neill, of Arkansas, contains the following:

"My home is at Batesville, Ark. During the last spring and summer my eldest daughter, then 17 years of age, was in very poor health, suffering from general debility, nervous prostration and frequent slight fevers. She had the best medical attention, but apparently with little benefit. In the latter part of September last, while still feeble, she began the use of Paine's celery compound, and improved in health continuously. In three months she had fully recovered, and is still in perfect health. I am bound to think the remedy is an excellent one, and do not hesitate to recommend it to the suffering."

Lieut. C. A. McAllister, writing from hotel Oxford, March 28, said:

"For several years past I have been a sufferer from severe attacks of dyspepsia, caused by too close attention to business; on the advice of a physician I took several bottles of Paine's celery compound, and have been greatly benefited thereby. Since the first of last September I have gained twenty-five pounds, and am now feeling in first-rate health.

"C. A. McALLISTER.

"1st Assistant Engineer, U. S. R. C. S."

Hon. John C. Bell, member of congress from Colorado, in a letter to Wells & Richardson Co., about the same time, told how he had used three bottles of Paine's celery compound for dyspepsia and rheumatism, with satisfactory results.

Major Gen. Birney, who is now, at the age of 75, practicing law and doing departmental work in Washington, the unflinching commander at the battle of Fredericksburg, of the famous 38th New York regiment, in a letter to Wells & Richardson Co., says:

"My wife has been taking the Paine's celery compound for some time past, and is so much pleased with it that she wishes me to express to you her high opinion of its merits. She thinks it the best she has ever tried."

Congressman Wilbur, of New York, writing in March, used these significant words:

'I was persuaded by a friend to try your Paine's celery compound some time ago, and after its use, am pleased to recommend it to any one who is in an overworked or run-down condition, as doing what is claimed for it."

Many other letters from prominent people who are not so well known are included in this year's files of testimonials from Washington.

Every city and every town in the country is equally well represented in this wonderful popular indorsement of the remedy that purifies the blood, rebuilds the shattered nervous system, restores strength, regulates the kidneys, liver and bowels, cures disease, makes people well.

In these latter days of spring, in the last of the three great months, the close of nature's yearly revival season, when the recovery from sickness is the most rapid and lasting Paine's celery compound will make vigorous nerves and good blood.

During these latter spring days there is a clearing of the air; it is the most favorable time of the year to cure nervousness, neuralgia, sleeplessness, headaches and low spirits by the use of Paine's celery compound.

Paine's celery compound points to a wonderful record already achieved. The most wide-awake, intelligent part of every community in this country are among its most enthusiastic vouchers and indorsers.

RAPID FIRING ELEVATORS.

They Give One the New Disease, Elevatoritis—Flats So Narrow That the Dog Is Compelled to Wag His Tail Up and Down.

[Copyright, 1896, by the Author.]

BICYCLEHURST, GLEN RIDGE, N. J.

This week's society notes state that the hegira of wealthy city people into the country will now begin. I also see by the papers that the Mahdi has proclaimed the jedad, and that General Weyler, the eminent butcher of the Cuban abattoirs, has formed another strong trocha. Whether these names were those of strange animals or some new diseases worried me until I saw the society editor. I don't criticise wealthy people who leave the city at any time of the year. In fact, I marvel that so many icemen, plumbers, druggists and literary men dwell in the city—the noisome, noisy metropolis—at all, when, for a few hundred dollars per week, one may live in an elegant, beautiful country place, with all of nature's works freely exposed to view; wear golfing clothes without being commented upon and live a pure, clean, noble life, independent of all men except the butcher, grocer, milkman and others, who only aim to please.

In New York the perils of existence grow more threatening daily. Not only are life and limb endangered by the common carriers, but the citizen's very liberty is hourly being more and more restrained. Women are arrested by half witted policemen for walking in the middle of the street, for waiting on the sidewalk while their husbands buy cigars, for standing in their own doorways or for inquiring the names of streets, etc., while men are prevented from drinking wine with a 50 cent table d'hote dinner on Sunday and arrested and fined for being clubbed by policemen. Only a short time since a man was arrested and jailed for days for squeezing his own wife in his own house! Footpads are so numerous that people are afraid to carry money or valuables at night. Men who formerly had thousands of dollars in their pockets now carry but little, and I myself have become so impressed with the increase of crime that I am never found nowadays with more than 80 cents, mostly Canadian money, on my person. All of us who are obliged to roam around late at night have put away our watches and jewelry and now never display large wads of money at any time, even on Wall street.

It is a curious fact that each new improvement in transportation is more dangerous and twice as noisy as its predecessor. The tinkling bells and the tumultuous hoof beats of the horse cars were as strains of music to the cable or trolley juggernauts. With each improvement a new set of nerves is developed until the city dweller becomes a mass of tightly stretched strings played upon by every emotion like an Æolian harp by the winds. After it was discovered that the dimly lighted elevated trains produced a peculiar disease resembling spinal meningitis the cable cars developed a form of muscular paralysis due to catching the breath as one is jerked around corners or banged to and fro as the car is quickly stopped or suddenly shot forward. Not only does one have to catch his own breath, but there are other breaths—but that we will not dwell upon.

Now another affliction is born—i. e., elevatorisis, a sort of stomach or heart failure common to inmates of 20 to 27 story buildings. Visitors from the country who have gone up or down in any of the pneumatic, rapid firing elevators now so common in New York will hardly be surprised at the advent of this or other elevator diseases. The good old fashioned bucolic diseases like rheumatism, asthma, quinsy sore throat, dyspepsia, etc., have many well advertised remedies, but there are no "yarbs" for these new evils, no cure but rest by purling brooks, rippling waters, sighing pines or sounding surf. It has been learned that deafness is extremely common along the lines of the "L" roads and that children are born in that pitiful condition very frequently. It is predicted by scientists that a race of deaf mutes will be evoluted in this region of shrieking, rattling horrors and that men and women will only be able to make signs or write on slates when they want to kick about the dirt that comes in the windows from the trains, for the people never speak—they know that hearing is impossible—and live on, thinking but never saying unutterable things. In one sense the new condition may be a blessing, for profanity is dying out in this region, even the janitors now using only the hardiest perennial cuss words, and then only in the subcellars, where the roar of the trains is subdued and they can hear themselves swear.

After one has sat for months hearing heavy trucks loosely loaded with rattling railroad iron passing over resonant granite pavements which have, by some diabolical cunning, been arranged with the most amazing acoustic properties, his mind dwells on the silence of a deep wood with painful yearnings. Now, it's the most astonishing fact, for instance, that, whereas one listens to a street band in the city with homicidal propensities, in the country its strains come winding into the ear mellowed and harmonized by the broad winds of heaven, shaded and shattered into melody by the intervening tree trunks and the quivering leaves of a million shrubs. A deep wood solemnizes every sound, and one can lie in soft, green moss, renewing his inner nature, sharpening the spiritual senses, while his soul fills with the vast silence and his clothes and ears with strange, inquiring bugs, which all have a hurried, businesslike air that ill accords with the stillness and repose.

FIVE O'CLOCK TEA IN GLEN RIDGE.

Have you ever risen at dawn with that ashen, mummylike taste in your mouth that is born of bonhomie and gesundheit and gone to the spring for a draft of cool, delicious water and heard the birds break into hilarious, boisterous caroling, and then, when the sky was throbbing and pulsing with the faint ruby light and the cool, heaven born water gargling your parched tonsils, have you wished to dwell in a flat where nine different lines of cars passed your door, and with eight saloons, a primary school, two livery stables, a brewery and a dancing academy on the same block, where they put in the coal at 6 a. m. through a cast iron chute that makes a noise audible a mile away? I wot not!

I slept for several nights this spring in a flat—a cunning little Harlem home—that is a sample of thousands. It was so small that there was no room for doubt in it. What seemed like crevices were really apartments, and the dog had to wag his tail up and down instead of sideways. I could not use my regular gestures in conversing without abrading my knuckles on the walls, and owing to the thinness of the partitions between the flats talking in an ordinary tone was impossible without revealing personal affairs to the neighbors. Whenever my friend and his wife quarreled, they had to whisper, and every one knows one can't be mad and whisper. It is injurious to restrain one's emotion in that way, and a quarrel in whispers soon becomes ridiculous and of little real value. The man next door snored as audibly as if he were in the very room, and when the janitor got drunk and beat his wife every oath and every whack came stealing up the airshaft with telling effect, thrilling the inmates of the entire building and teaching the children things that it were far better they learned from their own parents.

I would not live thus. I would rather dwell among the guileless peasantry of Glen Ridge in natural simplicity, where the ladies wear Mother Hubbards at 5 o'clock teas, the men smoke corncob pipes, and where, if your trousers are not creased, nobody sneers, and where moths do not corrupt nor thieves break through and steal.

WALT MCDOUGALL.

TAIL OF THE TICKET.

AMBITIOUS STATESMEN WHO ASPIRE TO THE VICE PRESIDENCY.

The Republicans Will Probably Select a Candidate From the Gallery of Favorite Sons—Hobart, Evans and McAlpin In the Field.

There seems to be no lack of candidates in the Republican ranks this year for the second place on the presidential ticket. Favorite sons are thick as flies in July. While but little attention is usually given to "the tail of the ticket" early in the campaign, the matter is already being talked of and promises to attract a good deal of attention long before the conventions.

GARRET A. HOBART.

It is an unwritten political law that the candidate for vice president shall come from a different section of the country than that represented by the presidential nominee. Both parties have observed this rule for many years, and it is not likely that it will be broken now. Thus it is that the vice presidential boomers are dependent for the operation of their plans upon the result of the race for first place. This complicates matters to such an extent that the campaigns for second place are generally begun late in the day.

One of the first booms to be let loose is that of Garret A. Hobart of New Jersey. His friends are calculating on the nomination of McKinley, but if Morton or Reed should capture the place their plans would be shattered and a western man would be chosen.

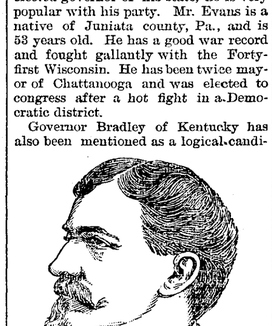

Mr. Hobart is a native of New Jersey, having been born at Long Branch in 1844. He took his degree at Rutgers college before he was 20 years old and almost immediately after began the study of law. He received his legal training in the office of one of the ablest lawyers in the state and entered upon what has grown to be a most lucrative practice.

As a young lawyer he entered the political field, and after filling some minor municipal offices in Paterson was elected in 1872 to the state legislature. He was re-elected and was made speaker of the house. In 1877 he was sent to the state senate to represent Passaic county and was re-elected two years later by the largest majority ever given in his district. During 1881 and 1882 he was president of the senate and received a complimentary vote from his party, which was in the minority, for United States senator.

For a number of years Mr. Hobart has held the position of chairman of the state Republican committee, and since 1884 he has been a member of the Republican national committee. In his career of a managing politician he has shown great ability. The Republican victory in New Jersey of a year ago was largely credited to his efforts, and twice before he almost succeeded in changing the political complexion of the state.

If an eastern man should be nominated, then a western man will have a chance for the vice presidency. The Tennessee Republicans are loud in urging the claims of Henry Clay Evans for the place. As the man who was almost elected governor of his state, he is very popular with his party. Mr. Evans is a native of Juniata county, Pa., and is 53 years old. He has a good war record and fought gallantly with the Forty-first Wisconsin. He has been twice mayor of Chattanooga and was elected to congress after a hot fight in a Democratic district.

Governor Bradley of Kentucky has also been mentioned as a logical candidate for second place if an eastern man heads the ticket. Adjutant General McAlpin of New York has frequently been mentioned as a candidate for vice president. He is the president of the National League of Republican Clubs, and ever since he has held the office his name has been mentioned in connection with that of the Ohio man by his Republican friends, who hope to see a McKinley and McAlpin ticket put in the field. Then there are Cush Davis of Minnesota, ex-Senator Manderson of Nebraska and several others who are looked upon as favorite sons and hence as possibilities.

PRIDE OF BAPTISTS.

THE FAMOUS TREMONT TEMPLE REBUILT IN BOSTON.

For a Century and a Half the Religious Life of Eastern Baptists Has Centered at Tremont Temple—The Costliest Free Church In America.

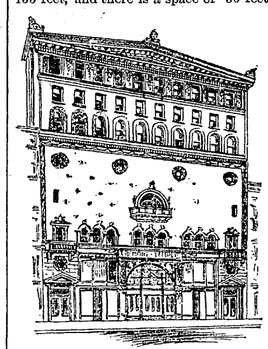

A structure that Baptists all over the country look at and refer to with pride is the new Tremont temple, which has just been dedicated in Boston. It is not only the home of one of the largest Baptist societies in the world, but it is the hub around which all the eastern affairs of the denomination revolve. The new building cost $541,000 and is the costliest free church in America.

For more than a century and a half Boston has not been without a Tremont temple for any length of time. The first one was built on the site occupied by the present structure, and when that was destroyed by fire in 1879 another one was erected to replace it. This in turn was burned two years ago, but the ashes of the building made famous by so many notable revivals were hardly cold before plans had been begun for the construction of the present temple, which is much handsomer and more imposing than any of its predecessors.

The striking and attractive facade of the new temple rises from Tremont street, almost directly opposite the Park street entrance to the common, which is one of the busiest spots in the heart of Boston. Past its wide swinging doors the restless feet of many thousands tramp from sunrise to midnight. It is among the people and for the people, and the very name is dear to Boston folk.

Looking at the six story sweep of the front, with its severely simple but somewhat unusual style, there is nothing to indicate or suggest the ornate beauty of the interior. The architecture is of the Florentine renaissance style, and the materials used are light brick and sandstone. The front elevation is modeled on the lines of the doges palace in Venice. There are three big entrances to the temple, opening directly from the sidewalk. Those on the side lead up a flight of stairs to the lobby of the main auditorium, and the center one is also connected with the lobby by two flights of stairs, but leads also to the smaller hall, which is located under the main one.

The big auditorium, which will comfortably seat 3,000 people, is beautiful indeed. The floor dimensions are 72 by 135 feet, and there is a space of 56 feet from the floor to the paneled dome. A balcony and a gallery surround three sides of the hall, and on the other side is a mammoth platform adorned by a beautiful bronze lectern standing on a marble pedestal, the gift of the Knights Templars to Dr. Lorimer. Above the platform is the choir gallery, and rising back of that is tier on tier of the ornamental pipes of the huge organ with which the church has been equipped.

In the whole auditorium there is not a single pillar to obstruct the view, the roof of the vast hall being supported by huge steel girders, which are hidden by the ceiling. The color scheme of the whole interior is exceptionally artistic. The walls on the first floor are a rich pompeiian red; in the balcony and gallery they are a warm buff, while under the windows they are a pale green. There are 12 of these windows, each inclosed by pilasters and arches. They are of stained glass, the designs representing the 12 apostles. In the spaces at the top of the windows are inscribed the names of 24 men who have played prominent parts in the history of the Baptist church.

The ceiling is one of the most beautiful features about the structure. It is divided into deep, octagonal panels, between which are large pendants. In the center is a panel much larger than the rest, with a gold sunburst in the middle. There are four rectagonal panels around it, in which are ventilators. The ceiling is done in white and gold. The auditorium is lighted by a big central chandelier of 40 lights and by 23 smaller chandeliers of 12 lights each depending from the ceiling at various points. Altogether there are 500 lights in the temple.

Over the platform rises a coffered arch, which supports the choir and organ lofts.

To the right of the platform is a door leading to the deacons' room and to the robing rooms for candidates for baptism. Beyond this room is the baptistery, entered by marble steps and provided with a gently sloping floor. The tank is a good big one, lined with enameled terra cotta, and will contain about 2,800 gallons of water.

Instead of pews the auditorium is furnished with big, wide, leather covered chairs that look particularly easy and inviting. There are two other halls in the building—one called Lorimer hall, which takes the place of the famous Meionaon, and the other, Chipman hall. The offices in the upper stories are occupied by Baptist societies.

NEW SHAH OF PERSIA

LESS LIBERAL AND ENLIGHTENED THAN HIS PREDECESSOR.

He Has Never Been Out of Persia and Is Said to Be a Religious Fanatic—May Have Trouble With His Turbulent Elder Brother.

Muzaffer-ed-Din is the name of the new shah of Persia. He is the second son of Nasr-ed-Din, who was recently assassinated. The new ruler of the Empire of the Sun is 43 years old and up to the time of the death of his father held the office of governor of Tabriz.

It is a rough road, however, that Muzaffer will have to travel before he will be allowed to reign peacefully at Teheran. In the first place he will have to subdue his elder brother, Zil-es-Sultan, a turbulent fellow, who has for years fostered an ambition to be shah himself and who would not hesitate at killing off any number of his immediate relatives to accomplish that result. It is even thought that he had a hand in the removal of the late shah, and if he did it is evident that his plans for seizing the government were matured, for he knew years ago that Muzaffer had been chosen to succeed his father.

The rule of primogeniture does not hold in Persia. The late shah had 5 sons and as many as 15 daughters. The girls are all married to Persian noblemen. Of the sons, Muzaffer was selected instead of the eldest, whose name, Zil-es-Sultan, means Shadow of the Kingdom, because the latter was the offspring of one of the plebeian wives of Nasr-ed-Din, while Muzaffer's mother was a woman of noble birth. Many years ago the second son was designated as the successor to the throne, and was recognized as such by all the leading powers in Europe. This act did not discourage Prince Mirza, as Zil-es-Sultan is called. He has long been governor of Ispahan, and has always held to the idea that a public office is a private snap, for he has become immensely wealthy. At one time he had collected in his province a standing army almost as big as the shah's, but in 1890 his father, fearing that his son was preparing to start a revolt, recalled him to Teheran, scattered his army and only allowed him to return to his province after he had put him under such heavy tribute that his wealth was sure to be diminished.

Muzaffer also had trouble with his father recently about money matters, but it was not of a serious nature. The new shah is not very well known outside of Persia. It has been reported that he is weakminded, but this has been disputed by men who have seen him. He does have, however, the reputation of being a drunkard, a gambler and a religious fanatic, but these are traits that are not wholly unusual in Persian rulers. It is said that he is entirely in the hands of the most bigoted section of the Shiite priesthood, whose religion is a sort of radical Mohammedanism.

There is no doubt about his sympathies being with the Russian partisans and against those who are inclined to be friendly to England. This means that he will be less liberal than his father. In fact, he knows almost nothing at all about western civilization, having never been out of Persia. He has not even been permitted to visit Teheran, where some few modern inventions have been adopted, such as the telegraph and the electric light. He has lived shut up in his palace at Tabriz, aloof from all contact with the outside world, and it may be expected that he will prove a very different monarch from the one whom he succeeds.

In many respects the late Nasr-ed-Din was worthy to rule the country of Darius and Xerxes. He was made shah when but a boy of 19. He was surrounded by a corrupt and thievish set of ministers, who advised him badly, but he soon got his eyes opened and became the most enlightened ruler that the ancient empire has had for centuries. He made several trips to Europe, and in leaving his empire did what no previous shah had dared to do for ages. After returning from each journey he made reforms and introduced some enlightened custom or modern invention.

Of course he could be called a civilized ruler only in comparison with some of his predecessors. In introducing the telegraph, for instance, his method of overcoming the fanatical objections of his subjects was somewhat abrupt and cruel. The Persians objected to the poles and wires and amused themselves by chopping down the poles and shooting away the glass insulators. The shah issued an edict forbidding these practices, but it was not obeyed. Then he sent out his officials to catch the offenders, with orders to bury them alive at the foot of the mutilated poles. It is said that within six months after this royal mandate had been issued every telegraph pole in Persia was marked by a grinning skull at its base. But the linemen had less work to do, and now the telegraph is regarded with awe throughout the land.

A Dismayed Hostess.

It was Miss Katie Rooney's first appearance as table girl when company had been invited to dinner, but it was company upon whom the mistress wished to make the best impression possible. Katie was always overflowing with rollicking Irish spirits and humor, but it had been emphatically impressed upon her that she must curb these propensities during the progress of the dinner and be the embodiment of quiet dignity. All went well until Katie went to remove the soup plates when she carelessly sent a stream of soup over the back of one of the gentlemen. Instead of manifesting the least dismay or chagrin, Katie clapped her free hand to her grinning mouth and said with an indescribable chuckle, and in a hoarse but painfully distinct whisper to her mistress:

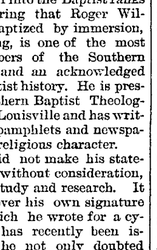

"Ain't Oi a dandy, mum?"

Then she shot out of the dining room, giving utterance to a wild howl of rollicking laughter as she ran.—Detroit Free Press.

GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES.

The Democratic Nominee In Alabama and Republican Candidate In Illinois.

The states in which governors are to be elected this year are clearing their decks for action in the national campaign by getting their state tickets made up. Alabama leads off on the list with the nomination by the Democrats of Joseph F. Johnston for governor. Captain Johnston is a Jeffersonian Democrat and a strong advocate of free silver. He will make his campaign mainly on that issue. The straightout Republicans have nominated General J. W. Burke of Calhoun county. A faction of the Republicans will probably fuse with the Populists, who have nominated Congressman Goodwyn.

In Illinois the Republicans have nominated John R. Tanner for governor. Mr. Tanner has long been an active figure in Illinois politics and has gained a great measure of popularity in his party. He is a war veteran, who went out with a volunteer Illinois regiment, and in 1865 he settled in Clay county, where he became a successful farmer.

Early in his career he took a hand in local politics. The first office he held was that of sheriff. He was next chosen county clerk and in 1880 was sent by the Republicans of the Fourteenth district to the state senate. Three years later President Arthur appointed Mr. Tanner marshal for the southern district of Illinois, and in 1886 he was elected state treasurer. After serving one term he retired to his farm for a short time, but in 1890 he entered the arena again to make a most vigorous campaign for another term as state treasurer. The fight for the nomination was such a hot one that President Harrison, in order to restore peace in the ranks of the party, appointed Tanner as United States subtreasurer at Chicago. He reluctantly accepted the federal appointment. Two years ago Mr. Tanner was unanimously chosen chairman of the Republican state central committee, an office which he resigned a few months ago, when he announced his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination.

JOHN R. TANNER.

BOTHERS THE BAPTISTS.

Dr. Whitsitt's Statement That Roger Williams Was Sprinkled Causes Controversy.

Dr. William Heth Whitsitt, who threw a bombshell into the Baptist ranks recently by declaring that Roger Williams was not baptized by immersion, but by sprinkling, is one of the most prominent members of the Southern Baptist church and an acknowledged authority on Baptist history. He is president of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary at Louisville and has written many books, pamphlets and newspaper articles of a religious character.

Dr. Whitsitt did not make his statement casually or without consideration, but after long study and research. It was published over his own signature in an article which he wrote for a cyclopedia which has recently been issued. He said he not only doubted that Roger Williams had been properly baptized, but declared the practice of immersion to be of comparatively recent origin. This was a severe shock to the orthodox Baptists in all parts of the world, and Dr. Whitsitt has been roundly denounced for uttering what are regarded as heretical views. The opposition to his statements is all the more energetic because he is teaching the theological students at the Baptist seminary the same thing.

It is expected that when the trustees of the seminary hold their annual meeting in Chattanooga the subject will be brought up and Dr. Whitsitt may be taken severely to task for his utterances.

Dr. Whitsitt has had an interesting career. He was born near Nashville in 1841. He was graduated from Union university in 1861. The same year he entered the Confederate army as a private and was soon afterward promoted to a chaplaincy, in which position he served until the close of the war. He was twice captured and confined in military prisons for about a year. In 1866 he entered the University of Virginia and studied for two years in the Southern Baptist Theological seminary. He also spent two years in study in Berlin and Leipsic. On his return to America in 1872 he accepted a pastorate in Albany, Ga., and soon after became a member of the faculty of the seminary as professor of Biblical introduction and ecclesiastical history. On the death of Dr. Broadus he became president.

FROM FAMOUS SIRES.

WHEREABOUTS OF SOME ERSTWHILE "WHITE HOUSE CHILDREN."

The Hayes and Garfield Boys Active and Prosperous—Alan Arthur Lives Abroad. The Daughters of Presidents Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Harrison.

There are a number of young people in this country who can look back upon the time when they were known as "the White House children." There are not so many of them, though, as you might think, considering that we change our executive so often.

The Hayes family is widely scattered, but although the children of the dead president have their homes in different cities they hold reunions as often as possible at the old homestead in Fremont. The Hayes place is a 40 acre farm known as Spiegel Grove and is the home of Miss Fannie Hayes, who lives there when she is not visiting her brothers. Miss Hayes is very attractive, with brown hair and blue eyes. She leads a quiet life, as a constantly increasing deafness interferes with her enjoyment of society. She spent the past winter in Bermuda.

Webb Hayes is practicing law in Cleveland and has never married.

Burchard Hayes is also a lawyer and has made his home in Toledo. He married Miss Sherman, and they have three boys.

Rutherford is a banker in Columbus. His wife was Miss Lucy Platt.

Scott R. Hayes, the youngest son, is prospering in the electrical business in Cleveland. He has worked his way up in life upon his merits and is a practical, up to date man, with an interest in all the questions of the day.

Of the Garfield family, the sons bid fair to be distinguished individually. Harry A. Garfield and his brother, James R. Garfield, are lawyers in partnership in Cleveland, and besides being successful in their profession they have developed talents in even a broader sphere. They have been prominent in the management of large business enterprises. They erected a large business block at a time of such depression that anything but a perfectly conducted scheme would have been a failure, and the younger of the partners has gone into politics and is a member of the Ohio senate. Both are married. Harry's wife was Miss Belle Mason of Cleveland. They have four children. James married Miss Helen Newell and is the father of three children.

Mary Garfield married her father's private secretary, Joseph Stanley Brown. He is a graduate of Yale college and now occupies important positions in connection with several scientific societies and is the secretary of the Alaskan joint commission. Mrs. Stanley Brown is a woman of great beauty and charm. She is the mother of three fine children, who are being educated in the most careful manner. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Brown are in wide demand socially. Part of the year is spent at Mentor at the Garfield home and part in Washington, where one of the most exquisite little homes in the city bears witness to the tastes of the family.

Irvin Garfield is 25 years old and is about to be graduated from the Harvard Law school. It is undecided yet whether he will practice law in Boston or go into partnership with his brothers in Cleveland. He is well known in the athletic world as a football player.

Abram, the youngest son of the family, is studying architecture in the Boston School of Technology. He will travel in Europe for two years after his graduation and will practice his profession in Cleveland. All of the sons are graduates of Williams college, which was the scene of President Garfield's college days.

President Arthur left two children—a son, Alan, and a daughter, Nellie. Alan was graduated from Princeton soon after his father's death and went to Europe to reside. He has never engaged in any business, but has lived an idle life in Paris, where he can live comfortably upon the income from his share of the estate of $100,000 left by his father. Miss Nellie lives with her aunt, Mrs. McElroy, at Albany, although she spends a good deal of her time with a cousin at Boise City, Ida. Neither of the children has married, although Miss Nellie is a very attractive girl, physically and intellectually.

Russell Harrison, the only son of President Harrison, is living in Terre Haute, Ind. He is president of the electric street railroad and is prominent in many ways. His wife, who was Miss Mary Saunders, daughter of ex-Senator Saunders of Nebraska, is beautiful and accomplished. They have one child, Marthena.

As lady of the White House, after the death of Mrs. Harrison, and before that, in all her experience in social life in Washington, Mrs. McKee, who was Mary Harrison, has been beloved. She is piquant in expression and slender and youthful in figure. She is an enthusiastic member of the Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, and one of her recent fads is bicycle riding, which she greatly enjoys.

He Seemed Very English.

"I ran across a pleasant young fellow on the isle of Wight," said a New Yorker recently. "We were together a whole day very nearly, and I supposed he was English, for he had all the earmarks, clothes, figure, accent and everything. Finally the conversation drifted to politics, and I gave him an elaborate explanation of our entire political system, to which he listened politely, and, as I thought, with interest.

"'Now,' I said finally, 'I am a Republican, but under the circumstances I describe I should vote the Democratic ticket.'

"'Yes,' he said quietly, 'I have always voted the Democratic ticket myself.'

"I stared at him.

"'Why, where are you from?' I demanded.

"'Philadelphia,' he said."—New York Sun.

The Genuine Article.

"I am beginning to have doubts about our prospective son-in-law," she said thoughtfully.

"Why? What's the matter with him?" he asked anxiously.

"I'm afraid his title is spurious—that he does not really belong to the aristocracy of Europe."

"Oh, you needn't worry about that."

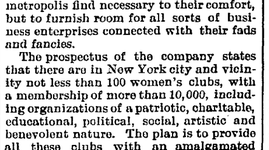

he replied, with evident relief. "I have good reason to know that he is the genuine article. He has already struck me for a loan of $500, agreeing to let that sum be deducted from the dowry of his prospective wife in order to insure payment of it."—Chicago Post.

NEW MINISTER FROM PORTUGAL.

Viscount Thyrso and His Bride Are Interesting Additions to Washington Society.

Among the foreign colony at Newport this summer will be Viscount de Santa Thyrso, the newly appointed Portuguese minister to the United States, who has recently arrived at Washington. He is accompanied by his wife, a beautiful and charming young woman. The diplomatic couple are yet in their honeymoon, for they were married only last February. The wedding took place in Lisbon and their bridal trip was to a beautiful and ancient chateau owned by the uncle of the groom.

Viscount Thyrso was born in Lisbon about 33 years ago and entered the diplomatic service at the age of 20, after being graduated from college. He began his career as an attache of the Portuguese legation at Rome and later on was made second and subsequently first secretary. He was transferred to London and then to Madrid. He was sent again to London, where he remained for four years as charge d'affaires. In recognition of his services in these positions he was not long ago given his title of viscount.

The new Portuguese minister is a stout, athletic young man with kindly eyes and a genial manner. He is a good deal of a linguist, speaking Spanish, Italian and French faultlessly, and English with but little foreign accent. He is talented in a literary as well as in an official way, for he is an excellent writer and the author of several books. He is a profound politician and an earnest student of history, but he is fond of society and does not devote all of his time to his office and his books.

Portugal has been without a representative at Washington for some months past, the place having remained vacant since the death of Senhor Thedim, who assumed the position scarcely a year ago.

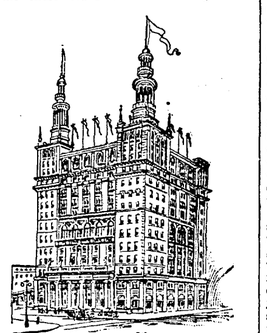

The viscountess is a vivacious and pleasing brunette, who dresses in the very latest Parisian style and is very fond of society. She was born in Lisbon and comes of an old and aristocratic family. Her father is at present the Portuguese consul general at London, where he has resided many years. It was at the court of St. James that she learned to speak English so perfectly, and it was there also that she became acquainted with the gentleman who is now her husband. She has already expressed herself as delighted with America, although she confesses that Washington does not equal Lisbon.

FOR CLUBABLE WOMEN.

An Imposing Building Projected by a New York Syndicate.

The extent to which the new woman dominates the day is shown in the organization of a syndicate which proposes to erect in the heart of New York city a magnificent 14 story building, to be devoted to her uses. The organization is known as the New York United Clubs Building company, and the projected structure is to be big enough not only to accommodate all the clubs which the new women of the metropolis find necessary to their comfort, but to furnish room for all sorts of business enterprises connected with their fads and fancies.

The prospectus of the company states that there are in New York city and vicinity not less than 100 women's clubs, with a membership of more than 10,000, including organizations of a patriotic, charitable, educational, political, social, artistic and benevolent nature. The plan is to provide all these clubs with an amalgamated home, where the members can in common enjoy many luxuries that small organizations cannot hope for. Government of the company is to be vested in a board of 100 regents, all women of high standing, and it is expected that the larger part of the stock will be taken by the clubs and societies who are to occupy the new building.

In order that the expense may not be heavy on the stockholders the building is to be partly devoted to business. On the ground floor six stores have been designed; on the second floor will be a hairdressing establishment, manicure parlors, millinery shops, etc., and the third will afford opportunities for women's tailors and modistes. All of the fourth, fifth and sixth floors will be devoted to clubrooms. The professions will have the eighth and ninth stories, music the tenth and eleventh, and on the top there will be a roof garden.

Some of the attractions of the building will be a Turkish bath for women, including a swimming pool, a bicycle room, a gymnasium and a tennis court, all exclusively for women. Then there will be a theater, cafe and restaurant.

The building is to be in the renaissance style with two massive towers rising 300 feet above the street. The interior will be magnificent in decoration and design. There will be a grand staircase, a grand salon and a big banqueting hall. And all this for the new woman.

DEAN AT ANN ARBOR.

THE FIRST WOMAN PROFESSOR IN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY.

Dr. Eliza M. Mosher Called to the Chair of Hygiene and Women's Dean of the Literary Department—Her Interesting Career as Physician and Scientist.

When the University of Michigan, that great and liberal educational institution that has made the name of Ann Arbor famous throughout the world, throws open its doors again next fall, one of the professor's chairs will be occupied by a woman. Dr. Eliza M. Mosher of Brooklyn is the one on whom this distinction will be conferred. She is to fill the position of professor of hygiene, and she will also be woman's dean of the literary department.

Dr. Mosher is one of the leading women physicians in the country, but she is more widely known as a writer of popular and scientific articles on hygiene and as a lecturer on the same subject. There is no part of medical knowledge that she is not familiar with. She has often shown that she has great skill in surgery, and her large and lucrative practice in Brooklyn, which she has just given up in order to take a short trip abroad previous to assuming her new duties at Ann Arbor, is a proof that she is a most successful physician.

The story of how she came to take up the study and practice of medicine as a profession is a most interesting one. In 1864 she was a prim, demure young Quaker girl, when she chanced to attend a series of lectures on physiology, anatomy and hygiene delivered by a woman physician. It was the first time her attention had been directed to these subjects, and she became intensely interested. She felt an irresistible impulse to study medicine.

Her mother, who was a woman of rare intelligence and who was noted in the quiet community for her skill in nursing as well as for her beneficent, kindly nature and clear judgment, was at first horrified at the thought of her daughter's becoming a physician, but finally consented, saying:

"I have watched thee, Eliza, and see that thy heart is in this work. I can no longer tell thee to stay."

With this approval she went to Boston in 1869, where she studied for two years under the direction of Dr. Lucy Sewall. Then she entered the medical department at Ann Arbor, arranging for herself a three years' course instead of two. At the beginning of her second year she was asked to serve as assistant demonstrator of anatomy, which postponed her graduation until 1875. She then went to Poughkeepsie, and upon the opening of the Massachusetts reformatory prison for women, in 1877, she was called to take the position of resident physician. There she fitted up and successfully conducted a hospital of 90 beds, with a nursery addition in which were 60 beds.

In 1879 she went to London and later to Paris, where she pursued the study of special subjects. Upon her return to this country Governor Long induced her to take the position of superintendent of the Massachusetts reformatory prison for women, which she did with reluctance. She reorganized the prison and became so interested in the work that she stayed there for three years. In 1881 she established herself in Brooklyn in partnership with Dr. Lucy Hall-Brown, serving alternately with her as professor of physiology and resident physician to Vassar college until her large and increasing practice in Brooklyn demanded her whole attention.

Since then she has been a very busy woman. In addition to her private practice, she has been physician to the Wayside home and Young Women's Christian association, she has conducted several courses of lectures before various societies and associations, and she has every now and then published some valuable paper or essay on medical subjects. Most of her work for charitable societies has been done without any remuneration, although she could have had all the work possible for her to do and secured large fees for doing it. When asked once about the chances which a woman doctor has of making money in her profession, Dr. Mosher said:

"It may seem strange, but it is a fact that all through my preparatory course the thought of it as a means of making money never once occurred to me. There was no special need of my earning. It was pure love for the work that drove me on, a love born in me, part of my very nature and growing with my growth."

Dr. Mosher is a woman of splendid physique, with a clear, pink complexion that tells of perfect health and a frank smile and gracious presence that portray superb mental poise and energy. She works from early in the morning until nearly midnight every day, for her life is crowded full of objects and ambitions, the latter of an unselfish nature. When she takes up her work at Ann Arbor, she will deliver lectures to 600 of the 3,000 students, treating the subject of hygiene in a wide manner and illustrating her lectures with laboratory experiments. She will also have charge of the gymnasium work of the university women and will superintend the erection and fitting up of the new $50,000 gymnasium which is to be constructed for the exclusive use of the women students.

While Dr. Mosher is the first woman professor to be called to Ann Arbor she is not the only one in the country in such a position. Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer once held the position of dean at the Chicago university, but resigned her place about a year ago in order to accompany her husband on an extended foreign tour. Her chair was filled by Miss Marion Talbot, a Wellesley graduate. At the Woman's college at Bryn Mawr, Pa., Miss M. Carey Thomas is dean. The dean of the Barnard College For Women is Miss Emily James Smith. A great-granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin also occupies a chair in an American college. She is Miss Agnes Irwin, and she is dean of Radcliffe college, the women's annex to Harvard.

FASHIONS OF NEW YORK

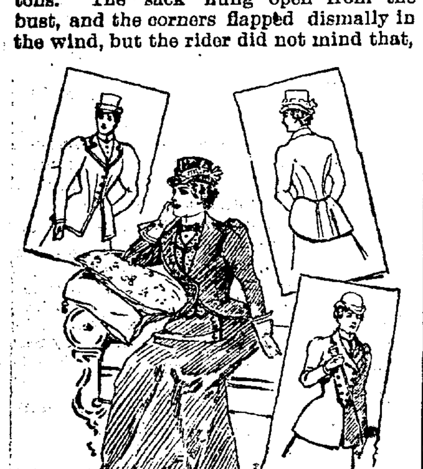

Mate Leroy Describes the Popular Riding Habits.

DRESSES FOR GROWING GIRLS.

This Season's Styles Are Particularly Attractive—Pretty Outing Costumes—Large Hats For Small Girls—Grass Linens Continue In Popularity—Shirt Waists.

[Copyright, 1896, by American Press Association.]

Yesterday I was in Central park with a dear old lady, and as we rode along quite a cavalcade of riders passed us on a bridle path lying alongside of the driveway. I had not thought much about the new riding habits until these riders put me in mind of them, and I looked at them with considerable interest, as I knew three of the ladies, and they never go out except in the very newest and latest of costumes. As I looked at them I noticed that two of them wore snug cutaway coats, made so long on the hips and back as to almost reach the horses' backs, while another had a loose sack of gray covert cloth, which hung down loosely quite to the horse's back. This was worn over a close waist, buttoned down with many round gilt buttons. The sack hung open from the bust, and the corners flapped dismally in the wind, but the rider did not mind that, it was so very English and eminently proper. The habit was of gray covert cloth, so dark as to look black in some lights. The skirt was short, barely covering the wearer's foot, and rather wider at the top than habit skirts have been for two or three seasons.

THE NEWEST HABITS.

The hats were particularly pretty and had a more feminine air than usual. The derbys are in the majority and have rather high crowns, but there is something in the shape that marks it as one for women. There are some quite low crowned derbys, and these have a twist of ribbon around them, a tiny rosette or a couple of stiff little quills at one side. I saw one very low crowned silk hat, with a gracefully rolling brim, and around the brim were two long and rich black ostrich feathers. The high hats have rather low crowns, and these have scarfs of black lace around them and in some instances light tulle scarfs. Others have but a straight band of black ribbon.

To return to the habit basques. They differ decidedly from those worn last season. They are cut exactly coat fashion in the back and are deep over the hips. The sleeves are very nearly tight all the way down. Some are double breasted and closed all the way up except for a very small opening scarcely large enough to show the tie and white collar. The collars are flat, as on men's coats. Some open farther down, showing a snug vest, and they are cut away at the waist to show two tiny points of the vest. White cuffs and collars give the neat finish to them that is required of a riding costume. One very pleasing habit was of black cloth, the skirt short and fitting snugly about the hips. The cutaway coat was double breasted, but opened to below the bust, where it fastened with two buttons. Beneath this there was a high vest of blue duck, dotted with white and fastened with flat black buttons. The collar and chemisette were of blue and white hairline percale, and the tie was black. Dogskin gauntlet gloves were worn with this. Gauntlets are worn less than plain gloves. These are generally in one of the tan shades. The whole scheme of the riding habit is to have a trim, well fitting suit that shall be tailor finished, and that these are. Black, dark blue, prune gray and dark green are all seen. The tweeds, fine cheviots, kerseys and covert suiting are the only materials employed except cravanettes and broadcloth. For city riding the cheviots and broadcloth are prettiest, but for rough riding, such as our amazons of today like, the tweeds and cravanettes which shed water are best. Many quite small girls are seen on horseback. These wear tiny jockey caps to match their habits, which are made of diagonal, serge, cheviot and cravanette in whatever color proves the most becoming. Gray is oftenest seen.

They do get up the prettiest dresses for growing girls this season that I ever saw. There is in one house, where a specialty is made of having dainty things for the young girls, some lovely things to see. Among them I saw a dress for a girl of 16 made of deep ivory bedford cord, which is still often seen, though its great vogue is over. The skirt was of the circular shape and had no trimming except a cord around the bottom covered with striped green and ivory silk. The waist was plain and opened in front under a rich trimming of applique point de venise in pure white. The stock and bow in the back were of the silk, and so was the draped belt, in the back of which there was another bow. Another was of Quaker drab mohair sicilienne. The skirt was entirely plain and not very full. The basque was slashed, and each slash was bordered with ecru insertion. The belt was covered with the same. The whole upper part was cut away, that part being then filled in with white silk mull over pink. The stock and rosettes were of the mull, and a plaited bertha of the same fell over a slashed bertha of the mohair bordered with insertion. The sleeves were tight at the wrists and up to above the elbow. Above them were puffs of the material, with upturned cuffs bordered with the insertion. The effect was quaint and girlish.

For outing costumes for two girls of 12 and 13 there were two very pretty suits. One was of dull green hairline wool, the skirt short and plain. There were a blouse waist of shell pink faille and a short empire coat of the same stuff as that in the dress. There were deep revers and a flat overlapping collar of hunter's green velvet, edged with gold passementerie. The six buttons were covered with velvet matching the darkest line in the dress goods. The sleeves were gigot shape. There were deep lids to the pockets, and the coat rippled very full in the back. The other suit was for the elder girl and was of light tan reps, the skirt laid in deep plaits. The waist was plain, save for the draping of the goods across in surplice fashion. Chestnut brown ribbon was employed to trim the waist. On the shoulders were straps of brown velvet, and a stock of the brown finished the neck. On each shoulder and in front there were plaited falls of cream colored silk muslin. This pretty gown was reproduced in several materials and colors. In some cases the surplice part folded over a front of velvet or silk. In one case the whole front was covered with lace laid above blue silk. In every case the effect was good and pleasing.

Hats for girls are very large, as a general rule, and trimmed quite as lavishly as are those for older people. Rough straw in any desired color is made the foundation for the building of the edifice of flowers, feathers and lace. For ordinary use dark ribbon is usually employed, particularly for school or going about, while a bronzed quill or a fancy buckle brightens it up. One hat for a girl of 12 had a rough gray brim, with a mass of roses of several shades upon it, the central branch standing upright in the center of a great bow of white and gray tulle.

Tulle is in full favor for many uses besides on hats. It is put upon collars, down vest fronts, is made into very full ruches and employed as berthas and festoons on ball toilets and is always in use as bridal veils. Lace is so necessary a part of woman's attire that it is far easier to mention where it is not than where it is. The lierre maintains its popularity, and point applique is very much liked. This has a close, fine pattern, apparently sewed on to fine net and silk also. The point d'esprit lace comes in butter, ivory and ecru as well as pure white. The oriental laces in fine qualities are much liked for the thin, sheer lawns and for millinery. Besides these there is a lovely fancy in what they call batiste bandings in linen shade, and there are several novelties in breton lace, with honiton lace applique effects. Grass linen edgings and bandings are shown in great variety from 2 to 6 inches wide and any amount of detached pieces of lace to sew on to yokes, sleeves, etc., as trimming. Some of the fine cambric, swiss and nainsook embroideries in openwork patterns are almost as fine as lace. Lace collars of every size and shape are in fashion, and so are fichus and jabots. Many of the new collars are shaped like those worn half a century ago, and they leave the neck bare. This is all the more noticeable after the long reign of the stock collar, but it will be infinitely more comfortable for the warm days before us.

The grass linens continue in their popularity, and each week sees some new fancy or deviation from those shown before. The embroidered, plain and lace trimmed, we have had. Now comes another weave which is so silky to the touch that one can scarcely believe it but grass fiber. There are plaid grass linen, satin striped linen, which is very beautiful, and there are dozens of different effects wrought out of that one material. The coloring varies, too, and while the most of it has the natural green there are others almost as white as bleached flax.

Parasols are made in the grass linens and are richly embroidered on the outside and are lined with florentine silk in some delicate shade. The Persian craze also waxes instead of wanes, and there are many parasols made of persian silk, some fringed and some edged with lace. These have handles painted in dresden figures.

Among the wash fabrics I notice some plaid sateens. These are quite as pretty as and a good deal stronger than india silks. There are also printed, striped and figured sateens besides the plaids. The dimity is now shown in dresden and persian figurings and is exceedingly dainty. The dresden swisses are pretty, and some of them are exquisite. Some are dotted and some figured. The ginghams surpass any ever seen before in point of fineness and coloring. In wools I notice nun's veiling. It is a delicate and graceful stuff and is particularly well adapted for summer gowns, as it sheds dust so well and is so pretty itself.

Shirt waists are shown in sateen of persian designs and percale in the same designs, as well as in silks of those pleasing patterns. Nicely made, with deep link button cuffs and collars all laundered, they sell at 98 cents, and they have neat little sets of buttons all in place besides. Fancy linens, taffetas and flowered and persian silks—also checked, striped and plain black silks—are all used for shirt waists. Chambray in light solid color is very much liked for shirt waists—in fact, everything is used except velvet, for I have seen one of moire and several of rich silk.

The black silk skirts will be very often seen this season. Grosgrain, taffeta, swivel, double warp Japanese habutai, rhadames, satin duchess and taffeta brocades, besides moire and peau de soie, are all to be used in making skirts, at least, when not the entire costume. Silk is always silk and always looks well. MATE LEROY.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction, she was brought down with pneumonia, succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Dreier & Bro.'s Drug Store. Regular size, 50c and $1.00.

Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than make good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. Dr. King's New Discovery, for consumption, coughs and colds, each bottle guaranteed; Electric Bitters, the great remedy for liver, stomach and kidneys; Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, and Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are a perfect pill. LESSON VII, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 17.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xix, 11-27—Memory Verses, 13-15—Golden Text, Luke xvi, 10—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

11. The topic is still "The Kingdom," for it may be said to be the topic of the whole Bible. He has passed through Jericho, healing three blind men and saving Zaccheus and is now on His way to Jerusalem to die. They think, however, that the kingdom is now about to come, and they had some grounds for thinking so, for John the Baptist, and the twelve, and the seventy, and Jesus Himself had all preached that the kingdom was at hand. Why, then, should it not immediately appear? Why should He not, as son of David, do what the prophets and Gabriel had said He would do, sit on the throne of David and reign over the house of Jacob forever? (Isa. ix, 6, 7; Jer. iii, 17, 18; Luke i, 32, 33.)

12. He speaks of a nobleman going into a far country to receive a kingdom and to return. Well, the sons of Herod may have gone away to Rome to receive the kingdom, which then included Jerusalem, but what had that to do with Jesus Christ, the Son of David? He was then present. He had to the satisfaction of His followers proved Himself to be the Son of David. Was He speaking of His going away and returning? Yes, even so, for the nation that He came to be King over was about to kill Him, and this would involve a postponement of the kingdom till His return in power and glory. Now was His time to suffer and die, and the heavens must receive Him until the times of restoration of all things spoken by the prophets (Acts iii, 19, 21).

13. "Occupy till I come." This is his message to his servants, whom he called, and to whom he gave each a pound. This parable differs somewhat from that of the talents in Math. xxv, for there the talents are bestowed according to the ability of each, but the ground covered is virtually the same. We know that every true servant of Christ, every true believer, has received the Holy Spirit, has received salvation, and this not for Himself alone, but that He may therewith bless others and glorify His Lord. The boundaries of this age in which we live, the time of the postponement of the kingdom, the time of the formation of His body, the church, are His going away and His return.

14. This describes the attitude of the nation—that is, the rulers representing the nation—toward Him. It became fully manifest when they cried to Pilate, "We have no king but Cæsar." It was foreshadowed in the hatred of Joseph's brethren, but as truly as they afterward saw Joseph on the throne and bowed down to him, so shall those who crucified Christ yet see Him exalted as King of the Jews, even King of Kings and Lord of Lords. The attitude of the Jews here spoken of as His citizens is also the attitude of the vast majority of those who have heard of Him. But, sadder still, it seems to be the attitude of many who profess to be saved by Him. They are willing to let Him be to them Jesus, their Saviour, but not willing to let Him be their Lord and Master.

15. He will return in due time, and He will first reckon with His servants as to their faithfulness in His absence. The judgment seat of Christ, mentioned only in Rom. xiv, 10, II Cor. v, 10, seems to be only for believers, those whose judgment for sin was forever settled in the sufferings of their substitute on Calvary. They will appear before Him to receive their rewards for service and their places in His kingdom. See I Cor. iii, 11-15; Rev. xxii, 12; Luke xiv, 14; II John viii. The first of these passages indicates the possibility of being saved and yet being unrewarded; the others incite to such service as shall be rewarded. That the saints shall share the kingdom with Him is seen in Dan. vii, 27; Ps. cxlix; John xvii, 22; I Cor. vi, 2.

16, 17. Here is a faithful servant, and his place in the kingdom will be to rule over ten cities. Although he had not a large sphere, he had been a good servant. He had walked uprightly before God and had lived unto Him. He had been a faithful servant and had sought to please His master, and not people.

18, 19. Here is another good servant who is to rule over five cities, for the pound in his hands had gained five pounds. Perhaps he had not such opportunities as the first, but he had been faithful, and the Lord finds no fault with him, but rewards him according to his labors. Observe that neither of these servants takes any credit to himself. They do not say I gained ten pounds, or I gained five pounds, but they say to their Lord, "Thy pound hath gained ten pounds, or five pounds." Paul says, "I labored more abundantly than they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me" (I Cor. xv, 10), and again, "It is God who worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure" (Phil. ii, 13, and Heb. xiii, 21).

20, 21. Here is a wicked servant who does not know his lord, for he calls him an austere man, a hard and unjust master. He had made no use of the pound intrusted to him. He had not lived for his master and for his master's benefit, but for himself. He had never enjoyed his Master's service, but rather felt it a bondage to belong to him. How many there are who talk just so! If not in words, their lives talk that way? Are they saved? God only knows. The New Testament says that Lot was a righteous man, but the Old Testament story would never lead us to think so. We are not to judge before the time until the Lord come.

22, 23. He should have had his Lord's return ever before him, and the great fact of a time of reckoning, and that would have made him a better servant. There is no more quickening, sanctifying, inspiring truth than that of the Lord's return and its possibility at any time. There is no more deadening thing than to say, "My Lord delayeth His coming. He will not come in my day anyway."

24-26. Thus this unfaithful servant loses his pound. The pound, therefore, could not mean salvation, for God does not give salvation and then take it away (John x, 27, 28). A child of God by faith in Christ Jesus can never cease to be a child of God, but a child of God may be a selfish, disobedient child as to his service and thus lose his rewards, but he himself saved, yet so as by fire (I Cor. iii, 15).

27. These were openly His enemies all through, and their doom is fixed. The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power (II Thess. i, 7-9). These shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal (Math. xxv, 46).

A CASE OF HEREDITY

The Strange Romance of Walborg Ndzki, Who Had the Blood of Hungarian Kings, Gypsy Queens and Norse Sailors In Her Veins.

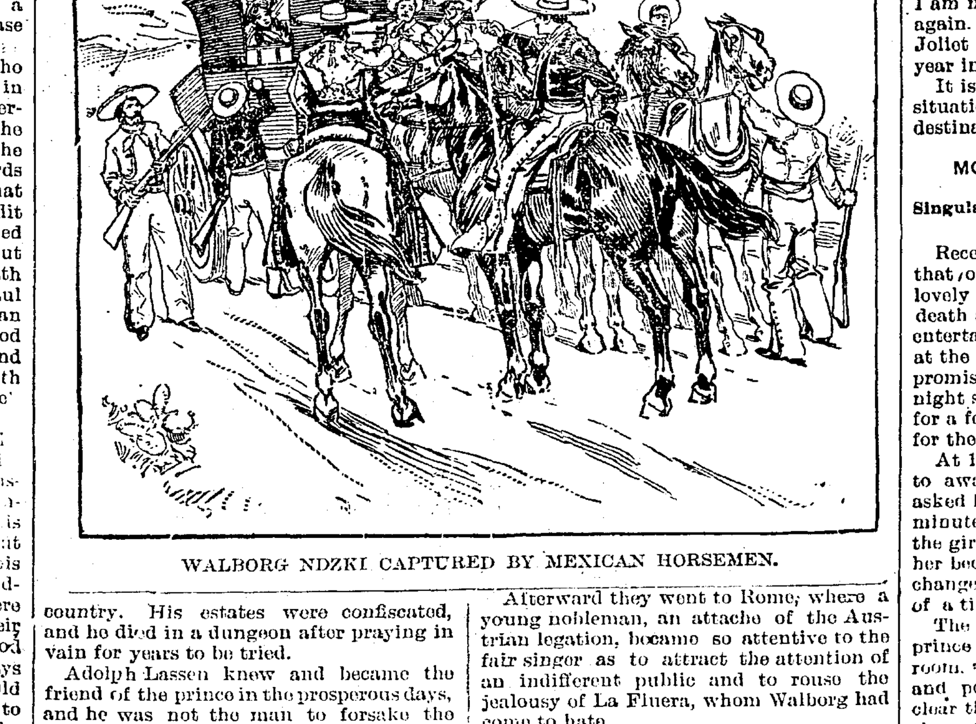

STUDENTS of human nature assure us—and all must agree with them—that the three controlling influences in the formation of character are heredity, environment and education. The story of Walborg Ndzki's life goes to prove this belief.

To the Anglo-Saxon ear the name Walborg has rather a masculine sound, yet it is one of the most favored names for the gentler sex in Norway. This is how it came to be given to one of the most beautiful Hungarian women of modern times.

Early in the century Adolph Lassen, a young architect, left his native Christiania to seek his fortune at Budapest, where great public works were being undertaken. With the clear brain, strong frame and thoroughness of his race Adolph Lassen soon found a place and prospered greatly. He became a great builder, a daring speculator along productive lines and finally a very rich man.

In the midst of Lassen's success there came to Budapest, ever famous for its beautiful and winsome women, a certain Mena Ndzki, the daughter of a morganatic marriage between Prince Louis Ndzki of Hungary and a young gypsy singer and dancer, whose grace, beauty and varied accomplishments made her admirers willing to die for her and to kill each other.

This marriage, although irregular, was legal, and the child took her father's name. It should be said to the credit of the Hungarian prince that he never took another wife. At the time of his marriage to the beautiful gypsy songstress the prince was rich, but he was an intense patriot and chafed under the forced Austrian alliance. He was finally detected in a conspiracy to overthrow Austria and free his country. His estates were confiscated, and he died in a dungeon after praying in vain for years to be tried.

Adolph Lassen knew and became the friend of the prince in the prosperous days, and he was not the man to forsake the Hungarian when disaster came. He visited him in prison and promised to care for his wife and daughter after he was gone. The gypsy wife did not long survive her husband. Lassen had never seen the mother or daughter, and he was about to make inquiries for the latter, when Budapest glowed with the announcement of a new lyric star of extreme youth and unsurpassed beauty.

After some inquiries and before he had seen her Adolph Lassen, now a rich bachelor of 38, satisfied himself that the new star, over whom not only the patriotic Hungarians, but the Austrians of Budapest, were raving, was the daughter of the robbed and murdered friend, Prince Louis Ndzki. He heard the girl sing, then sought an interview, and from that day on the descendant of the vikings became as ardent as if all his blood came from tropic sources.

Mena Ndzki knew of him well and favorably. She was 20 years younger than Lassen, but the tall, blond giant won her, and she loved him with all the fervor of her ardent nature. The two were married, and to the great disgust of the gilded youth of Budapest Mena Ndzki left the stage.

Mme. Lassen hated Austria with an undying hate, and she soon succeeded in bringing her husband to feel as she did. He already believed in the Hungarian cause.

Three years after their marriage, which was in 1840, a daughter was born, and with his dead mother and his Norwegian home ever in mind Adolph Lassen named the child Walborg Ndzki.

Lassen met Kossuth and his associates and pledged with them his life and fortune to the liberation of Hungary. At length quiet plotting became open revolt and Lassen, who had been a soldier in his youth, moved his family within the patriot lines and became head of the engineer corps. He was declared an outlaw and his property in and about Budapest was confiscated by the Austrian authorities.

Colonel Lassen did not live to witness the overthrow of the Hungarians and the tightening of the chains. He was killed in one of the battles that destroyed the power of Kossuth and withered the hopes of the patriots.

When the end came, Mme. Lassen and her little daughter were practically friendless and actually penniless, and she would have suffered had not her mother's kinsmen, the gypsies, come to her assistance. She was still young, beautiful and gifted, and it was decided that she should return to the stage, resuming the name Ndzki for purely business reasons.

Mme. Ndzki re-entered the profession in the city where she had left off, and if her reception was not so ardent as on her first appearance it brought the one thing for which she was now striving—money.

While the mother was winning hearts and ducats in the principal cities of Europe Walborg, the one object of all her efforts, was kept at the best schools. She grew up to be a marvel of beauty.

When Walborg Ndzki was 18, her mother died suddenly in Vienna, leaving her a fortune of nearly $200,000. The girl was wonderfully gifted in the languages and arts, but she knew but little of the great world.

Through all her life the nomad spirit of the gypsy in her nature was ever demanding change, and the inherited love for the stage amounted to a passion.

Some time after her mother's death Walborg Ndzki visited the opera house in Vienna with some school friends. It was the first time she had been inside a theater, for her mother had been careful to keep her away. The garish splendor of the place, the brilliant uniforms of the many officers present and the rich dresses of the women charmed her, but when the curtain rose, and the stage was fitted with graceful figures, and the dome throbbed with music, the emotional girl was fascinated.

That night Walborg Ndzki left the opera house madly in love with the Italian tenor, La Fluera, and in some inexplicable way his eyes met hers in the audience, and he sought her out the next day. The end of this was a marriage before the end of the week. Under her mother's will Walborg was to have control of one-half the money when she was 18 and the rest at the age of 21. Under the Austrian law the husband came into possession of the wife's estate, but so trusting and ignorant was Walborg that she would have discounted the future for her husband if she could.

Mean and mercenary La Fluera soon saw other sources of profit in his beautiful wife. Her person was perfect, and with a little stage training her voice could be made a diamond mine. The young wife, although her husband's treatment soon became cold and cruel, entered with such energy and enthusiasm on her studies that within a year she achieved a grand success in opera at La Scala in Milan.

Afterward they went to Rome, where a young nobleman, an attache of the Austrian legation, became so attentive to the fair singer as to attract the attention of an indifferent public and to rouse the jealousy of La Fluera, whom Walborg had come to hate.

It is said a duel was fought down the Tiber, but be that as it may La Fluera was found there dead and with a purple spot above his heart. Soon after this the young Austrian, Graf von Lederer, was recalled to Vienna, whither Walborg Ndzki—this was her nom de theatre—followed.

Two months afterward the count and Walborg were married and the best society of the Austrian capital professed to be very much shocked at the young man's recklessness and the audacity of what they called "the young adventuress."

That the count loved his wife is pretty certain, but there is not a doubt as to his weakness. After six months he permitted his friends to secure a divorce for him. He was never married again, and was killed a few years after at the battle of Sadowa.

But a still greater change was about to come to the life of Walborg Ndzki. It seems that when she was singing at Milan the Grand Duchess Charlotte, wife of Maximilian, brother of the Austrian emperor, heard her and became charmed with her grace and beauty. And now the attention of the grand duchess was called to her again by her divorce from Graf von Lederer.

Taking advantage of the civil war in the United States, the French emperor had invaded Mexico and had offered Maximilian the throne of the Montezumas. Urged on by his brilliant and ambitious wife, Maximilian consented to become emperor of Mexico, and at once a court was organized in Vienna and began its dress rehearsals.

The embryo empress sought out Walborg Ndzki and offered her a place in her suit, and, disgusted with the old world and eager for change, the young woman gladly accepted the royal offer. Like one to the manner born Walborg fell into the ways of royalty, and there was good reason for it. Had she not the blood of Hungarian princes and gypsy queens, not to mention the brave currents of the vikings, in her veins?

Long before the royal party reached the City of Mexico Major Gerard, who represented Napoleon III on Maximilian's staff and who had a wife in France, fell desperately in love with the beautiful attendant of the empress. Such occurrences are not unusual in such society. It is very certain, though, that Walborg did not encourage Major Gerard. The French secretary of the emperor, Captain Maurel, had already interested her affections.

A duel arising from this was arranged between the two French admirers of Walborg Ndzki, but before it could be fought the major was killed in a fight with Guarez at Puebla. A month after the coronation of Maximilian Captain Maurel and Walborg were married, the emperor and empress being present.

In 1865 a young Mexican colonel named Manuel Navarro, who was a native of Guatemala, but had pledged his fortune and sword for the freedom of Mexico, was wounded and captured under conditions that led to his being tried and condemned to death as a spy. Navarro, strikingly brave and handsome, won the sympathy of Walborg, who was a republican at heart. She succeeded in bribing the guard, and the result was the escape of the young colonel to his friends. Muriel was suspected of aiding in the escape. His wife told the truth, but this was taken as an evidence of wifely fidelity. He was sent back to France in disgrace, where he died shortly after.

Late in 1866 Walborg Ndzki, who had been to visit her royal mistress, then stopping at Queretaro, was returning in a carriage to the capital, was captured by a band of Mexican horsemen and carried as a hostage to the camp of the patriot general, Porforio Diaz, in Tamaulipas. She was kindly cared for and sent to Chihuahua, where the sisters gave her a home and she soon won all hearts. As no effort was made to release her, she taught school till May, 1867, when the emperor was captured and shot.

Left to herself, she accepted the offer of marriage made her by a rich Mexicanized American named Head, or Cabesa. Death ended this alliance in six months. Walborg now decided to return to the land of her birth, and with this purpose in mind she made her way back to Mexico, where the republic had succeeded the empire. She there met young Navarro, whose life she had saved. As a result of this meeting Walborg Ndzki went to Guatemala as the wife of Colonel Navarro.

For ten years her life was happy and a son and daughter were born to her. In 1878 her husband, then a governor of one of the provinces, was assassinated by revolutionists. Walborg Ndzki gathered what money she could and with her children went to Budapest, where she was living honored and much beloved in 1893.

ALFRED R. CALHOUN.

HE LIKES CHICAGO.

Would Rather Be In Jail There Than Without Money In Mexico.

"I would rather be in jail in Chicago than without money in Mexico," remarked Christopher A. Larrabee, with a smile. Larrabee, who is a nephew of ex-Governor Larrabee of Iowa, was taken at his word and lodged in the Cook county jail. Embezzlement is the charge against him. It is asserted that, while acting as bookkeeper and cashier for Boyd, Stickney & Co., wholesale dealers in coal, Larrabee appropriated $15,000 to his own use. When his peculations were discovered, a little over a year ago, he fled, going to Mexico.

"A man who has never lived among greasers can have no conception of how contemptible they are," continued Larrabee. "They treat a man like a dog when his money is gone. He is all right as long as he has money. My money soon disappeared, and I had to stay among the greasers. It was either that or walk. Walking in Mexico is not a pleasant pastime. One can walk 40 miles without seeing a house, and when you do reach a habitation you are liable to encounter a greaser who will rob you if you have anything he can steal. I am more than satisfied to be in Chicago again. In fact, I would rather go to the Joliet penitentiary than remain another year in Mexico."

It is well for Larrabee that he takes the situation philosophically, for Joliet is his destination.

MOTH ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Singular Defense Advanced to Exculpate an Accused Prince.

Recent murder mysteries serve to recall that of Princess Caravella, a singularly lovely woman who met with a violent death at Naples. The princess had been entertaining a party of friends at dinner at the Caravella palace, and as she had promised to attend a ball toward midnight she went to her bedroom to lie down for a few minutes' rest to refresh herself for the dance.

At 11 o'clock her maid entered the room to awaken her, whereupon the princess asked her to return a little later, and 20 minutes afterward, when she returned, the girl found her mistress still lying on her bed with scarcely a muscle of the face changed, but stone dead, with the mark of a tiny bullet in the region of the heart.

The maid's shrieks quickly brought the prince and the whole household to the room, and within ten minutes the judicial and police authorities arrived. It was clear that no stranger had fired the shot, since the bedroom was situated on the third floor and no one had entered the gates of the palace between the hour of 10 and midnight.

At length the prince was arrested on a charge of having murdered his wife with the little pistol which lay by her side on the table and one chamber of which was empty, color being lent to the accusation by the fact that he was notoriously jealous.

His trial resulted in acquittal, partly in consequence of an extraordinary piece of testimony which was produced in court by one of the police officials. The story he related was this:

A couple of days after the murder, on the removal of the seals from the doors of the bedroom, he had made a careful investigation of the apartment and had found on the floor by the bedside one of those enormous night moths the bodies of which are almost as thick as a man's thumb and which abound in Italy.

He declared that the moth's wings were badly singed, as if it had flown against the candle that stood on the table by the bedside. He produced the moth in court and then proceeded to point out to the judges that some of the powder of the insect's wings was apparent on the black ebony and gold stock and trigger of the little revolver which had been found on the table and with which the shooting had been done.

He then called the attention of the judges and jury to the phenomenal facility with which the trigger yielded and advanced the extraordinary argument that the princess had been murdered by the night moth, which, he alleged, must have flown into the room, attracted by the candle light, and falling with singed wings on to the table had discharged the revolver in the violence of its contortions.

Matrimonial Brokerage.

A jury in Judge Tuthill's court in Chicago, April 20, agreed that Ernest Buse, who arrived from British Columbia two years ago, must pay $960 as a commission to William Fruin, a real estate agent, for getting Buse a wife. Fruin introduced a woman worth $8,000 to $10,000 to Buse, and they were married, but the husband paid only $40 on account of the $1,000 which he had promised to pay for a suitable wife. The defendant entered a formal plea, but did not defend the case in court. Fruin said it was only a side deal with him

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

A Patriotic Discourse to the National Legislators.

A Plea for Recognition of God in the Constitution—Protest Against the Appropriation of Money for Sectarian Schools.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage took for the subject of a sermon before his Washington congregation: "Before They Adjourn," having reference to the early dispersal of congress. His text was:

And teach his senators wisdom.—Psalms cv., 22.

Senators in this text stand for lawmakers. Joseph was the lord treasurer of the Egyptian government, and among other great things which he did, according to my text, was to teach his senators wisdom; and if any man on earth ought to be endowed with wisdom it is senators, whether they stand in congress, parliaments, or reichstag, or legislatures. By their decisions nations go up or down. Law-makers are sometimes so tempted by prejudices, by sectional preferences, by opportunity of personal advancement, and sometimes what is best to do is so doubtful that they ought to be prayed for and encouraged in every possible way, instead of severely criticised and blamed and excoriated, as is much of time the case. Our public men are so often the target to be shot at, merely because they obtain eminence which other men wanted but could not reach, that more injustices are hurled at our national legislature than the people of the United States can possibly imagine. The wholesale belying of our public men is simply damnable. By residence in Washington I have come to find out that many of our public men are persistently misrepresented, and some of the best of them, the purest in their lives and most faithful in the discharge of their duties, are the worst defamed. Some day I want to preach a sermon from the text in II. Peter: "They are not afraid to speak evil of dignities. Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accusation against them before the Lord. But these, as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not." So constant and malignant is the work of depreciation and scandalization in regard to our public men that all over the land there are those who suppose that the city of Washington is the center of all corruption, while, what with its parks, and its equestrian statuary, and its wide streets, and its architectural symmetries, and its lovely homes, it is not only the most beautiful city under the sun, but has the highest style of citizenship. I have seen but one intoxicated man in the more than six months of my residence, and I do not think any man can give similar testimony to any other city on the American continent.

The gavels of our two houses of national legislature will soon fall, and adjournment of two bodies of men as talented, as upright, and as patriotic as ever graced the capitol will take place. The two or three unfortunate outbreaks which you have noticed only make more conspicuous the dignity, the fraternity, the eloquence, the fidelity which have characterized these two bodies during the long months of important and anxious deliberation. We put a halo around great men of the past because they were so rare in their time. Our senate and house of representatives have five such men where once they had one. But it will not be until after they are dead that they will get appreciated. The world finds it safer to praise the dead than the living, because the departed, having a heavy pile of marble above them, may not rise to become rivals. But before the gavels of adjournment drop and the doors of Capitol Hill shut, there are one or two things that ought to be done, and let us pray to God that they may be accomplished. More forcibly than ever before, congress has been implored to acknowledge God in our constitution. The Methodist church, a church which is always doing glorious things, has, in its recent Wilmington conference, requested our congress to amend the immortal document, which has been the foundation and wall and dome of our United States government, by inserting the words: "Trusting in Almighty God." If that amendment is made, it will not only please all the good people of the country, but will please the heavens. It was only an oversight or a mental accident that the fathers who made the constitution did not insert a divinely worshipful sentence. They all, so far as they amounted to anything, believed in "God, the Father Almighty, the Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son." The constitution would have been a failure had it not been for the Divine interference. The members of the convention could agree on nothing until, in response to Benjamin Franklin's request that the meeting be opened by prayer, the Lord was called on to interfere and help, and then the way was cleared, and all the states signed the document; a historical fact that all the rat-terriers of modern infidelity can not bark out of existence!

I know that there was an exception to the fact that the prominent men of those times were good men. Tom Paine, a libertine and a sot, did not believe in anything good until he was dying, and then he shrieked out for God's mercy. And Ethan Allen, from one of whose descendants I have received within a few days a confirmation of the incident I mentioned in a recent sermon, as saying to his dying daughter that she had better take her mother's Christian religion than his own infidelity. The article sent me says: "The story has been denied by some of the Allen family, but the Bronson family, some of whom were with the dying girl, affirm that it is substantially true. In such a manner one confirmation is worth more than many denials." So says the article sent me. There is no doubt that Ethan Allen was the vulgarist sort of an infidel, for, sitting in a Presbyterian church, his admirers say he struck the pew in front of him and swore out loud, so as to disturb the meeting, and no gentleman would do that. I do not wonder that some of his descendants are ashamed of him; but of course they could not help it, and are not to blame. But all the decent men of the revolution believed in God, and our American congress, now assembled, will only echo the sentiments of the fathers when they enthrone the name of God in the constitution. We have now more reason for inserting that acknowledgment of Divinity than our fathers had. Since then the continent has been peopled, and great cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific built, and and all in peace, showing that there must have been supernal supervisal. Since then the war of 1812, and ours the victory! Since then the great financial prostrations, out of which we came to greater prosperity than anything that preceded. Since then sanguinary 1862, 1863, 1864 and 1865, and notwithstanding the fact that all the foreign despotism were planning for our demolition, we are a united people, and to-morrow you will find in both houses of congress the men who fought for the north and the south, now sitting side by side, armed with no weapon except the pen, with which they write home to their constituents who want to be appointed postmasters.

The man who can not see God in our American history is as blind of soul as he would be blind of body if he could not at 12 o'clock of an unclouded noon see the sun in the heavens. As a matter of gratitude to Almighty God, gentlemen of the American congress, be pleased to insert the four words suggested by the Methodist conference! Not only because of the kindness of God to this nation in the past should such a reverential insertion be made, but because of the fact that we are going to want Divine interposition still further in our national history. This gold and silver question will never be settled until God settles it. This question of tariff and free trade will never be settled until God settles it. The question between the east and the west, which is getting hotter and hotter, and looks toward a republic of the Pacific, will not be settled until God settles it. We needed God in the 120 years of our past national life, and we will need Him still more in the next 120 years. Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates of our glorious constitution, and let the King of Glory come in! Make one line of that immortal document radiant with Omnipotence! Spell at least one word with Thrones! At the beginning, or at the close, or in the center, recognize Him from whom as a nation we have received all the blessing of the past and upon whom we are dependent for the future. Print that word "God," or "Lord," or "Eternal Father," or "Ruler of Nations," somewhere between the first word and the last. The great expounder of the constitution sleeps at Marshfield, Mass., the Atlantic ocean still humming near his pillow of dust its prolonged lullaby; but is there not some one now living, who, in the white marble palace of the nation on yonder hill not ten minutes away, will become the irradiator of the constitution by causing to be added the most tremendous word of our English vocabulary, the name of that Being before whom all nations must bow or go into defeat and annihiliation—"God?"

Again before the approaching adjournment of our American congress, it ought to be decidedly and forever settled that no appropriation be made to sectarian schools, and that the courtship between church and state in this country be forever broken up. That question already seems temporarily settled. All schools and all institutions, as well as all denominations should stand on the same level before American law. Emperor Alexander of Russia, at his Peterhof palace, asked me how many denominations of religion there were in America, and I recited their names as well as I could. Then he asked me the difference between them, and there I broke down. But when I told him that no religious denomination in America had any privileges above the others, he could hardly understand it. The Greek church first in Russia. The Lutheran church first in Germany. The Episcopal church first in England. The Catholic church first in Rome. Mohammedanism first in Constantinople. The emperor wondered how it was possible that all the denominations in America could stand on the same platform. But so it is, and so let it ever be. Let there be no preference, no partiality, no attempt to help one sect an inch higher than another. Washington and Jefferson, and all the early presidents and all the great statesmen of the past, have lifted their voice against any such tendency. If a school or an institution can not stand without the prop of a national appropriations, then let that school or that institution go down. On the other side of the sea the world has had plenty of illustrations of church and state united. Let us have none of the hypocrisy and demoralization born of that relation on this side of the Atlantic. Let that denomination come out ahead that does the most for the cause of God and humanity. Men, institutions and religions getting what they achieve by their own right are of usefulness, and not by the favoritism of government. As you regard the welfare and perpetuity of our institutions, keep politics out of religion.

But now, that I am speaking of national affairs from a religious standpoint, I bethink myself of the fact that two other gavels will soon lift and fall, the one at St. Louis and the other at Chicago, and before those national conventions adjourn, I ask that they acknowledge God in the platforms. The men who construct those platform are here this morning, or will read these words. Let no political party think it can do its duty unless it acknowledges that God who built this continent, and revealed it at the right time to the discoverer, and who has reared here a prosperity which has been given to no other people. "Oh!" says some one, "there are people in this country who do not believe in a God, and it would be an insult to them. "Well there are people in this country who do not believe in common decency, or common honesty, or any kind of government, preferring anarchy. Your very platform is an insult to them. You ought not to regard a man who does not believe in God any more than you should regard a man who refuses to believe in common decency. Your pocketbook is not safe a moment in the presence of an atheist. God is the only source of good government. Why not, then, say so, and let the chairman of the committee on resolutions in your national conventions take a pen full of ink and with bold hand head the document with one significant "Whereas," acknowledging the goodness of God in the past, and begging His kindness and protection for the future. Why, my friends this country belongs to God, and we ought in every possible way to acknowledge it. From the moment that, on an October morning in 1492, Columbus looked over the side of the ship and saw the carved staff which made him think he was near an inhabited country, and saw also a thorn and a cluster of berries (type of our history ever since, the piercing sorrows and cluster of national joys), until this hour our country has been bounded on the north, south, east and west by the goodness of God. The Huguenots took possession of the Carolinas, in the name of God. William Penn settled Philadelphia in the name of God. The Hollanders took possession of New York in the name of God. The Pilgrim Fathers settled in New England, in the name of God. Preceding the first gun of Bunker Hill, at the voice of prayer all heads uncovered. In the war of 1812, an officer came to Gen. Andrew Jackson and said: "There is an unusual noise in the camp; it ought to be stopped." Gen. Jackson said, "What is the noise?" The officer said, "It is the voice of prayer and praise." Then the general said, "God forbid that prayer and praise should be an unusual noise in the encampment. You had better go and join them." Prayer at Valley Forge. Prayer at Monmouth. Prayer at Atlanta. Prayer at South Mountain. Prayer at Gettysburg. "Oh!" says some infidel, "the northern people prayed on one side and the southern people prayed on the other side, and so it did not amount to anything." And I have heard good Christian people confounded with the infidel statement, when it is as plain to me as my right hand. Yes; the northern people prayed in one way, and the southern people prayed in another way, and God answered in His own way, giving to the north the reestablishment of the government, and giving to the south larger opportunities, larger than she had ever anticipated, the harnessing of her rivers in great manufacturing interests, until the Mobile and the Tallapoosa and the Chattahoochee are southern Merrimacs, and the unrolling of great southern mines of coal and iron, of which the world knew nothing, and opening before her opportunities of wealth which will give 99 per cent. more of affluence than she ever possessed; and instead of the black hands of American slaves, there are the more industrious black hands of the coal and iron mines of the south, which are achieving for her fabulous and unimagined wealth.

And there are domes of white blossoms where spread the white tents,
And there are plows in the tracks where the wagons went,
And there are songs where they lifted up Rachael's lament.

I take a step further and say that before the gavels of our senate and house of representatives and our political conventions pound adjournment there ought to be passed a law or adopted a plank of intelligent helpfulness for the great foreign populations which are coming among us. It is too late now to discuss whether we had better let them come. They are here. They are coming this moment through the narrows. They are this moment taking the first full inhalation of the free air of America. And they will continue to come as long as this country is the best place to live in. You might as well pass a law prohibiting summer bees from alighting on a field of blossoming buckwheat; you might as well prohibit the stags of the mountain from coming down to the deer-licks, as to prohibit the hunger-bitten nations of Europe from coming to this land of bread—as to prohibit the people of England, Ireland, Scotland, Italy, Norway, Sweden and Germany working themselve to death on small wages on the other side of the sea, from coming to this land where there are the largest compensations under the sun. Why did God spread out the prairies of the Dakotas and roll the precious ores into Colorado? It was that all the earth might come and plow, and come and dig. Just as long as the centrifugal force of foreign despotisms throw them off, just so long will the cintripetal force of American institutions draw them here. And that is what is going to make this the mightest nation on the earth, intermarriage of nationalities! Not circle intermarrying circle, and nation intermarrying nation. But it is going to be Italian and Norwegian, Russia and Celt, Scotch and French, English and American. The American of a hundred years from now is to be different from the American of to-day. German brain, Irish wit, French civility, Stotch firmness, English loyalty, Italian æsthetics packed into one man, and he an American! It is this intermarriage of nationalities that is going to make the American nation, the greatest nation of the age.

But what are we doing for the moral and intellectual culture of the 500,000 foreigners who came in one year, and the 600,000 who came in another year, and the 800,000 who came in another year, and the 1,000,000 who are coming into our various American ports? What are doing for them? Well, we are doing a great deal for them. We steal their baggage as soon as they get here. We send them up to a boarding house where the least they lose is their money. We swindle them within ten minutes after they get ashore. We are doing a great deal for them. But what are we doing to introduce them into the duties of good citizenship? Many of them never saw a ballot-box. Many of them never heard of the constitution of the United States. Many of them have no acquaintance with our laws. Now, I say, let the government of the United States, so commanded by one political party or both political parties, to give every immigrant who lands here a volume, in good type and well bound for long usage—a volume containing the Declaration of Independence, the constitution of the United States and a chapter on the spirit of our government. Let there be such a book on the shelf of every free library in America. While the American Bible society puts into the right hand of every immigrant a copy of the Holy Scriptures, let the government of the United States, commanded by some political party, put into the left hand of every immigrant a volume instructing him into the duties of good citizenship. There are thousands of foreigners in this land who need to learn that the ballot-box is not a foot-stool, but a throne—not something to put your foot on, but something to bow before.

There are three great reasons why you and I should do out best for this country—three great reasons; Our fathers' graves, our cradle, our children's birthright. When I say your fathers' graves, your pulses run quickly. Whether they sleep in city cemetery or country graveyard, their dust is very precious to you. I think they lived well and that they died right. Never submit to have any government over their tombs other than that government under which they lived and died. And then this country is our cradle. It may have rocked us very roughly, but it was a good cradle to be rocked in. Oh, how much we owe to it! Our boyhood and girlhood, it was spent in this blessed country. I never have any patience with a man who talks against this country. Glorious place to be born in, and a glorious place to live in. It has been our cradle. Aye! it is to be our children's birthright. You and I will soon be through. We will, perhaps, see a few more spring blossoms, and we will, perhaps, see a few more summer harvests, and we will, perhaps, gather a few more autumnal fruits; but we are to hand this government to our children as it was handed to us—a free land, a happy land, a Christian land. They are not to be trampled by despotism. They are not to be lacerated by cruelties. They are not to be frightened by anarchies. We must hand this government to them over the ballot-box, over the school desk, over the church altar, as we have received it, and charge them solemnly to put their life between it and any keen stroke that would destroy it.

Go home to-day in high hopes of the future. The Eternal God is on the side of this nation. Our brightest days are yet to come.

He hath sounded forth the trumpet that will never call retreat,
He is sifting out the hearts of men before the Judgment Seat.
Be swift my soul to answer Him, be jubilant my feet: Our God is marching on.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

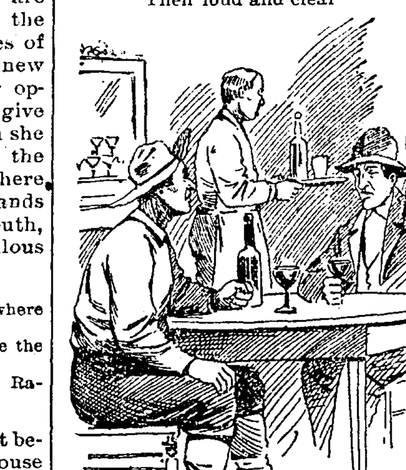

THE LAST GLASS.

A merry crowd, a careless throng,
Where foaming glasses, jest and song
Filled up the hours,
There gather'd rough-bearded men
And fair-faced boys, within that den
Of Satan's powers.

One came as often as the rest,
To share the flowing wine and jest;
With reckless air,
As if pursued by fiends within
He sought the place where drink and din
Soon banished care.

One night the usual glass was poured,
Amid the revel songs encored
By those who heard,
The poison almost finds his lips—
When from his hand the goblet slips,
Without a word.

A muttered oath—a dogged air—
A sudden lull—a general stare—
Then loud and clear

"I CANNOT DRINK THAT GLASS."

He spoke: "Fill me another glass;
My nerves are shaky—let it pass—
Here's to all here."

He lifted up the glass again,
But set it down and faced the men
Who sat around.
"Boys," and his voice was hoarse with dread,
"I cannot drink that glass," he said—
A sudden sound,

Like a smothered laugh—then his face,
All stern and white, subdued the place,
And silence fell.
"I cannot drink it, for there lies
Within its depths a pair of eyes,
Like Heaven in hell.

"I cannot drink it, for there swims
A face above the foam that brims—
The face of one
Whose heart would ache to see me here.
Whose heart would break, I am so dear;
Boys, I am done—

"Done with the poison; here's my hand.
With God's help I mean to stand
By all I say;
And stand by her whose dear face lies
Between me and the revelries
I leave to-day."

—Detroit Free Press.

SOCIAL LIFE OF SALOON.

Herein Lies Its Stronghold and at This Point It Must Be Attacked.

Those who intelligently seek to consider the drink problem in all its phases are more and more coming to the inevitable conclusion that the drinking habit grows largely out of the social instincts of mankind, especially of the poorer classes, rather than from any inherent purpose to drink for the sake of drinking. And right there we find the reason for the existence of the saloon. It meets the side of a man's life which is real, and the substitute must have the same note and tone if it is to have the same successful appeal to human needs. It is not the drink so much as the good-fellowship which is desired, and it has often been suggested that if free and open clubs were provided, so that men could come together and feel at home, and call them their own, they would be more than a match for the saloon.

There are factors in the daily existence of the workingmen of our cities which cannot be ignored in the consideration of the abolition of the saloon, and the necessity of finding an acceptable substitute. We must consider the lives of the city laboring men, who live on poorly cooked food, in narrow limits, and have few of the comforts of home when they are through with the work of the day. When they have had supper, they either go to bed or turn out on the street, and unless there is a congenial place of resort nearby, the saloon is almost sure to draw them in. Where reading and recreation rooms have been provided, and no attempt has been made to do too much for the men, the efforts in their behalf have been most successful.

It has been proved by the actual test of experience that the daily bath, well cooked food and a clean and attractive home are the chief substitutes for that hankering after pleasurable sensations that impels many men to resort to drink. They take away the desire for it, and the substitutes for the saloon are not, therefore, any great and original changes, but chiefly the mending of what is wrong in the daily social life of the people. Meet the instincts that lead men to the saloon in some other sensible and honest way, and the substitute is revealed. It was found that when we go down to the plain facts of life, it is the changing of bad conditions in the lives of the people that chiefly leads to the correction of what is wrong.

The problem is thus shown to be sociological with regard to a large and increasing class of the population. It is the social side of the saloon which makes it such a power in our crowded cities, and which renders it an impossibility, in the belief of many clergymen, scientific men and others who have given the mater much study, to abolish it therein unless some acceptable substitute can be found. If this can be done, the men who now flock into saloons to pass their leisure time will abandon them, and the saloon will die out for lack of patronage. The facts here set forth are worthy the careful study of all who take an intelligent interest in the problem of how to pulverize the rum power.—Toledo Blade.

WINE-DRINKING COUNTRIES.

Facts Which Go to Prove That Mild Stimulants Are Not Conducive to Sobriety.

In some quarters a plea is made for the use of wines, as tending to temperance by displacing stronger drinks, the wine-drinking countries of Europe have been cited as the standing proof of the greater sobriety of the people using such mild stimulants. But the fact is that the wine-drinking countries are rapidly sinking into gross intemperance. Americans who have visited France and Italy at intervals of a few years tell us that the deterioration is painfully manifest. Concerning France we find the following statement: "In the year 1870 there was one drinking place in the country for every 113 citizens, and now there is one for every 84, and in Paris even one for every 60. In 1830 the average consumption of strong drink per citizen was 1.12 liters and now this has increased to 4.04 liters." The increase of intemperance is creating alarm, and the government is beginning to investigate the subject.—United Presbyterian.

A Standing Disgrace.

The bishop of London recently, in introducing the temperance delegation to the prime minister, pointed out that, whereas it takes 1,000 people to support a baker's shop, and 700 or 800 to maintain a butcher, both dealing in the necessaries of life, there is in many parts of Great Britain a public house to every 100 or 120 inhabitants. This is a standing disgrace to the country.—Christian Work.

A PLEA FOR THE CHILDREN.

Importance of Instilling Total Abstinence Principles in the Young.

No one doubts that children would be safer in prosecuting the journey of life were they fortified against temptation by the principle of abstinence. What, then, is the duty of parents? Why should they deny their children the additional protection which this principle affords, and in the inculcation of this principle how important its practice on the part of parents. How grievously do some parents mistake their relation to their little ones. Flowers they think they are to perfume their wilderness journey! Yes, and if cultivated they will bloom and diffuse a sweet fragrance forever; but if neglected no deserted garden will send forth an influence half so noxious. Images of beauty, to impart to life the spirit of poetry! Ah, in that little one, now so apparently simple, there is a nature that may yet outrival an angel's grace or a devil's malignity. Playthings! If when gamboling around the parent's chair, or nestling in the parent's bosom, they could stand up in all the fullness of maturity, developed character, would not the parent grow pale and tremble before them? Go to yonder prison; enter its gloomiest and most securely guarded cell. Mark that sullen, hardened man, and as you shrink from the being whom a seductive world has betrayed recollect that that countenance, so scowling, once sent joy to a mother's heart, and that hardened nature was once tender and pliable. And had that father as he proudly viewed his boy, and that mother as she yearned over her first-born child, abandoned the ensnaring art of drinking and instilled into the opening mind a sense of its dangerous tendencies, this day might have found that desolate home happy, and one unfit for communion with his race an ornament of society and the stay of his parents' declining years.

Upon all temperance workers we urge the claims of the children. If they would work to the best advantage we plead with them to increase their efforts for the young—not that we would have them cease all efforts to reclaim and influence the old, but, while they are seeking to "cure," we pray they forget not to "prevent."

Here, fire has broken out in a row of buildings. In spite of every effort the fire gains headway. What's to be done? Dividing the force of the fire brigade, one party advances beyond the point at which the flames have reached and saturates the building with water so as to prevent the fire spreading. So, while temperance workers continue to ply the intemperate and their allies, the moderationists, with their cold-water arguments, we urge them not to forget to saturate the untouched portion of the community, and thus the enemy, when driven from his stronghold, will in vain seek refuge among those who have been forewarned of his insidiousness and fortified of his approach.—National Temperance Advocate.

STEPS TO DRUNKENNESS.

Scientific Analysis of the Conditions Which Precede Inebriety.

Inflammations, now recognized as proceeding from some specific causes, are in many cases followed by degenerations that naturally lead to impulsive demands for relief, which spirits or other narcotics temporarily supply. Degenerations from toxemias, and poisons formed both in and without the body, fall most heavily on the nerve centers, creating the same demand for relief. Alcohol, while bringing temporary relief, rapidly increases these very conditions by adding new toxines, and new and stronger impulses for help. The brain centers become more debilitated and incapable of recognizing the danger, and the degree of actual poisoning becomes more and more intense.

In many cases there is inherited a feeble power of resistance, and inability to react and recover from the strains of injurious agents from without or poisons generated within. Shocks and powerful emotional changes leave a permanent impress on the nerve centers. Poisons generated in the body or the first intoxication from spirits leaves degrees of degeneration from which there is no recovery. In a certain number of cases this defective organization shows a marked tendency to develop into certain forms of degeneration or disease processes. Inebriety, insanity and many of the allied neuroses are common. The tendency to either of these forms of disease may be seen in certain symptoms far in advance of its full development.—T. D. Crothers.

GENERAL GLEANINGS.

When the saloon dies, the devil will put on deep mourning.—Ram's Horn.

Liquor talks mighty loud when it gets out of the jug.—National Temperance Advocate

As a matter of fact, a saloon keeper cannot carry his screen beyond this life.—Attila, in Lever.

The descent from the elaborately furnished liquor palace to the low-class drinking den is both natural and rapid.—Christian Work.

When the corner stone of the Auburn prison was laid in 1886, a bottle of whisky was one of the articles inclosed in it. Strong drink is the main reason why we must have jails and prisons.—Pacific Ensign.

Miss Sherratt, M. A., of the London university, says she considers the chief cause of intemperance among women of the upper classes, is want of occupation, and the caste feeling which so isolates people in England.

Alcohol, taken as a beverage, is always injurious in proportion to the quantity taken, and the frequency of its use. Its use is therefore not only inexpedient as an injurious example, but is morally wrong, both as it endangers health and exposes to the insidious dominion of a deadly habit and countenances its production and use with all its sweeping desolations and woes.—Lyman Beecher, D. D.

An "Uncontaminated Zone."

In Paisley, Scotland, that part of the city in which are the famous Clark thread mills is styled an "uncontaminated zone"—that is, it contains no licensed houses for the sale of strong drink. A large, intelligent body of workingmen live here, in comfortable tenements, and they are glad to have no saloons in their midst. More than one attempt has of course been made to license a corner shop, but through the vigilance of watchful friends these have not succeeded. Barbour academy and a fine, new grammar school are soon to be erected in this favored district.—Christian Work.

Influence of Tobacco on the Blood.

The Popular Science News asserts that the injurious effects of tobacco-using upon the blood may be readily discovered by microscopical examination. In ordinary blood, corpuscles are sometimes noticed which are irregular in outline, presenting a crenated, or scalloped, appearance of their borders. These corpuscles are very rare, however, the proportion not being more than one to 300 or 400 of the ordinary corpuscles. In the blood of the tobacco-user, however, these crenated corpuscles are often found to be present in the proportion of one to ten.

HIS JOY.

"That my joy might remain in you."—John 15:11.

I heard with delight, at the close of the day,
The laughter and song of the youthful and gay,
And joined in accord with the jubilant strain;
But I knew in my heart that it could not remain.

I looked on the favored, the wealthy and great,
Who seek in the outward their highest estate:
But their mirth was a mockery. Pleasures are vain
That depend on the shadow that cannot remain.

I turned to the toilers; no pleasure was found
In the wearisome labor, the unending round;
But the song that they sung had no accent of pain,
For within was a joy that must ever remain.

They say I am old; that the summer is past,
And the long-dreaded winter approaches at last;
But the song of my youth I am singing again,
Attuned by the joy that shall ever remain.

His joy He hath promised, abundant and free;
A "fullness of pleasures" for you and for me;
Making rich in adversity, joyful in pain—
A song in the soul that shall ever remain.

A YOUNG MAN'S BOAST.

The Weakness and Insufficiency of Human Power for Human Help.

This is preeminently the day of athletic achievements, and it is the fashion among young men to worship trained muscle. The young athlete in the incident we are about to relate, as told by Mr. Moody, was the champion of the town in which he lived. He could run faster and lift a heavier weight than any other man for miles around. Indeed, the fame of his strength had spread all over his native country. He was of good family—the son of a physician—a fine-looking fellow, tall and well-proportioned. His huge muscles were often shown to admiring groups. This fostered his egotism and led to such indulgence in athletic sports as had drawn him into doubtful associations.

It was in the autumn, and he was returning to his home, victorious after a series of amateur "events" at a neighboring fair, and almost insanely intoxicated with conceit because of his success. On his way, in passing a church, he was attracted by the singing, and stepped into what proved to be a religious gathering for prayer.

The clergyman in charge of the meeting was speaking about spiritual strength, and the weakness or insufficiency of human power or the ordinary powers of nature for human help, when compared with it.

A storm had arisen, and the wind almost drowned the speaker's words. People looked uncomfortable. In a lull in the tempest the preacher stopped for a moment, when the young man sprang to his feet, his face red, and his eyes blazing with indignation. This is what he is reported to have said:

"You all know me. Look here!" He spread his great arms before the people. "I could raise up a benchful of you with ease. The power you talk about can't do that. God may hurt you, but He can't hurt me."

A shocked silence followed the conceited and presumptuous boast. There was so much of audacity in the vaunt, and its blasphemy was so astounding, that the minister, as well as the audience, was disconcerted. The young man stalked out of the room, erect and arrogant. The effect of his impious intrusion was such that it was impossible to continue the meeting.

Before the closing hymn could be given out, however, a wild cry was heard. One or two men hurriedly left the church to ascertain its cause, and soon returned, bearing the form of the young man shorn of its arrogance and pride; and laid it upon the floor of the vestibule. There was a ghastly wound upon his head, and he was insensible.

For days the athlete lingered between life and death. A long illness followed, and he was unable to return to active life for a year. It was found upon investigation that a tile on a building near the church, loosened by the storm, had been hurled by the wind upon the young man's head as if guided by an unerring hand.

Since that hour, many a devout attendant upon the prayer-meeting has reverently asked the question whether the presumption there manifested met retribution by an outraged God in the event that followed, or whether it was a coincidence and devoid of supernatural significance.

Because of human limitations, it is not possible to give to the doubting mind an uncontrovertible answer to this question. God only knows. He does not ordinarily punish with such dramatic celerity men who boast of their independence of Him. Nevertheless, in a thousand ways He declares His dominion over us. It is an indication of wise discernment, and not of credulity, or of weakness of character, to recognize the power that manifestly controls the universe, and then to yield obedience to the spiritual laws that time and human history and Divine revelation show that that power has ordained.—Youth's Companion.

Theory and Practice.

Theoretically we agree with Mohammed when he says: "A man's true wealth is the good he does in this world." Practically, however, we do not blame the cat which devours the nightingale, and then glories in the survival of the fittest.—Homiletic Review.

THE LAW OF KINDNESS.

It Is the Exact Opposite of the Law of Retaliation.

The derivation of the word kindness shows that it is in the sanctuary of home it must be first learned and practiced. It is from the same root as kin and kindred—the feeling that ought to characterize our relations with our own family.

It is to be feared that the rudeness with which some of us do not scruple to treat our nearest relations, and would not dream of displaying to guests or friends, is a serious hindrance to the spirit of kindness that should prevail in our homes.

We express our opinions—unmasked—as to their faults and failings, we criticise their dress, their manner and their affairs generally with a freedom which we bitterly resent when it is applied to ourselves. We take pleasure in impaling their weaknesses on our spears of ridicule and holding them up to observation. We permit ourselves to speak impatiently, scornfully or fretfully to them, according to the mood that possesses us at the moment, while if they were indifferent acquaintances we should take pains to present at least a smooth front for their inspection.

We often love them a thousand times better than anyone else in the world. We would gladly run into danger to save them from suffering, bear pecuniary loss to insure their comfort, and defend them from outside attack with our last breath. Yet such is the extraordinary contradictoriness of human nature, we cannot persuade ourselves to treat them always with ordinary politeness. If we could we should bind them to us with a warmer affection than we can ever hope to gain while we persist in planting unkind thrusts, which our intimate knowledge of their infirmities permits us to deliver with a cruel directness no enemy could attain to, however skillful he might be.

The law of kindness is the exact opposite of the fierce lex talionis, the law of retaliation and retribution, which is most congenial to our unregenerate nature. It is not for nothing that we find the exhortation runs: "Be kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another." True kindness of heart does not harbor the wish to injure others, it forgives almost of necessity.

We do not need a large store of this world's goods to be able to dispense kindness bountifully to our neighbors. We have all felt with Shakespeare: "'Tis a kind of good deed to say well; and yet words are no deeds." The expression of loving sympathy and interest in another's pleasure or sorrow, the word of strengthening counsel or generous praise, even the glance of compassion or comprehension may do more to cheer and help than a substantial gift. There are burdens which can be lightened by those intangible offerings that could not be lifted by the most costly present. Life brings us in contact with many sorrowful hearts. We who are no longer young know that the patience which is born of experience is meant to be shared with others who have not yet learned the lesson that grief brings to their elders.

If the spirit of loving kindness reigns in our hearts we will find many ways of manifesting it. They seem too trifling to enumerate; indeed, they are so small that each one must find them for herself and watch for them or they will escape her. A few stitches taken for the busy mother whose hands are more than full with the care of children and household; fruit, flowers and vegetables gathered from our abundance and sent to those who cannot afford to buy them; the magazine or newspaper, which has ministered to our own enjoyment, forwareded to the lonely country home or mission station, where it will be a treat joyfully welcomed; the new book or treasured volume of poems taken to the invalid who finds the hours of convalescence intolerably long; the hour of reading to the blind, or of music to the cripple who otherwise cannot hear it; the drive for those who long for fresh air and change of scene, yet are not strong enough to seek it; the dainty prepared especially to tempt the capricious appetite rendered fastidious by suffering—these seem such small contributions to the heap of happiness that many of us who hold them in our hands forget to add them to it. Yet they are all of greater value than the cup of cold water whose bestowal was singled out for commendation.

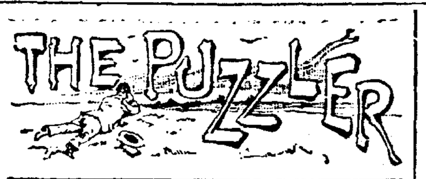

Our kindly ministrations must be mixed with tact or we shall hurt more often than we help. Favors must be gently offered, not cast at the recipient. The doing of them must be considered as a privilege to ourselves, not as a benefit conferred upon another. We must be willing to help people in their own way, doing as they wish, not as we consider best, viewing the matter from their standpoint, and trying, as far as possible, to put ourselves in their place. Tact is a natural grace, but it can be cultivated to a certain extent. True kindness of heart teaches a delicacy of feeling that enables us to deal with others as we should wish to be dealt with ourselves.

Kindness may run into excess, like any other virtue, and become officiousness. This will not happen if it is kept in check by the invaluable commonsense which has been rightly defined as "sense about common things." Meddlesome persons are as trying as mosquitoes, and as such must be kept at a distance. When our kind offices are rejected we may suspect that we have been too pressing in our attentions, and look well to our doings to see where the fault lies. If we can honestly decide that it is not on our side we must try again with more circumspection and greater care to avoid offense.

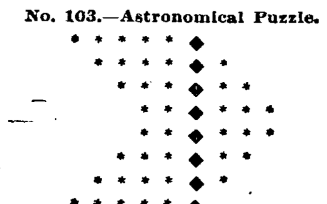

We all desire to be loved. The sternest nature cannot altogether repress a longing for the reciprocal affection that makes the sweetness of life. The heart overflowing with kindness that manifests itself in constant helpfulness, courtesy and good will to those around it, wins love. The kind face is an irresistible attraction, the kindly manner brings an answering thrill of warm regard from those who come under its influence, the kind word is always appreciated. "The little nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love" leave an impress on the countenance that inspires instant confidence, and charms all hearts, binding them securely and surely with the strong cords of love.—Elizabeth Robinson Schovil, in Ladies' Home Journal.

Life's Most Important Factor.

The publication of the "Life and Letters" of Mr. J. G. Romanes has again aroused the interest of the English people in his conversion from agnosticism to Christianity. Mr. Romanes enjoyed the distinction of being "at the very head of the scientific world," and hence his experience furnishes a most valuable lesson. In his letters Mr. Romanes says that his first step from agnosticism to faith was his discovery of "the immense importance of human nature as distinguished from physical nature in the inquiry." Another great step he describes thus: "I have come to see that cleverness, success, attainment, count for little; that goodness, or character, is the important factor in life."—Chicago Advance.

WOMEN IN NEW FIELDS

Mrs. Pickerell, the Garbage Woman of Denver.

HOW SHE DEFEATED THE HOG MEN

Mrs. Clemmer, Colorado State Dairy Commissioner and Reformer—Mrs. Shute, Commissioner of Horticulture and Agriculture—Mrs. Roberts, the Only Woman Sanitary Inspector.

Colorado is not quite yet ruled by women, but the fair sex seems to be more active in political affairs there than in any other state in the Union. It may be that the mountain air is responsible for the production of so many able and strong minded women, or perhaps the immense distances and grandeur of natural scenery make the men broader and more liberal of mind. At any rate, the women of Colorado, and especially of Denver, have made a most successful inroad into the jealously guarded field of politics and have crowded out many of the "stronger" sex.

MRS. MARY M. PICKERELL.

One of the most interesting and picturesque of these female politicians is Mrs. Mary Maryland Pickerell, who has recently made a sensation in Denver in the character of garbage contractor of the city. There is nothing of the æsthete about Mrs. Pickerell. She is athletic rather than æsthetic. As a new woman she is a hummer. She is big and muscular looking, and her square jaw indicates her determined character.

Mrs. Pickerell owns and manages two ranches near Denver and runs a boarding house in the city. Still she had some spare time on her hands, so she set out to take a hand in politics. She had heard that the garbage collecting of the city was done at an exorbitant price, so she determined to do it herself. When the mayor called for bids, Mrs. Pickereil put in one offering to do the work for less than half the sum that had formerly been paid. She was awarded the contract, but the newspapers ridiculed her enterprise and predicted that she would soon give up the job after she had lost a few hundred dollars.

But Mrs. Pickerell had a plan of her own. She did not intend to lose any money, and she had no idea of giving up. It seems that the work had previously been done in a haphazard, careless fashion, and that the men who had hog ranches outside the city were allowed to do most of the garbage collecting. The first thing the new contractor did was to inform the hog raisers that if they wished to collect any more garbage to feed to their stock they must get a permit from her and pay for the privilege. This decision almost created a riot. The hog men swore that they would do no such thing. They went on gathering garbage as usual, but for one night only. Then Mrs. Pickerell had a lot of them arrested and fined. Upon that the hog men capitulated. They are now working under the regulations which Mrs. Pickerell has made for them in the meekest manner possible.

Those who knew the story of Mrs. Pickerell's life were not at all surprised that she conquered the hardy hog men. She has often been victorious under still more adverse circumstances. She told some of her experiences to the reporters not long ago, after she had acquired fame. She was born in Arkansas on a farm and, to use her own language, "worked like a horse until I was 16 years old." One day while she was plowing in the field, bare of head and feet, along came Francis Maryland Pickerell, a northern man, "something of a sport, but of a good family." He stopped to talk to Mary, and they fell in love at first sight. She left the plow in the furrow and eloped with him.

After that they drifted to Denver, where Frank was taken sick, and Mary supported him by working in a laundry. Then she became an actress—that is, she swung Indian clubs in a variety theater and took the part of the heroine in wild western dramas. Frank recovered and "made good money," and they finally settled down on a ranch near Denver. Five years ago Mr. Pickerell passed away, but the widow just bought another ranch and started a boarding house in town, and, her mind being occupied, she did not grieve unduly.

MRS. ANNIE D. CLEMMER.

"I have been a very busy woman," says Mrs. Pickerell, "but, thank the Lord, have kept my health and have plenty of strength left. Down at my Sedalia ranch I stack all the hay myself and run the mowing machine and the hay rake. I do a good deal of the plowing also."

Mrs. Pickerell is quite an expert with the gloves and is quite proud of her fistic accomplishments. She tells a story of a little difficulty that she once had with a neighbor. He accused her of stealing a plow and came with a sheriff to search her premises.

"Well, they hunted high and low," she says, "breaking into closets and everything. It made me tired. So I said to that Englishman (the offending neighbor), 'If you don't find that plow here, I'm going to give you the darndest licking you ever got.' Well, they didn't find the plow of course, but he stuck so close to the sheriff that I had to follow him home. When I caught him, I pitched into him. Every time I hit him he dropped, and when he could not stand any more I let him go."

That is the kind of a woman who collects the garbage of Denver and made the Denver hog men weaken. She says that next year she means to run for street commissioner.

While somewhat positive in her statements and not always refined in her choice of words, Mrs. Pickerell is a good Christian. She is a member of the Pilgrims' Faith association, which holds meetings in a tent located in a vacant lot.

A Sunday or so ago the preacher was telling his congregation about the temple of Solomon and compared his hearers to the stones which were being shaped by the Lord to fit the eternal temple in the new Jerusalem. After the sermon there was a season of praise and prayer, during which many arose to give their personal testimony concerning the glories of a Christian life. Mrs. Pickerell was one of these, and during her talk she said:

"Brothers and sisters, I hope to find some place in that temple, for the Lord has been chiseling me up one side and down another for many years, and during the last 15 days he has been rubbing on hard, and the newspapers have been helping him out in his work. God bless you all, and even the newspapers that ridicule me so much."

It was quite evident that Mrs. Pickerell had caught the spirit of the minister's simile.

But not all the women officeholders of Colorado are so aggressive as Mrs. Pickerell. The office of state dairy commissioner is filled by Mrs. Annie D. Clemmer. She had not been in office more than a week before she stirred up a lot of trouble, mostly for other people, by enforcing the oleomargarine law. The retailers jeered at her when she notified them to quit selling the stuff illegally and put their stock down in dark cellars where they thought a woman would hesitate to go. But Mrs. Clemmer appointed her husband as her deputy and went on the hunt for oleo. Mr. Clemmer, by the way, is a big, ablebodied fellow, and he went where his wife and superior officer ordered him to go. The oleo sellers declared a truce, and now every dairyman in the state of Colorado regards Mrs. Clemmer as his guardian angel.

MRS. MARTHA A. SHUTE.

Then there is the commissioner of horticulture and agriculture. Mrs. Martha A. Shute holds this office, and she knows as much about fruit growing as any man in the west. She has been a practical farmer herself and held for several years the office of secretary to the state board of agriculture. Mrs. Shute was in charge of the Colorado agricultural exhibit at the World's fair. Her husband is a crippled veteran, and she is the breadwinner for the family.

Dr. Una G. Roberts of Denver has the distinction of being the only woman in Colorado and perhaps in the country who holds the position of sanitary inspector. She is also detailed as medical inspector. Dr. Roberts is a graduate of a medical college and has been a practicing physician in Denver for several years.

Mrs. Roberts met with opposition on the first day that she assumed her official duties. She attired herself in a bright blue dress of fashionable cut and a stylish coat adorned with big brass buttons and the shield of the health police. Her district was practically the whole city, and she was told that she could demand free transportation on the street cars. The first time she boarded a trolley car and rode free on the strength of her badge the conductor was puzzled and reported the case to the superintendent, who ordered that no women were to be allowed free passage. But Mrs. Roberts persisted in her right to ride without paying, backed it up with an order of the health board, and the superintendent of the road was obliged to rescind his order.

Dr. Roberts' duties are singularly unfeminine, but she does not seem to mind prowling about alleys and looking up cases of contagious diseases. She believes that the Colorado new woman is equal to almost any task, and the Colorado men will soon begin to think so, too, if they are not already of that opinion.

CYRUS SYLVESTER.

WHAT HE WOULD DO.

A Tale of a Bad Penman and an Admiring Railroad Man.

Dad Price, the secretary of the police department, tells the story on himself. He says he was sitting at his desk one day signing some papers, and he was in such a hurry that he was not doing his very best; in fact, he was writing a wretched hand. A railroad man with grease on his face and warts on his hands entered. He said nothing for awhile, but just stood and watched Mr. Price write. Finally he said in a husky tone:

"By George! I wish I could write as good as you do."

Mr. Price did not reply, but just kept on writing. In a minute or two the man remarked:

"Great guns, if I could just write as good as you do!"

By this time Mr. Price was annoyed, and the stranger ventured to say:

"Well, if I could just write as good as you do!"

Then Mr. Price turned suddenly in his chair and said angrily:

"Well, what would you do?"

"I'd go to China and write labels on tea boxes."

This is why Mr. Price took the railroader out and threw three or four red lemonades into him.—Louisville Commercial.

SUMMER TOURS AWHEEL

A Pleasant and Healthful Way of Spending a Vacation.

THE QUESTION OF LUGGAGE.

What to Carry and How to Carry It. Planning the Route—How Bicycle Touring Has Grown In Popularity—The Experiences of a Veteran.

About this time of year the cyclist gets the touring fever and begins to make plans for a long trip awheel. The symptoms are plainly evident. He carries his pockets full of maps and asks all sorts of questions about cities far removed from his habitat. He gets up early in the morning and takes long runs to get himself in condition, and loses interest in everything not connected with the wheel.

A little later he will be seen out on the highways that stretch to every corner of the country, dusty, sunburned, and probably tired, but evidently happy and reveling in new sights as well as enjoying to the utmost the delights of a never failing thirst and an omniverous appetite. As to just how many wheelmen and wheelwomen will take their summer outings in this way during the coming season it would be useless to speculate. We do not even know how many riders there are. Some day in the future we shall have a bicycle census, and then the statistician will give us some big, round figures to talk about.

There is no doubt, though, that the number of touring bicyclists this year will run up into the hundred thousands. They will penetrate to every out of the way corner of the land. Wherever there is anything of interest to be seen they will swarm. At the big seashore resorts on the Atlantic coast they will be largely in evidence. They will skirt the shores of the great lakes. They will pedal along the highways that parallel the big rivers. They will ride boldly up to the Rocky range, push their way into the very center of the Adirondacks and the White mountains, and make glad the heart of the isolated innkeeper from Skowhegan to San Jose.

This is going to be the greatest summer for wheel touring that the country has even seen, for there are nearly 1,000,000 more wheelmen this year than there were last, and the bicyclist who took his first ride in 1895 will, ten chances to one, take his first tour in 1896. The increase has been wonderful. I remember, if you will allow me to quote from a somewhat limited experience, that on my first bicycle trip, which was taken ten years ago, I met not a single tourist with whom to exchange greetings or yarns in the course of a two weeks' ride that took me through all the principal seashore resorts on the New England coast. That ride was taken on a high wheel, and all my luggage was strapped on the handle bars, a most uncomfortable way of carrying baggage, by the way.

Much I marveled at the difference last summer. My route took me somewhat away from the well beaten and much frequented paths of the touring wheelmen, yet they were met by twos and threes and dozens almost every day. Very often it happened that as I was eating dinner at some little village hotel, perhaps miles away from a railroad station, I would be joined at the table by another wheelman, fresh from the road and bound in a similar or opposite direction. Even in that wilderness that lies south of Montreal, between the St. Lawrence and the head of Lake Champlain, I met a tourist, and a jolly good fellow he was too. In the Green mountains the tourist awheel was met less often, but at Saratoga he was present in droves.

Most of the hotel keepers in the cities have recognized that the touring cyclist needs attention, and they see that he receives it. A room on the first floor is generally reserved for a wheelroom, and in it is often found an attendant who is ready to pump up tires, clean and oil wheels and make himself generally useful. This individual is gradually becoming an important adjunct to the wheelman's hotel. He is a sort of combined hostler and "boots" now, without any title to designate his office. But the name will come in time. Perhaps it may be "wheels."

People who do not ride, and even wheelmen who have never done any touring, are generally surprised at the length of a trip which a cyclist of ordinary ability can take in the course of a two weeks' outing. Of course every one is familiar with the records of the scorchers who ride 100 miles in a day, but the tourist belongs to a distinct class. He regards the scorcher with scorn. A good rider will easily cover 900 miles during a fortnight's trip and have time enough to see the country as he goes along. Allowing two whole days for bad weather and other delays he will have to ride only 75 miles a day to do this. As ten miles an hour is a comfortable pace that may be kept up for half a day without fatigue he need be in the saddle no longer than 7½ hours a day.

This is what a single rider may do, but as the tourist generally prefers company and rides in a party of from two to ten in number, some allowances must be made for unforeseen delays. A small party of cyclists, however, can readily make from 50 to 60 miles each day.

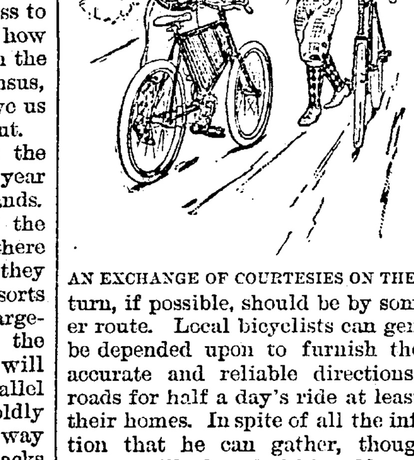

The novice at touring generally finds two difficult problems that have to be solved at the outset. The first one is how much and what baggage to carry, and the second one is how to find his way over roads that are entirely strange to him. The baggage question needs personal experience to be settled satisfactorily. The bicycle luggage carriers which are made to fit inside the diamond frame have done much to simplify the matter. It is amazing how much one of these triangular valises will hold. If the wheelman has wisely decided that he will wear his ordinary bicycle costume on all occasions, he will find that all the clothing necessary for an all summer's trip can be put into the carrier.

He is sure to find that the one great necessity is a good supply of clean underwear. Four suits are none too many, and five are better, for a change will be required at the end of each day's ride. For outside wear, outing shirts are not so good as sweaters on a long trip, because they do not look presentable after a hard day's ride. A sweater, on the other hand, especially if it is a gray one, will still look neat at the end of a two weeks' trip.

If the tourist insists on changing occasionally to ordinary street attire, there is no way for him to do but pack a valise and express it on to the point where he wants it and trust to luck that he gets it. If there is a lady or ladies in the party, this plan will have to be adopted anyway. It is not a good idea to load down the handle bars of your machine with bundles. One trial is always enough for the tourist. The front wheel was never meant to carry extra weight. It makes the wheel "steer hard" and is a nuisance in other ways. The luggage carrier is fastened to the frame in such a way that the weight is evenly distributed, and it is out of the way. It enables, too, the wheelman to carry such small articles as toothbrushes, handkerchiefs, etc., which might rattle out of a bundle, but which may be safely thrown into the carrier.

Then about finding the way. That is not so hard a matter as you might think. The L. A. W. roadbook should, of course, be a part of the equipment of every touring wheelman. But in many cases his way lies over roads that are not laid out in the regular tours. Where this occurs he has to rely on railroad maps and his own common sense. By inquiring his way from one city to the next he can follow the line of a railroad for hundreds of miles and be sure that he is going by the most direct route. Of course he will meet local wheelmen who will tell him that he should have gone some other way to have taken advantage of the best roads, but the tourist must remember that it is not fine riding that he is seeking always, but new scenes. A little hard riding he will not mind at all if he knows that he has to go over that road but once.

Every trip, by the way, should be laid out with this idea in view, and the return, if possible, should be by some other route. Local bicyclists can generally be depended upon to furnish the most accurate and reliable directions as to roads for half a day's ride at least from their homes. In spite of all the information that he can gather, though, the tourist will often find himself at a lonely crossroads corner, perhaps gazing at a signboard that is worse than useless to him because the unknown names it bears only confuse his dim idea as to the direction which he should take.

This is one of the disagreeable features of wheel touring, but the long coasts down strange hills, the well relished dinners at country hotels, the afternoon siestas by the roadside, the making of new and pleasant acquaintances, are some of the amenities that lend to the sport a charm that, once experienced, is never forgotten.

SEWELL FORD.

FABLES FOR THE PRESENT.

The Salt Merchant and the Ass.

There was once a peddler who drove his ass to the seashore to buy salt. His road home lay across a stream, in passing which the ass, making a misstep, fell into the water, rising up again with his load considerably lightened, as the water had melted the salt.

The peddler, seeing the beatific smile which glorified the face of the ass, on the next trip loaded the animal with sponges and all the way home snickered enthusiastically to think how the ass would get left when he fell into the water again.

The ass, however, who knew an elephant from an oyster, swanked across the curling rivulet with great agility and pretended not to see the smart Aleck peddler kick himself.

Moral.—Just because a man looks an ass is no proof that he isn't as foxy as you are.—New York Press.

The Crow and the Fox.

A crow and a fox once engaged in a game of poker—just a friendly game, you know. They had played but a short time when an owl came past and stopped to watch the game. He was a wise owl and honest as well, and when he saw that things were not right he called the crow to one side and observed: "You are a fool to play poker with that sharp. He goes to the deck and sorts out straights and flushes with regularity."

"To be sure," replied the crow. "That is where my graft comes in. That fox is so busy looking for flushes and such like trifling hands, that he does not observe how I assemble full houses by inspecting the discard. That fox is easy."

Moral.—There are others.—Truth.

The Grasshopper and the Ants.

The ants, while shoveling a path to their garner house through the first snow of the winter, were approached by a grasshopper, who begged piteously for some cold victuals.

"Nit," said the ants. "You were at the seashore all last summer, while we were laying pipe. Clear out, or we'll call the dog." They thereupon gave him the stony eye.

The grasshopper, however, not caring to starve miserably, even for the sake of adorning a moral, procured the address of his city cousins, the crickets, and spent the winter on them in exceeding fatness.

When spring broke, he borrowed a new golf suit, asked the family to spend a day with him in his country some time and took a trolley for home, where he gave the ants the dead faced ha! ha! and crossed them off his visiting list.

Moral.—It is seldom the hobo whom you confront with a turkey dinner who burns down your barn.—New York Press.

The Real Thing.

"Did you ever see a worse Anglomaniac than Wabbles?"

"Is Wabbles one of them fellers?"

"Is he? He has a tank of English atmosphere shipped to him every week to fill his tires with. He claims he can't ride without it."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Her Misfortune.

"It always makes me sad to see a woman go by on a wheel."

"Why?"

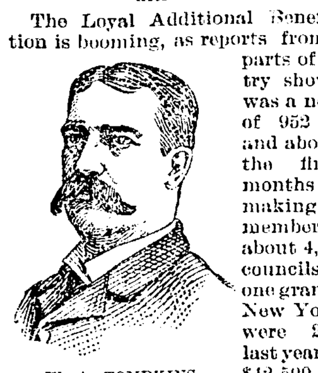

"I always reflect that if Eve had had one in the garden of Eden she wouldn't have had time to get into worse mischief."—Chicago Record.

SECRET SOCIETIES

ROYAL ARCANUM.

Promising Reports About the Loyal Additional—Notes.

The Loyal Additional Benefit association is booming, as reports from different parts of the country show. There was a net increase of 952 last year and about 300 for the first three months of 1896, making the total membership now about 4,200 in 90 councils. There is one grand council, New York. There were 23 deaths last year, on which $42,500 was paid.

W. A. TOMPKINS.

The net expenses of the supreme council for 1895 were $4,416.62. Supreme Councilor W. A. Tompkins of New Jersey is too well known to members of the Royal Arcanum to need an introduction. His long service in the supreme lodge on various committees has proved his ability, and his zeal for both the R. A. and L. A. B. A. is a matter of history.

Bro. G. H. Jackson is now grand regent of Iowa and Bro. H. A. Snyder secretary.

Total membership of the order in New York is 42,915, a gain of 4,150 for 1895.

Massachusetts had a membership on April 1 of 16,858, a net gain of 968.

Approximate membership of the order April 1, 179,606 in 1,689 councils.

The ratio of expenses to benefits paid in 1895 in New York is 2 1-3 per cent.

Reports of officers show a small but steady growth of the order in Pennsylvania.

ODD FELLOWS.

Under the Banner of Friendship, Love and Truth—Linklets.

If the Odd Fellows now living should join hands, they would make a chain over 1,500 miles long. Using Indianapolis as a pivot, this vast army, in making a right wheel, would tread upon every foot of ground in the United States, Alaska excepted, and the circle inscribed would cut into the Atlantic, Arctic and Pacific oceans and the gulf of Mexico.

There were 2,500 Odd Fellows in line at the anniversary parade at Brockton.

From a meager handful of well meaning brethren gathered together in Baltimore in 1819 the organization has now grown to a mighty host numbering 939,051 members and located in almost every civilized nation on the earth.

Hope lodge of Providence recently auctioned off in the lodgeroom 16 past grand collars that had been discarded 32 years ago.

The editor of The Odd Fellows' Advocate, who has recently returned from Europe, states that all who attend the grand lodge of the German empire are expected to be in full dress, including white kid gloves.

It has been suggested that the sweet pea be adopted as the floral emblem of the order.

Thomas V. Tourney is now grand master of Virginia and T. Wiley Davis grand secretary.

There are about 1,100 lodges, with about 107,000 members, in Pennsylvania. From 1830 to 1894 there were 216,178 families and 1,902,562 members relieved and $67,828,690 expended.

Grand Sire Stobbins has issued his Memorial day proclamation calling upon the lodges to assemble on the second Tuesday of June next, being the 9th day, and engage in proper and suitable exercises in memory of their deceased members.

Red Men.

Chippewa tribe, Philadelphia, added 56 members to its rolls during the past great sun.

The indications are that the gain of membership in Pennsylvania for the past great sun will exceed 1,500.

The order is booming in Tennessee. P. G. S. Albert Williams has been at work.

Tejas tribe of Palestine, Tex., is having a wigwam built for it by one of its members, which is to be the finest lodgeroom in that part of the country.

The great council of Maine kindled its eighth great sun council fire at Rockland on the 23d of plant moon. The chief of records reported a gain of over 1,100 members for the past great sun.

The order in Colorado has gained about 2,000 members since last hot moon.

The great chief of Massachusetts dedicated a new wigwam on the 7th of flower moon for Winnepurkit and Poquanum tribes of Lynn.

Knights of Pythias.

The Knights of Pythias of Seymour, Ind., will have a grand celebration on the 6th of June.

The grand chancellor of Florida is allowed $300 for expenses.

The Ohio Pythian home now contains 33 children and 1 widow.

It is noticeable that where public installation of divisions of the uniform rank are held that there is an awakening and a new interest among the members, which usually adds a number of volunteers.

The grand lodge and brigade U. R. of New York will meet at Canandaigua next July, and the indications are that the meeting will be largely attended. A thousand dollars will be given in prizes.

Knights and Ladies of Security.

The order is national in its scope, extending over all the territory north of latitude 36.30 degrees and Canada, excluding all large cities of 150,000 population, admitting to membership white persons of good moral character between the ages of 18 and 55 years who can pass a satisfactory medical examination.

The plan of creating the reserve fund adopted by the Knights and Ladies of Security is copyrighted, the perpetual use of which has been secured by the order.

Mystic Shrine.

The twenty-second annual session of the Imperial council, Mystic Shrine, will be held at Cleveland June 23 and 24.

The history of the order of the Mystic Shrine dates far back into the centuries, and, like Masonry, profane and sacred history and tradition show its existence in the days of Solomon.

MASONIC.

Egyptian Rite of Memphis Goes to the Ninety-sixth Degree—Temple Chips.

A circular "to all good Masons" has been widely circulated emanating from Detroit and proposing to confer degrees up to and including the ninety-sixth degree. The "Sovereign sanctuary of the Egyptian rite of Memphis, for the Cosmos"—whew!—was organized, so the document says, June 16, 1895, in Detroit. The fact is the date of organization is not ancient enough to satisfy those looking for the antique. They propose all sorts of glorious things, little short of translation into celestial bliss in the seventh heaven. They want "good Masons" to get up chapters. They will give $165 worth of degrees for $25. Any one in search of "higher degrees" can thus be accommodated at a nominal cost. We doubt if there will be found any so poor as to do reverence to so palpable a fraud.—New York Dispatch.

Henry Clay and General Jackson were both Masons.

This year the Prince of Wales will have been grand master of the English Freemasons for 21 years.

The approaching session of the grand commandery of Pennsylvania, to be held in Scranton on May 25, promises to excel in knightly splendor any previous gathering of Sir Knights in the state.

The board of managers of the Michigan Masonic Home association has reorganized. The board is confident that means will be provided for keeping the home open.

Sir George Thornburgh is now grand commander of Arkansas and Sir. J. A. Henry grand recorder.

Bro. E. F. Hartzell is now grand master of Royal and Select masters of Missouri and Bro. W. H. Mayo grand recorder.

Officers should be on hand at the hour for opening and members be in place on time. It is not pleasant for the master to have to call upon visitors to fill places of absent officers.

Dr. O. W. Owen claims to have discovered unmistakable evidence that Shakespeare was a Mason.

United Workmen.

Minnesota jurisdiction has been doing grand work during the past year.

Arrangements are being made by the grand commander of Missouri Select Knights, General Sterrett, for a drill contest at Moberly on the Fourth of July, when a prize banner will be offered for the best drilled legion and other minor prizes.

Massachusetts has been divided into four districts, with a supervisor for each. The system gives promise of great benefit to the order.

Missouri gained over 500 new members during the first three months of 1896.

Offices in the A. O. U. W., and in the Degree of Honor and Select Knights, are places of responsibility and labor and should be sought and filled only by those who are capable.

Total relief fund received to April 1, on call No. 16, $356,584; disbursed, $356,000.

The order in Illinois is experiencing much prosperity, much of which is credited to the classified assessment plan.

Modern Woodmen.

Hon. John C. Garver, who was recently elected judge of the circuit court of Illinois, is a prominent Rockford Woodman.

Modern Woodmen, bar the door against people who are engaged in 22 dangerous occupations.

State Deputy Watts of Ohio recently instituted a camp at Columbus with over 200 names on the charter list.

There were 117 deputies in the field at work during March.

Deputy B. C. Wood of Moline secured 301 new members for the first three months of 1896.

The order is booming in southern Ohio. State Deputy Watts and his assistants have been putting in big licks.

The first camp in Missouri was organized at St. Joseph three years ago. There are now 258 camps, with 8,235 in members in the state.

Say a good word for the order whenever you have an opportunity.

Knights of Honor.

Supreme Dictator John Mulligan expresses himself well pleased with the state of the order and of the large accessions that are being made.

The brothers in Brooklyn can have a treat on the second and fourth Fridays of the month by visiting Senate lodge. Work goes on in full uniform.

Centennial lodge, No. 261, of New York, a German speaking lodge of over 900 members, are working like beavers to once more reach the 1,000 mark.

A question of grave importance, and one that is agitating the order at large, is the subject of biannual sessions of the supreme lodge.

The expenses for mileage and per diem of the last session of the supreme lodge, held at New York, were over $13,000.

St. John and Malta.

The chapter general will convene in Brooklyn in September. A parade of uniformed knights will be a feature of the first day.

The new medical application blanks have been issued and are now ready for distribution. Careful consideration and a minute perusal of the document shows it to be the finest that this order has ever had.

Application for the grand sovereign permit of the Order of Mystic Monks to organize a royal council with its several grades must be made by not less than 15 Knights of the Red Cross and Sepulcher.

Chosen Friends.

Oakville council, No. 12, of Connecticut has been organized by Friend F. W. Judd, with 31 charter members.

The Chosen Friends of Texas are reaching out in new fields for new councils, and Supreme Warden Sanders is developing great ability for pushing the work along.

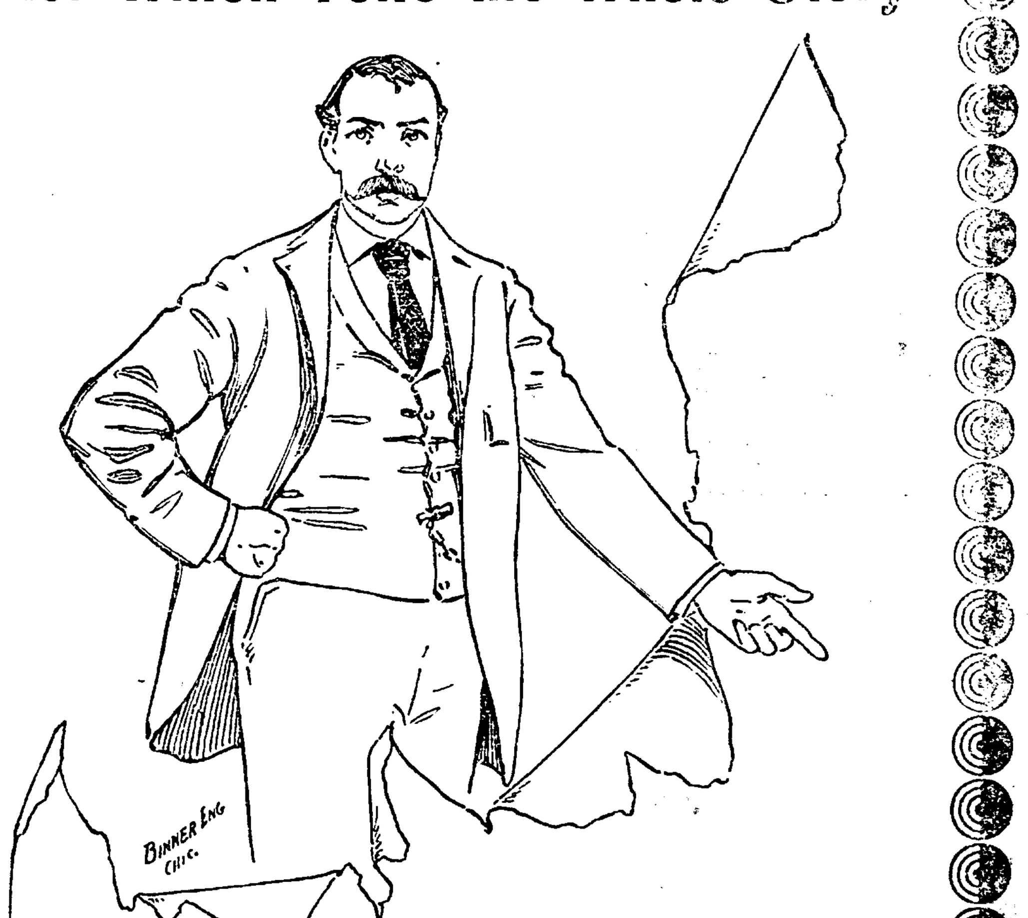

Active work is under way in the new councils in Albany and Troy, and both of them will double their membership this month.

Those councils which meet weekly are the most progressive.

Iron Hall.

In reply to an application from F. D. Somerby, supreme president of the Iron Hall of Baltimore, for authority to transact business in New Hampshire, Insurance Commissioner John C. Linehan has sent a letter refusing permission because the methods of the Iron Hall are such that it cannot be recognized as a "fraternal association" under New Hampshire laws.

A Letter Which Tells the Whole Story

COLUMBUS, Nebraska, March 28, 1896.

THE DR. J. H. McLEAN MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen: By the numerous letters I have received, I see you have used the permission I gave you to publish the cure of the disease called Diabetes, of which I have been suffering with, through the aid of your Liver and Kidney Balm. Thank God I am now well and hearty.

I want to let you know who the parties are that made these inquiries, and herewith give you the following list of names and their addresses:

AFTON BALL, Nebraska City, Neb.
FRED KURT, Richwood, Union Co., Ohio
AUGUST HILBRADT, Minneapolis, Minn.
A. V. SHEFORT, Brunswick, Neb.
HENRY STOHLKAMP, Melette, S. D.
B. H. PARKS, Armour, Douglas Co., S. D.
OTTO NELSON, Ft. Dodge, Ia.
MILTON McDONALD, Minneapolis, Minn.
CHARLIE VANHOUSEN, P. O. Columbus, Neb.
N. A. BUTLER, Seward, Neb.

This make ten letters in all which I have answered, and I wrote every one of them the facts, which are, that your medicine has cured me, which is nothing but the truth. I will reply promptly to all letters asking information, as it gives me the greatest of pleasure to recommend your valuable remedy—"The Liver and Kidney Balm." You helped me through your medicine; I regained my former health, and I consider it my duty to assist you to bring it before the suffering public, and hope you will be able to send the same over the whole world.

I think it is good to take something to act on your liver and kidneys in the Spring, and bring them again into activity. Of course, I am no physician, but I understand my constitution now pretty well and know what is good for me to take. I remain for ever your true friend and hope these lines will reach you in as good a health as they leave me.

Yours respectfully,
LOUIS PHILLIPS.

Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm has proved its sovereign worth in many cases more stubborn than that of Mr. Phillips, and is to-day one of the most popular remedies sold.

It can be had at all druggists. Price, $1.00 per bottle.

THE DR. J. H. McLEAN MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

Suspicious.

"I've got a good thing on the next race," he said mysteriously.

"Have you, indeed?" replied the man who does not bet.

"Yes, sir. It's a sure winner."

"I suppose you are so situated as to enjoy peculiar facilities for discovering sure winners?"

"I know all about 'em."

"You have enjoyed these advantages for years, have you not?"

"Ever since I can remember."

"Well, I'd like to benefit by your knowledge, but I can't quite understand your condescension."

"My what?"

"Your condescension. Here you are, a man with bookmakers at your mercy all these years, with nothing to do but take their money away from them, wasting your time on a common stranger like me instead of sitting on top of your private tallyho and opening champagne."—Washington Star.

Perfect Model.

The artist stopped suddenly in his walk and studied with interest the abject, misshapen creature who was begging for alms at a street corner. The poor man's legs were bent outward at right angles at the knees, he had a great hump in his back, one arm was only half the length of the other, his lower jaw projected nearly an inch beyond the upper, his hair was fiery red, and his eyes were at cross purposes.

"My friend," said the artist, with a glow of enthusiasm in his pale face, "here is a $5 bill. Come with me to my studio. I want a model for an art poster!"—Chicago Tribune.

Deceived by Appearances.

"I believe you are the very same man I fed this morning," said a Bagg street housewife as she gave a tramp a handout.

"No, marm," he answered as he turned the four hard boiled eggs over, "I warn't never on this lay before."—Detroit Free Press.

All Depends.

"How proud that man Eastfall is of those unsightly scars on his face!" observed the president of the X., Y. and Z. Railway company. "They are the marks of sword cuts he got while fighting duels at Heidelberg university, and he wouldn't take $1,000 apiece for them. And yet if he had been scarred up half as badly as that in some accident on our road he would think he was damaged $25,000 worth."—Chicago Tribune.

How Bargains Work.

"Don't you find so many house plants a great deal of trouble, Mrs. Simpkins?"

"Yes, but I had to buy them because jardinieres are so cheap."—Chicago Record.

Bow Down.

I am the king of the season of sun,
And man must bow to me.
With sighs and fears and sobs and tears
My coming all mortals see.
The rich man shivers, the poor man shakes,
As he hears my dread decree
From the burnished throne where I reign alone,
Where all must bend the knee.

I am the king of the dog day heat;
I'm cold to my heartless core;
I gorge my wallet on wage and wallet
And howl for more and more.
Want and poverty, debt and woe,
Walk my face before,
Fed by the plunks that buy the chunks
For me, the refrigerator!

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths, the Plain Facts, the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, &c.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, &c.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

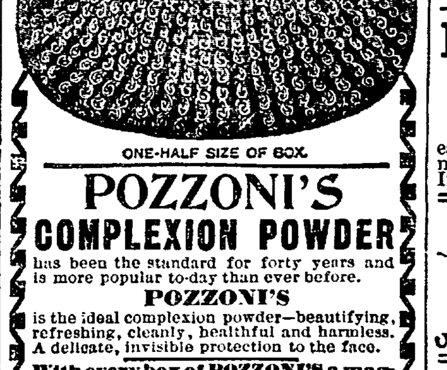

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

"If you dumped a cart load of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

Out of sorts

—and no wonder. Think of the condition of those poor women who have to wash clothes and clean house in the old-fashioned way. They're tired, vexed, discouraged, out of sorts, with aching backs and aching hearts.

They must be out of their wits. Why don't they use Pearline? That is what every woman who values her health and strength is coming to. And they're coming to it now, faster than ever. Every day, Pearline's fame grows and its patrons increase in number. Hundreds of millions of packages have been used by bright women who want to make washing easy. 481

The Cost of Gorham Silver

The great reputation of GORHAM SILVER does not increase its cost. To the value of Sterling Silver, 925-1000 fine, is added the expense of workmanship, little or much, according to the design, and to that a moderate profit—but the aggregate is no more than is asked for wares less beautiful, and less renowned.

THE HAT THAT MAKES THE MAN.

1—Bjones he had the homeliest face,
His smile would wrap a packing case.
And teething babies choked and cried
Whene'er Bjones looked sad or sighed.

2—He couldn't wear a hat at all,
A derby made his face too small,
A plug or Kossuth wide-awake
Would make the very landscape ache.

3—But when the golf cap came in style,
Bjones was out of sight a mile,
He's in it and is just the thing
With three rich widows on a string.

RAILWAY RUMBLINGS.

New Time Cards Go Into Effect Tomorrow.

H. C. Parker's Railway Record--Shipment of Electrical Machinery--Local and Personal.

The time card which goes into effect on the Pittsburg road tomorrow changes the running time of only one passenger train, No. 15, which will leave this city at 3:45 instead of 3:35 each morning as heretofore. There is a radical change in freight trains, however. All are renumbered and the running time of many of them has been changed and shortened. The speed of freight trains is much greater now than it was a few years ago.

The Wabash also changes time tomorrow and the new time cards were received by Col. Thompson this morning. On this line the passenger trains make a radical change, as detailed in these columns a few days ago.

AGAINST THE FUNDING BILL.

The San Francisco Trades and Labor council last night adopted a resolution protesting against the passage of the Pacific railroad funding bill and urging California's representatives to do all in their power to defeat the measure. The council denounced the funding bill as a measure "detrimental to the progress of California and opposed to the interests of the entire country."

SHIPMENT OF DYNAMOS.

Yesterday the electric works sent two more large 115 light dynamos to the Toledo Traction company, making four shipped to those parties in the past week. Two more machines of the same capacity will follow in a few days. Today's shipment included two 400-light incandescent dynamos to Coney Island and one machine of the same capacity to Meridan, Miss.

A PULLMAN CONDUCTOR'S HORRIBLE DEED.

The following Associated Press dispatch from Chicago, received this morning, gives the particulars of a shooting affair in which a man well known to the Pennsylvania railway men, the traveling men and the frequenters at the Pittsburg depot, is one of the chief actors: "Edward E. Edwards, a paper hanger, formerly a palace car conductor, between Pittsburg and Chicago, shot his wife in the face last night, while she was asleep. The woman was not fatally injured. She jumped through a window and escaped from her husband, who turned the pitol on himself and died instantly. A letter to the wife said to have been written by a Pittsburg saloonkeeper and signed "Butch" is reported to have been the cause of the shooting."

HOSTLERS' UNION.

Journeyman Hostlers' union, No. 6 689, was organized last evening, the work being performed by a committee from the Trades and Labor council. The officers elected were: President, J. S. Robinson; vice president, Ira D. Hoffman; secretary, W. Motherwell; treasurer, F. Brandenburger; guide, B. F. Faust; guardian, John Young; trustees, John Young, Phillip Fuchshober, Harry Bente. The union will hold its next meeting Tuesday evening, May 26, at Sons of Freedom hall. The union starts out with thirteen members.

THE BICYCLE QUESTION.

It is probable that all the roads in the Central Passenger committee will follow the lead of the Pennsylvania road in carrying bicycles free of charge The Lake Shore is preparing to follow suit and it is expected that all the competitors of the Pennsylvania and Lake Shore will soon join the procession. The western roads will not at the present time take any action in the matter. They have had for a long time a provision in their agreement that a charge should be made for carrying the wheels and some of the roads declare that they will continue to make a charge no matter what the other roads do. The general objection seems to be that the bike is too unwieldy an article to carry in the baggage cars. Some road officials say that if they are to carry all the wheels that will be thrust upon them, once they begin to carry them for nothing, they will have to run more baggage cars than passenger cars on their trains.

H. C. PARKER'S RAILWAY RECORD.

The remains of the late H. C. Parker, traffic manager of the Lake Erie and Western, who died in Indianapolis Thursday night, have been taken to Norwalk, Ohio, where his parents reside, for interment. Mr. Parker was born July 4, 1849, in New York city. At the age of twenty he entered the service of the Empire fast freight lines. He rapidly advanced from a clerk in a local office to cashier in the Detroit office, then was again promoted and became superintendent's clerk and was assigned to establish agencies of the Empire line. He served in this capacity less than a year and was then made agent of the line at Fort Wayne, where he remained seven years. He was again promoted and became western agent of the Empire line, with headquarters at Peoria, Ill. In 1880 George L Bradbury, who was then general manager of the Peoria, Decatur and Evansville railroad, placed Mr. Parker in charge of the freight department of that road. In April 1887, when Mr. Bradbury became general manager of the Lake Erie and Western, he called Mr. Parker to Indianapolis and made him traffic manager of that road, which position he has held ever since.

MINOR NOTES.

The Grand Rapids pay car was in the city today.

The Pittsburg locomotive works are closed today.

C. Marshall, Nickel Plate brakeman, has gone to Logansport to visit his parents.

Charles Tilbury has taken a position as fireman at the factory of Rhinesmith & Simonson.

Roy Jackson, of the electric works, has resumed work after an absence of three weeks.

Pharis M. Keller, a brakeman on the west end of the Pittsburg road, is rejoicing over the arrival of a ten pound girl baby.

After a week's illness, Ollie Alringer has returned to his duties in the electric works.

C. Tindell, of the Nickel Plate, has gone to Logansport to look after some private business.

Williard Smith, a Wabash machinist, went to Logansport this morning to spend Sunday with friends.

Brakeman C. A. Parker, of the Nickel Plate, has been promoted from the freight to the passenger service.

Ticket Agent and Mrs. J. E. Ross left this morning for Lebanon, Ohio, to visit Mrs. R.'s parents a few days.

G. Robinson, a Nickel Plate brakeman, has gone to Elkhart, Ind., to pack up his household goods preparatory to moving them and his family to this city.

The Rock Island road has given notice that it will meet the action of the Great Western in making second-class tickets good in first-class sleeping cars.

Hal Bitzberger, the Grand Rapids and Indiana fireman who has been so dangerously ill at St. Joseph hospital for two or three weeks, is slowly recovering.

Engineer Joseph Bracht, of the Nickel Plate, will resume his former position at the throttle of engine 124 next week after several months' absence.

Engineer James Quinn, of the Nickel Plate, is preparing for a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in western Pennsylvania. He will leave for that state Monday.

The Peoria and Eastern has decided to rebuild the shops at Urbana, Ill. The plans have been prepared, and yesterday were sent to President Ingalls by General Manager Barnard for his approval.

Clarence E. Misner, traveling fireman of the Pittsburg, has been engaged upon a new book of rules for several days. Some changes have recently been made and the rules affected by them have been reprinted and are being pasted into the old book.

General Superintendent McGuian, of the Grand Trunk, is introducing in many departments the rules under which he operated the Wabash Passenger conductors have been notified that they must enter accurately on train journals the number of through and local passengers handled on the trains and on the parlor and sleeping cars, as important statistics are based on these reports.

On Wednesday, in carrying out the retrenchment policy, twenty one men in the yards of the Vandalia main line were dismissed from the service. This is the second reduction in yard forces along the line. The principal yard office at Terre Haute will be at the fair grounds..

M. Goldburger and others will soon incorporate the Fort Wayne Smelting and Refining works, which is now conducting business on Dock street. The company already has a furnace in operation and will enlarge it and build others as soon as the incorporation has been effected.

Mr. Russell, road foreman of engines on the Pittsburg division of the Fort Wayne road, was the guest of the local Pennsylvania railway officials yesterday. Mr. Russell is the oldest road foreman, in term of service, on any of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, having filled the office continually since 1873

The Lima Northern was completed on Wednesday night to a point within four miles of the Michigan state line and the track layers are now five miles north of Napoleon. As now proposed, the terminal of the road will be Detroit Junction, four miles west of Detroit, and from that point the Lake Shore will be used to get into Detroit.

Patrick Nolan, the oldest baggagemaster in time of service on the New York Central, died on Tuesday at Syracuse. He had run on the Central road nearly fifty years and during that time never was in but one serious accident. He was opposed to running on Sunday, and the officers of the road have kept him on one train for the last thirty years, but he was never requested to work on Sunday. Had he lived till March next he would have been pensioned and retired.

Blood Poison.

Contagious Blood Poison has been appropriately called the curse of mankind. It is the one disease that physicians cannot cure; their mercurial and potash remedies only bottle up the poison in the system, to surely break forth in a more virulent form, resulting in a total wreck of the system.

Mr. Frank B. Martin, a prominent jeweler at 926 Pensylvania Ave., Washington, D.C., says: I was for a long time under treatment of two of the best physicians of this city, for a severe case of blood poison, but my condition grew worse all the while, notwithstanding the fact that they charged me three hundred dollars. My mouth was filled with eating sores; my tongue was almost eaten away, so that for three months I was unable to taste any solid food. My hair was coming out rapidly, and I was in a horrible fix. I had tried various treatments, and was nearly discouraged, when a friend recommended S.S.S. After I had taken four bottles, I began to get better, and when I had finished eighteen bottles, I was cured sound and well, my skin was without a blemish, and I have had no return of the disease. S.S.S. saved me from a life of misery." S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) will cure any case of blood poison. BEDRIDDEN.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

The Doctors Wanted Seven Hundred Dollars to Attempt the Case.

The following is a letter we received a short time ago from Mrs. M. C. Hinkley, 602 North Mississippi St., Indianapolis, Ind.:

Gent'lemen:—While suffering intensely from piles, I became interested in your advertisement in one of our daily papers and procured a package of your Pyramid Pile Cure from our druggist. Contrary to my expectations, the relief was instantaneous. I used two boxes of the Pile Cure and one of the Pills and am convinced that they are the only sure cure for piles on the market. I have been a sufferer from piles for fifteen years and have been confined to my bed about one-half of the time, expecting and wishing for death for the pain was so great. I went to the college here and the doctors said my case was a new one to them, the great pain having brought on a large rupture, which they wanted seven hundred dollars to cut out. I was very much afraid that death would result from the blood-poisoning which they said would result from the operation. I feel as though I can't praise the Pyramid Pile Cure and the Pyramid Pills too highly, as I am convinced that they saved my life. Before using your cure I weighed only ninety pounds and now I weigh one hundred and fifty and feel as well as I ever did in my life. You are at liberty to use this testimonial in any manner you may see fit, as I want all sufferers from this terrible disease to know that there has at last been compounded a remedy that will cure piles. MRS. M. C. HINKLEY.

There is no need of the danger, pain and expense of a surgical operation for any form of piles. The Pyramid Pile Cure does the work without pain and is the safest and best. Remember also that the Pyramid Pills are a certain cure for constipation, acting without griping and restoring natural action of the bowels.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists at 50 cents and $1.00, and the Pyramid Pills at 25 cents, or by mail from Pyramid Co., Albion, Mich.

A. R. Hirons has given THE SENTINEL a bit of information which will be of interest and perhaps of great value to our readers. He says that inasmuch as frost has been predicted for this month it would be well for the people to know just how to save their grape vines. Mr. Hirons says that if people will spray their grape vines with cold water before the sun comes up in the morning the frost will have no effect upon them. This is a very simple remedy and will be well worth trying.

Master George DeWald, aged sixteen, who resides with his widowed mother at No. 41 Locust street, was the successful guesser in Sam, Pete & Max's contest, and was yesterday presented with the prize, a handsome bicycle. George guessed that Wabash train No. 44 would arrive on Thursday evening at 7:16:30, and was only one second "Shy." Charles Stein, of Hanna street, guessed the same time, but his guess was registered a week later than young DeWald's.

A SAD TALE!

Or How They Socked it to Him.

"Man wants but little here below,
But wants that little long"
At least 'tis true, as all do know,
If the tit of his socks is wrong.
But of all the wrongs he has to bear
And with christian fortitude meet,
In magnitude none can compare
With that of sock discolored feet.
If at night he removes his socks
And finds his feet an inky hue,
His language strong, his good wife shocks
And turns the atmosphere to blue,
His one ambition all else mocks,
And this passion fairly thrills him,
He thinks of him who sold the socks
And his own joy when he kills him,
This hitherto quite upright man,
—A creature now thirsting for gore—
And all this trouble first began
By his mistake about a store.
For if he had but come to us
And bought the kind we always sell,
The wrecked life of this poor cuss
We would not now have had to tell.

The moral of this sad, sad tale
Is plainly seen by every eye—
When you buy socks, you should not fail

REIGN OF DEATH

Texas Swept by a Cyclone.

Nearly Two Hundred Lives Lost

And Double That Number Hurt.

Whole Towns and Villages Destroyed

And Entire Families Crushed in the Debris.

Gribble Springs, Justin and Keller Witness the Storm's Greatest Fury.

SHERMAN, Texas, May 16.—A most disastrous cyclone struck Sherman at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, wiping out the entire western end of the town. The loss of life is appalling.

By 6 o'clock last evening twelve bodies were lying cold in death in the county court house, and as many more are scattered about and across the desolated west end of the city.

The work of rescue and the search for the missing goes on. The business part of the town is deserted and the greatest excitement prevails. Every available wagon, buggy, and horse is in use by the searchers and workers of the field of death. As time grows, later reports of greater loss of life and prperty arrive. The Sherman court house is insufficient to hold the dead and wounded. The vacant Moore building is utilized, and eleven colored people, dead or dying, were placed there. Express drays, baggage wagons and all kinds of vehicles continue to come in with dead bodies. The storm struck Sherman without warning on the southwest corner of the city and cleared a path of 100 yards wide along the west end of town. Houses, trees, fences and everything went before the terrible force of the cyclone. The negro part of the town suffered the most severely. There are probably thirty negroes killed. Ten bodies have been picked up in Post Oak creek. The flood of rain which attended the storm was severe. The town is a mass of mud and floating debris, and there is much difficulty in finding the dead and injured.

The names of the dead so far as known at this hour are:

Mrs. Otto Baldinger and three children.

I. L. Burris, wife and two children.

John Aimes, wife and two children.

Rev. J. D. Shearer, Christian minister.

Mrs. L. M. Montgomery and two children.

William Hamilton.

Mrs. George Anderson and babe.

T. H. Perce, three daughters and one son.

T. W. Jenkins.

John Fields.

The colored people killed so far as identified are.

James Walker.

Nora Nicholson.

Two children.

Sloan Baldinger.

Kate King.

Eliza Cox and infant.

Mary Lake.

John Lake.

Letitia Lake.

Fatus Lake.

From the point where the cyclone seems to have first descended to where it suddenly arose from the ground just north of the city, it left terrific marks of its passage, not a house in its pathway escaping and not a tree or shrub is left standing or that is not twisted and torn out of shape. An iron bridge on Houston street is completely wrecked and blown away, notwithstanding its hundreds of thousands of pounds of steel and material. The number of persons wounded will reach not less than 100 and it will be several days before the exact number of fatalities can be given, as many persons, especially children, are missing, and many of the injured are in such critical shape that a score may die.

In a few minutes after the cyclone the police were appealed to for shelter for the dead and wounded and the ambulances and all kinds of conveyances were pressed into service. Physicians and druggists responded promptly to the call for succor. Hundreds of ladies responded to the call of humanity and with a score of physicians were soon at work. The cries of the injured were supplemented by the agonizing shrieks of those who, passing from corpse to corpse, at last to find some loved one, perhaps a husband, or wife, or son, or daughter.

NEARLY TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

About three miles of wire, belonging to the City Electric Light works, was torn down by the cyclone, and in consequence the city was in darkness all night. A great number of inquiries for lost persons are being made, over 100 having been received by the police thus far. Physicians from Van Alstyne, McKinley and Denison are here in numbers, also nurses from all of these cities.

Later reports show that Mrs. J. J. Johnson and child were killed four miles west of Howe, and twelve miles southwest of this city. Mrs. Samuel H. Hendricks, who lives near them, is fatally injured. The last reports indicate that a family by the name of Connor, consisting of an old lady, her son and daughter, are seriously injured They cannot live.

Reports are coming in constantly that the direction of the main cyclone which passed through Sherman went between Denison and Pottsborough. The width or strength of the storm has not varied. It still maintains a breadth of about 150 or 200 yards through the entire country.

Between Sherman and the river no fatalities have been reported, although there are unconfirmed rumors of a number of houses being blown down.

The total number of injured will reach 150 and the total number of killed outright so far as word from Sherman and other points in the country, is about sixty, and it is estimated that at least that many more are missing and dead.

Conservative estimates place the total number of killed in Grayson county at between 120 and 150. The path of the storm, which passed west of town, passes through a section of country which has no telephone or telegraph connection with the city. All telephone communications west and northwest of the city is down.

A VILLAGE DEMOLISHED.

JUSTIN, Tex., May 16—At this town, W. J. Evans was killed by the cyclone and seventeen wounded. The most severely injured are: Mr. Wilson, wife and children, Ed R Reynolds. At Gribble Springs, north of here, three persons were killed and several more injured. The dead are: Mrs. Shannon and her small child; Mr. Hill, a young man. A baby, which was thought to have been killed by the storm, was found to have died just before and had been blown away. A Mr. Hurst and family are severely injured. It is expected that at least two of them will die. One child was found with a large wooden splinter stuck through its head, but was, when discovered, still living. Ed True, a farmer, northwest of here, had three ribs broken by being blown from a wagon. Gribble Springs is almost demolished, but few houses remaining standing.

STARTED NEAR DENTON.

DENTON, Texas, May 16—The cyclone which cut out the heart of this county and Grayson county, just to the northeast, started within a mile of Justin, in this county. A terrific wind was experienced here. People were blown down, houses demolished and farm buildings completely removed. Reports from the country districts indicate some five people killed, most of whom were traders in Denton, but whose names cannot be ascertained at this time. The roads are impassable and the small streams of the county swollen beyond their banks. So far no one has been reported killed in this town, but the place is in darkness, half under water and searching parties are slow in reporting Reports from Justin, Sherman and Gribble are to the effect that $500,000 worth of property has been destroyed in the two counties.

AT CARPENTER BLUFF.

DENNISON, Tex., May 16—At Carpenter Bluff, seven miles east of here, the dwelling of John Devant was blown down and four persons, Devant and wife and Devant's hired hand, named Armour, and a little child received injuries from which they will die.

ONLY ONE HOUSE LEFT STANDING.

JUSTIN, Tex., May 16—Keller, a small town to the north of Justin was almost entirely wrecked by the cyclone, and it is reported that only one house in the hamlet is now standing. All that section of the country immediately north was left in ruins by the storm. Further reports from Gribble Springs say that the injured in that place will number thirty.

FLOOD IN MISSOURI.

Willow Branch Becomes a Raging Torrent.

Houses Flooded and the Occupants Driven to the Uplands—Much Damage Done.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 16—This place was visited this morning with an extremely heavy rain, swelling Willow Branch, which crosses Main street, to a width of 200 feet. Many business houses were flooded. Two hundred feet of the Pittsburg and Gulf railroad is washed out south of the depot. Many mines are flooded and will throw hundreds of men out of work for some time A score of families were driven from their homes. The water on Main street arose to a height of six feet and stores were flooded so that the doors were burst open, while the foundations of three were undermined.

BANKER ARNOLD

Must Serve Out His Prison Sentence.

Governor Matthews Concludes That the Convict Is Not Deserving of Clemency.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind, May 16—Governor Matthews decided today not to pardon Thompson Arnold, bookkeeper of the South Whitley bank, convicted of embezzlement. Judge Pennfield, of Auburn, who tried the case, refused to recommend a pardon and the governor became convinced that the depositors of the bank felt that Arnold should be punished. His mother learned of the governor's decision here this morning

DEED OF A FIEND.

Louis Billus, a Forbidden Lover of the Dead Man's Daughter, Commits the Crime.

FREMONT, Ohio, May 16.—A terrible tragedy last night, one mile east of the village of Lindsey, and about eight miles from this city, took place, in which one man was killed outright and two sons are in such a condition that death may result at any moment. The deed was committed about midnight and evidently was well planned. At that hour of the night the family of Jacob Hess were aroused by an explosion, which shattered their home, but no one was injured. Mr. Hess and his two sons immediately prepared to leave the house and ascertain the cause, and they had hardly stepped out when the old gentleman was shot dead. Another shot and one of the sons fell pierced in the breast with a quantity of buckshot; again a shot, and the other son received a shot. The fiend then escaped and thus far has not been captured.

Suspicion points strongly to the deed having been committed by a young farmer named Louis Billus, who has been desperately in love with the daughter of Mr. Hess, but his suit has been strenuously opposed by the father and also the brothers. Lately he has been prohibited from making calls and this so enraged him that he has been nearly wild. People who know the young man think he has brooded over the love affair so much that he has become insane. The sheriff and a posse started at once to capture the man, but so far have not been able to locate him.

ONE BOY DEAD

A report has since been received which says one of the sons has died and that the other will probably recover.

A DEADLOCK.

The Conference Takes Six Ballots to No Avail.

Ex-Governor McKinley Receives an Ovation at the Hands of the Delegates.

CLEVELAND, O., May 16.—When the M. E. general conference was called to order this morning the third ballot for bishop was announced amid intense excitement. Like its predecessors, it was not decisive, 340 were necessary to choice, and McCabe, who lead, got 252 votes. A fourth and fifth ballot then followed, and both failed to elect. While the fifth ballot was being counted, routine work was taken up The proceedings were soon interrupted by great applause near the door and a short man was seen ascending the stage. As he turned to the audience it was seen the man was Major William McKinley and the applause was deafening. Bishop Boice presented him and the air was white with handkerchiefs. Three times the applause died away and three times it was renewed. It was the greatest ovation of the conference.

The regular recess was made fifteen minutes instead of ten, and nearly every delegate in the house took advantage of the opportunity to greet Governor McKinley.

After the recess the chair announced the next ballot. It resulted in no choice, but revealed some remarkable surprises. The vote on the six leading candidates was as follows H. A. Butts, 266, Earl Cranston, 245; C. C. McCabe, 236; J. W. Hamilton, 137, J. E. W. Bowen, 75, T. B Neely, 21.

The conference next decided to take up the memorial service. Bishop Joyce called Bishop Foster to the chair to preside over the memorial services. This act of courtesy was greeted with great applause. The remainder of the session was occupied by the reading of memorials. A memorial on Henry J. Liebhardt was read by A. J. Nash, another on Rev. R. F. Crary, editor of the California Christian Advocate, by John Coyle, and the third on Sanford Hunt by E. S. Eaton. Upon the conclusion of these services the conference adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

LOWERED THE RECORD.

Roma Dow and Bert Parker the Champions.

Pushed a Tandem Two Miles in Four Minutes and Eleven and Three-fifth Seconds.

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 16.—The world's tandem unpaced record for two miles has been broken at the Garden City cycler's track by Roma Dow, of San Jose, and Bert Parker, of Michigan. The time, 4:11 3 5, was remarkable in view of the fact that the first mile was made against a strong head wind in 2.02 2 5, the second mile being made in 2 09 1 5 The world's record was 4.19. The record was made under L. A. W. sanction and will stand as the official record for the distance.

REMOVE THE BAN.

The A. P. A. Not Opposed to McKinley.

The Advisory Board Recommend That He be Put On a Level With Other Candidates.

WASHINGTON, May 16—Today's session of the American Protective association's supreme council was the most interesting of the convention, because the action of the executive committee of the advisory board in blacklisting Mr. McKinley as a presidential candidate was to be reviewed. The report of the advisory board upon the action of its committee was made to the council late in the session. It was technically an endorsement of the executive committee. It asserted, in substance, that the executive committee was warranted, in view of the evidence presented to it, in placing a ban upon Mr. McKinley. But in addition it states that a further examination of the testimony by the full board has convinced the members that the witnesses were unreliable and that their statements were incorrect. Therefore, the board concludes, Mr. McKinley should be placed upon the same footing, so far as members of the A. P. A. are concerned, with the other candidates for presidential nominations and should not be discriminated against. Appended to the report was a statement in writing by Delegate Huddleson, of California, who asserts that a committee, of which he was chairman, interviewed Mr. McKinley at his home in Canton, Ohio, on the 14th instant, and that the interview was satisfactory. The other members of the committee are stated to have been Delegate Van Fossen, of Washington, and C. E Zent, state chairman of Kentucky.

NINETEEN YEARS.

Henry Bolln Receives a Severe Sentence.

Robbed the City of Omaha of $211,000 and Will Go to Penitentiary in Atonement.

OMAHA, Neb., May 16—Henry Bolln, ex city treasurer of Omaha, was today sentenced by Judge Baker, of the criminal court, to a term of nineteen years at hard labor in the state penitentiary and in addition to pay a fine of $211,000. Bolln was for nearly four years city treasurer. His speculation commenced a few months after his election. His shortage was discovered last July. He was convicted on his second trial last week, the jury having disagreed on the first trial. Bolln is fifty five years of age and nineteen years practically amounts to a life sentence in his case.

INDIANA'S NEW COMMANDER.

H. M. Caylor, Who Was Chosen by His Comrades at South Bend.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., May 16.—The veterans of this city are much elated over the success of their candidate for the office of commander of the department of the Indiana Grand Army. H. M. Caylor, who was elected yesterday at South Bend, is a citizen of Noblesvelle, with an excellent record in war and peace.

Mr. Caylor, who is now 54 years old, went into the federal army when a young man as a member of D company, Seventy-fifth Indiana volunteer infantry. He served the remaining three years of the war following his enlistment. After the war closed he began life in a humble way as a cooper.

He afterward came to this city and engaged in mercantile pursuits. All of his ventures have proved successful. He amassed a comfortable competency and is rated at about $60,000. He has erected a number of the best buildings here, some for his own purposes and some as a contractor.

NEGRO FIGHT.

Two Colored Men Have Their Throats Cut.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16—At Arlington, Tenn, last night, during the progress of a festival at a negro Baptist church, a general row broke out. Ferrell Miller and Will Thompson had their throats cut, Sarah Jarrett was severely cut about the neck and arms, and a number of others seriously injured. All the parties are negroes.

The Spanish soldiers in Cuba are badly fed, and they have not been paid for months. They do not like it. The Cuban soldiers, on the contrary, are not fighting for pay. They fight for liberty and live off the country In the districts where Gomez and Maceo are in command the rearing of cattle and live stock is fostered, and these animals are carefully guarded for the food of the patriot army. This, with sugar cane juice, is enough to keep any army in good condition. The Cubans declare they can live for five years in this way. As to clothing, in a climate like that of Cuba it does not count. Arms, ammunition and men constitute the needs of the revolutionists, although they are not badly in want of even these, if their story is to be believed.

Sly old Uncle Paul Kruger knows how to twist the British lion's tail to some purpose.

THE LAY OF THE BELL.

UNDER PROTEST.

The Gas Company Pays the Pipe Line Tax.

A Check for $1,083.13 Was Handed in to the City Comptroller This Morning.

The Fort Wayne Gas company has paid its pipe line tax, according to the provisions of the Fisher ordinance. This morning the company's representative called at the office of city comptroller and handed in a check for $1,083.13, which is one quarter of a cent for each foot of their pipe lines, in this city, amounting to 433,253 feet.

Accompanying the check was a protest from the company, which stated that the company believed the law unconstitutional and that the payment was therefore made under protest. It was signed by Henry C. Paul for the company.

THEY JOLLIFIED.

Frank Purcell Given a Rousing Reception by Winchester Democrats.

Among the towns which are regularly visited by Frank Purcell and in which he is well known, is Winchester. There are not more than a dozen or fifteen democrats in Winchester, the republicans being overwhelmingly in the majority. Some of the democrats down there told Frank that if he should be elected councilman at large by the democrats in this city at the late spring election they would jollify with him the next time he came to town. Last Thursday Frank was in Winchester for the first time since he had been elected. The Winchester democrats had not forgotten their promise, and they at once began preparations for the event. They had a bonfire, speeches were made, and they enjoyed a lot of refreshments, consisting of lemonade, rye bread, bologna and onions. No one was present except the handful of democrats, but they had the best time they ever had in their lives. They said it was the first time a democratic jollification had ever been held in that town.

STATE CONVENTION.

Nearly 500 Doctors Will be Here for Two Days.

The Indiana State Medical Association to Meet in This City During the Latter Part of This Month.

During the last week in May between 400 and 500 physicians from different parts of the state will assemble in this city for the purpose of attending the state convention of the Indiana Medical association which meets here for a two days session The convention will be held at the Plymouth Congregational church. The president of the association is Dr. M. F. Porter. The address of welcome will be delivered by Dr. H. V. Sweringen. The program includes papers from many of the distinguished physicians of the state and will be an interesting and instructive one to the profession. The local committees have not yet completed full arrangements for the meeting, but our doctors will care in a royal manner for their visiting brethren and make their stay in Fort Wayne pleasant and profitable to the many guests who will be here at that time.

NEW HAVEN LINE.

Petition for Entrance Into the City is Presented.

A. B. White Before the Board—West Jefferson Is to be Paved With Asphalt.

A. B. White appeared before the board of public works last night and filed the following petition:

"To the Honorable Board of Public Works of the city of Fort Wayne.

"GENTLEMEN:—Your petitioner, Alexander B. White, would respectfully show that he desires to construct, maintain and operate a line of street railway from the town of New Haven, in the county of Allen, and the state of Indiana, to Calhoun street, in the city of Fort Wayne, in said county, of the guage of four feet, eight and one-half inches, that within the limits of said city of Fort Wayne he desires to locate, construct, maintain and operate said line of street railway over and upon the following streets, namely:

"Beginning at the corner of Glasgow avenue and Maumee road in said city, thence west on Maumee road to Division street; thence south on Division street to Madison street; thence west on Madison street to Barr street; thence north on Barr street to Washington street; thence west on Washington street to Calhoun street

"Wherefore, your petitioner asks that you give and grant to him the right of way in, over, and upon the said designated streets as above described, whereon to construct, maintain and operate said line of street railway.

"ALEXANDER B. WHITE."

The petition was filed for future reference.

The board passed a declaratory resolution for the paving of West Jefferson street with asphalt from Broadway to Garden street.

A petition was presented for a system of sewerage in South Wayne, and the petition was referred to the city engineer.

A petition for an electric light at the corner of Main and Calhoun streets was filed.

A remonstrance was filed against the grading and laying of a sidewalk on the east side of Lillie street, south of Creighton avenue.

A sewer builder's license was granted to Henry Krab.

John Tremmel was appointed city scavenger in addition to his duties as poundmaster.

NOVEL LAW CASE.

John Anderson Sues the Maccabee Order

For $3,000 Because He Was Suspended.

Decision in the Celebrated Boyle Case is Reversed by the Appellate Court.

Quite a novel law case has been brought in the superior court, through his attorneys, Woodward & Keegan, by John W. Anderson against the supreme tent of the Knights of the Maccabees of the World.

The defendant is a fraternal association, with supreme headquarters at Port Huron, Mich, and gives to the heirs of a member, at his death, amounts ranging from $1,000 to $3,000 provided the member had paid his assessments and was in good standing in the order.

The plaintiff alleges in his complaint he became a member of Wayne tent, No 54, in this city, of the Maccabee order on March 7, 1893, and that by virtue of said membership he was given an insurance protection of $3,000. He further says that in February, 1896, the said order suspended him from membership, although at the time he was in good standing and had complied with all the provisions and requirements of the order. He had asked for a reinstatement in the order but was refused.

He says that he was wrongfully dismissed from the said order, and that by reason thereof he has been disgraced and humiliated in the opinion of his neighbors and friends. For this suspension and disgrace and humiliation he claims that his name and his character have been injured to the extent of $3,000, and hence he asks judgment against the supreme tent of the Knights of Maccabees of the world for this amount.

BOYLE CASE REVERSED.

Yesterday at Indianapolis the appellate court of the state reversed the decision in the case of Anna Boyle against the supreme council of the Catholic Benevolent Legion and the case will be sent back to the superior court of this county for rehearing

It will be remembered that Mrs. Boyle recovered a judgment against the council for the death of her husband, William Boyle, who was said to have been drowned in Lake Michigan at Chicago, he being a member of the legion, by virtue of which Mrs. Boyle would be entitled to the amount of the insurance of the policy which he held

His wife immediately made application for the payment of the policy, but the supreme council refused on the ground of insufficient evidence of death, which created a suspicion of the validity of the claim, the body never having been found.

Messrs. Breen & Morris were the attorneys for the defendant, and the reversal of the decision in the case is quite a legal victory.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Annual Meeting to Be Held Next Monday.

The first annual meeting of the Associated Charities of Fort Wayne will convene Monday evening, at 7.45, in the council chamber. The association was formed a little over a year ago and during the past season charity organization methods have been on trial for the first time. Those who wish to know what the results have been and especially those who have helped to support the society in any way should be present to hear the reports at the annual meeting. The exercises will include an address by the president, the annual reports of the general secretary and treasurer and the election of officers for the coming year, followed by impromptu speeches The voting membership includes one delegate member from each religious and benevolent society of the city, and all who subscribe $2.00 or more to the support of the society The public is invited.

IN POLICE COURT.

Several Prisoners Faced the Mayor This Morning.

Among Them Was Jeff Myers, the Old Timer—Ella Armstrong Taken to Richmond.

Mayor Scherer had a good grist of business in police court this morning. Ella Parker, Lizzie Mooney, William Jones and Samuel Smith were two couples who were picked up by officers in Lakeside yesterday evening. They had been having a high old time and the residents of that part of the city made complaint. In police court this morning the girls were fined $14.50 each for prostitution. They went to jail. The boys were also fined $14.50 each, but the mayor suspended sentence upon promise of good behavior.

Three vags, who had been rounded up by the officers, were allowed to go after they had promised to leave the city.

John Hamontre was sent to jail for fifteen days for begging on the streets near the Pittsburg depot.

James Traber and the one and only Jeff Myers were also found guilty of having been drunk and were sent to jail for eleven days.

TAKEN TO RICHMOND.

Yesterday afternoon Detective Page, of Richmond, arrived in the city and called at the police station. He came for the purpose of returning to Richmond with Ella Armstrong, the woman who was captured by Detective Coling a few days ago on a charge of forgery, as detailed in THE SENTINEL yesterday. Detective Page returned to Richmond last night with his prisoner.

THE DAY'S MISHAPS.

Ed. Longfield Has a Leg Broken.

Stepped on a Stone When Alighting From a Car—Andrew Kohler Loses Two Fingers.

Ed Longfield, who lives at No. 67 Charles street, is laid up with a bad injury. This morning he had been down town and started home on a Hanna street car. As he alighted from the car on Wallace street his foot struck a stone and turned, breaking his leg near the ankle. Dr. J. E. Miller reduced the fracture.

LOST TWO FINGERS.

Andrew Kohler, an employe of the Olds Wagon works, had his hand caught in a machine at the factory this morning and suffered serious injuries. The hand was badly torn and lacerated. Dr. J. E. Miller attended him and found it necessary to amputate the first two fingers of the hand. Kohler lives at 25 Force street.

The Evening Sentinel.

BY E. A. K HACKETT.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1896.

McKinley maintains his silence on the silver question and his reply to all interviewers is, "I have nothing to say."

Our soldier organizations are making preparations for the observance of Memorial day, which occurs two weeks from today.

At the St. Louis convention, gold bugs and straddle bugs will for the time make the usual numerous June bugs quite forgotten.

The decision of the board of public works last night to pave West Jefferson street with asphalt will give the west end four asphalt pavements.

Since Illinois has decreed the face may be shaved on the Sabbath, thirsty New York would like a little more privilege with its Sunday mug, too.

The official call for the election of delegates to the democratic state, county, and joint representative conventions appears elsewhere in The Sentinel today.

The promptness with which the jury in the Scott Jackson trial returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree will go far toward restoring confidence in the jury system.

With the close of the present congress the terms of thirteen republican senators will expire and fourteen democratic senators will go out. In addition to these, Peller, of Kansas, and Kyle, of South Dakota, both populists, and Jones, of Nevada, who is a free silver republican, will also retire.

It looks very much as if the New Haven electric line will be built. The city council should do everything it its power to help it along. Every suburban electric railroad built into Fort Wayne will be worth thousands of dollars to our merchants.

The Democrats Won.

The democrats gained a substantial victory in the supreme court of this state by the decision of that body, which was announced in yesterday's Sentinel, declaring that the legislative apportionment act of 1885 cannot be set aside, and that it is the only act under which the senators and representatives can be elected this fall. The effect of the decision is to elect members of the legislature under an act that the democrats passed when they had a majority in the legislature, and which, if there is any advantage in it, is in their favor.

When the court set aside the laws of 1893 and 1895, and thus brought the laws of 1885 into effect, the democrats proposed that no further questions should be raised, and that the two parties should acquiesce in the decision. The republicans, however, attacked the law of 1885 on the ground of unconstitutionality, and this decision sets the matter at rest, although there are suits pending to set aside all apportionment laws under the present constitution, which was adopted in 1851.

The court enters upon the discussion of the points involved by declaring that the law of 1885 is the only act now upon the statute books under which an election of members of the legislature can legally be held. Prior to 1869 the franchise was limited in this state to the white male population above the age of twenty-one years, and all apportionments made before that time excluded the negroes from voting. If a law, argues the court, were revived under which this class of citizens could not vote, it would be in conflict with both the state and federal constitutions, and no election held under it now would be legal. Referring to the proposition presented by the republican appellee, the court intimates that the end sought after is anarchy, and says that the suit is really an attempt to coerce the governor into calling a special session of the legislature by invoking the aid of the court in setting aside all laws.

SLUGGING MATCH.

Fort Wayne and Jackson Had One Yesterday.

The Colts Won an Easy Victory--Wheeling, New Castle and Saginaw Also Win Their Games.

	Played.	Won.	Lost.	Per ct.
Fort Wayne	11	9	2	.818
Wheeling	10	7	3	.700
Newcastle	10	6	4	.600
Toledo	11	6	5	.545
Washington	10	4	6	.400
Jackson	11	4	7	.364
Youngstown	10	3	7	.300
Saginaw	11	3	8	.273

Fort Wayne again defeated Jackson yesterday in a game that looked very much like nine acts of the "Comedy of Errors. The score of 21 to 12 tells the story. Carrick, who pitched for Fort Wayne, and Miller, who did the twirling for Jackson, were both wild, and the slugging was something awful. Tebeau's colts can bat some and it will not do for any pitcher to go up against them unless he can control the ball and shoot the curves over proper. Carrick was also an easy mark for Jackson, but they could not win. The same teams play again at Jackson today, and tomorrow the colts play at Saginaw.

The score of yesterday's game was as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.
Jackson	4	0	0	1	1	0	0	0	6	12	15	4
Fort Wayne	0	0	1	3	2	7	5	3	0	21	24	4

Earned Runs—Jackson, 7; Fort Wayne, 9. Bases on Balls—Jackson, 4; Fort Wayne, 7. Struck Out—Jackson, 6; Fort Wayne, 3. Batteries—Miller and Myers; Carrick and O'Meara. Umpire—Andrews.

OTHER GAMES.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 15.—The Wheeling club took a second game from Washington yesterday. The score:

Wheeling	0	0	4	0	1	3	1	0	1	—10
Washington	0	0	0	0	5	0	0	2	1	— 8

Base hits—Wheeling, 18; Washington, 17. Errors—Wheeling, 8; Washington, 2. Batteries—Johnson and Shaw; Martin and Gregg.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 15.—New Castle defeated Youngstown in a closely contested game up to the sixth inning, when the home team got rattled and the visitors won. Score:

Newcastle	1	2	1	0	0	2	3	0	0	—9

Hits—Youngstown, 10; Newcastle, 10 Errors—Youngstown, 4; Newcastle, 2 Batteries—Stryker, Stevens and Zinram; Brown and Lavelle.

Saginaw, Mich., May 15.—Saginaw defeated Toledo in a close game at Union park yesterday afternoon. The home team did excellent work in the field. The "mud hens" held the "tigers" from the plate until the seventh inning, when they scored two and followed up with two more in the finish. Score:

Toledo	1	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	—	3

Hits—Saginaw, 9; Toledo, 8. Errors—Saginaw, 2; Toledo, 4. Batteries—Rutherford and Thorpe; Kelb and Arthur.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN?

Tomorrow the colts open at Saginaw for three games. The question is what the result will be. The Saginaws have been materially strengthened by the addition of Sumner, who went from the Fort Wayne team, and Smith and Heller, both of this city, and they are playing fast ball at present. They have already taken two games from Toledo and are figuring on the one today. Saginaw promises to send some other club to the bottom of the list in a very few days, and if the colts do not mind their p's and q's they may find themselves assisting in this act.

TOLEDO NEXT WEEK.

Next Thursday Toledo will come to this city and try for three games with the colts. Fort Wayne people are waiting to receive them with open arms and a large amount of rooting for our own team.

AMONG THE UMPIRES.

President Power has given the Inter State league staff of umpires an overhauling. Umpire Stellberger, who was doing work at Toledo, but who mysteriously disappeared and three days later wrote that he was not feeling well and had gone home to take a rest, will be given all summer to recuperate. Wally Andrews, of Indianapolis, at one time a prominent ball player, has taken Stellberger's place and will report in Jackson tomorrow.

Umpire Mitchell has been deposed. One day last week Mitchell stopped a batted ball with one of his legs and concluded that this was sufficient grounds for an extended vacation, but did not deem it necessary to notify the president of the league. Mitchell has not umpired a game for nearly a week, neither has the president received any word from him directly, although informed that he was in Pittsburg Sunday and Monday. U. T. McNeirney, of this city, who made an excellent record in the Iron and Oil league last year, succeeds Mr. Mitchell.

President Power is also negotiating with Umpire Daniels, of West Brookfield, Mass., who is highly recommended by Manager Mack, of the Pittsburg club.

Umpire Frank O'Brien was taken sick at New Castle Tuesday, but has recovered and officiated at Youngstown Thursday.

Substitute Kane, of Youngstown, has had enough of a good thing and wants no more of it. Hereafter Dan Alexander, formerly a well known pitcher, will be the "sub" in Youngstown.—Youngstown Vindicator.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GAMES.

Chicago 8, Baltimore 7; Louisville 9, Philadelphia 3; St. Louis 5, Washington 2, Cleveland 10, New York 4; Boston 8, Pittsburg 6.

SEEMS sometimes as if the world were all wrong. Seems as if all the things we like disagree with us, and all the things we don't like, agree with us. Dyspepsia lurks in most of the good things we eat, and indigestion follows the gratification of appetite. Of course, it isn't Nature's fault. Nature does the best she can, and if a man will only help her a little bit at the right time, may eat what he likes and as much as he likes. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for people who are troubled with indigestion, particularly for those in whom it manifests itself in the form of constipation. The "Pellets" are quick and easy in their action. They are in perfect harmony with Nature. They effect a permanent cure. You need take them regularly only a little while. After that use them occasionally when you need them, when you have eaten something that disagrees with you. They are not cathartic in their effect, do not derange the system at all, and may be taken just as freely as you would take water or any other necessity of life. Once used they are always in favor. You can get the "Pellets" at any drug store. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well.

A GREAT BOOK —ABSOLUTELY— GIVEN AWAY!

Few books printed in the English language have reached so great a sale as Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is a book of 1008 large pages and contains over 300 illustrations—some of them in colors. It is a complete family doctor book. It is written simply and concisely, and is indexed so that reference to it is made easily and quickly. Over 680,000 copies have been sold at the regular price of $1.50. The profits on this enormous sale enable the publishers to distribute 680,000 copies absolutely FREE. A copy bound in strong paper covers, will, therefore be sent FREE to any one who will send 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only.

THE BLUES.

A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THE DREADFUL FEELING.

What Is Meant by This Form of Acute Misery—Where Doctors Make Mistakes.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way:—

She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached, and back also; has slept poorly; been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart has beat very fast; then that bearing-down feeling. Her doctor says, "cheer up, you have dyspepsia; you'll be all right soon."

But she doesn't get "all right." She grows worse day by day, till all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake.

She has lost faith in him; hope vanishes; then comes the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES. Her doctor, if he knew, should have told her and cured her, but he did not, and she was allowed to suffer. By chance she came across one of Mrs. Pinkham's books, and in it she found her very symptoms described and an explanation of what they meant. Then she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, feeling that she was telling her troubles to a woman. Speedy relief followed, and vigorous health returned.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the story recited above is the true experience of hundreds of women, whose letters of gratitude are to be found on file in Mrs. Pinkham's library.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack who ever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

A reliable grocer will never offer a cheap or weak imitation of a genuine original article because he happens to make a little extra profit. But it is well to observe that when genuine Postum Cereal coffee is ordered, that you get Postum and not a spurious imitation offered as "just as good."

Personal Friends of the President Indorse Paine's Celery Compound.

Following the Testimonials of Judge Powers and Congressman Grout Come Hearty Letters From Congressman Meredith, of Va, Asst U. S. Attorney John G. Capers, Maj. Gen. Birney, Congressman Wilber, of N. Y; Congressman Bell, Lieut. McAllister, Congressman Neill and Many More.

The proprietors of Paine's celery compound has never exaggerated either the virtue of this wonderful remedy nor the astonishing character of the endorsements it has received.

This greatest of all blood purifiers and restorers of nervous energy, this remedy which is today in greater demand than all the so-called spring remedies put together—

This Paine's celery compound, which was first discovered and prescribed by America's most eminent physician, that giant among medical scientists of this progressive age, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college—

This remedy, which has been a blessing to thousands upon thousands of homes in every state and city of the country, which has been energetically endorsed by the ablest physicians, which has received thousands of heartfelt testimonials from women and men in every station in life, and has been publicly recommended without solicitation by persons of such high character that they are honored by the whole nation—this remedy that makes people well, has received so many letters in its praise within the last two or three months, coming in every mail from every section of the country—that it would be impossible to print them all in the daily issue of any one paper.

Mr Hearst's great paper the Journal in New York, the Globe and the Journal in Boston, Mr Kohlsaat's powerful Times-Herald in Chicago, have each of them, within a month, devoted from one to three pages at a time to the most remarkable canvass ever made of the druggists in the great cities And their best reporters, unprejudiced one way or another, have found that the druggists are meeting not only a larger demand than ever before for this one remedy, but that this demand—because Paine's celery compound cures where everything else fails—is so far greater today than that of any other remedy that it has no competitor.

Among the thousands of testimonials that have been received by the proprietors of Paine's celery compound this spring, none has been more noteworthy than those that come from the national capital. The enthusiastic letters of Judge Powers and of Congressman Grout were recently published in this paper. Above is a good likeness of one of the ablest members on the democratic side of the house, a leader of acknowledged ability, a personal friend of the president, a man of great weight,—Congressman Elisha E. Meredith, of Virginia. A letter from him, dated Feb. 4, from the house of representatives, says:

"After a fair trial I have no hesitation in saying that I believe Paine's celery compound all that is claimed for it, and it gives me pleasure to commend it."

A letter from Congressman Robert Neill, of Arkansas, contains the following:

"My home is at Batesville, Ark. During the last spring and summer my eldest daughter, then 17 years of age, was in very poor health, suffering from general debility, nervous prostration and frequent slight fevers She had the best medical attention, but apparently with little benefit. In the latter part of September last, while still feeble, she began the use of Paine's celery compound, and improved in health continuously. In three months she had fully recovered, and is still in perfect health. I am bound to think the remedy is an excellent one, and do not hesitate to recommend it to the suffering."

Lieut. C. A. McAllister, writing from hotel Oxford, March 28, said:

"For several years past I have been a sufferer from severe attacks of dyspepsia, caused by too close attention to business; on the advice of a physician I took several bottles of Paine's celery compound, and have been greatly benefited thereby. Since the first of last September I have gained twenty-five pounds, and am now feeling in first-rate health.

"C. A McALLISTER.

"1st Assistant Engineer, U. S. R. C. S."

Hon. John C. Bell, member of congress from Colorado, in a letter to Wells & Richardson Co., about the same time, told how he had used three bottles of Paine's celery compound for dyspepsia and rheumatism, with satisfactory results.

Major Gen. Birney, who is now, at the age of 75, practicing law and doing departmental work in Washington, the unflinching commander at the battle of Fredericksburg, of the famous 38th New York regiment, in a letter to Wells & Richardson Co., says:

"My wife has been taking the Paine's celery compound for some time past, and is so much pleased with it that she wishes me to express to you her high opinion of its merits. She thinks it the best she has ever tried."

Congressman Wilbur, of New York, writing in March, used these significant words:

"I was persuaded by a friend to try your Paine's celery compound some time ago, and after its use, am pleased to recommend it to any one who is in an overworked or run-down condition, as doing what is claimed for it."

Many other letters from prominent people who are not so well known are included in this year's files of testimonials from Washington.

Every city and every town in the country is equally well represented in this wonderful popular indorsement of the remedy that purifies the blood, rebuilds the shattered nervous system, restores strength, regulates the kidneys, liver and bowels, cures disease, makes people well.

In these latter days of spring, in the last of the three great months, the close of nature's yearly revival season, when the rec very from sickness is the most rapid and lasting Paine's celery compound will make vigorous nerves and good blood.

During these latter spring days there is a clearing of the air; it is the most favorable time of the year to cure nervousness, neuralgia, sleeplessness, headaches and low spirits by the use of Paine's celery compound.

Paine's celery compound points to a wonderful record already achieved. The most wide-awake, intelligent part of every community in this country are among its most enthusiastic vouchers and indorsers.

The Cost of Gorham Silver

The great reputation of GORHAM SILVER does not increase its cost. To the value of Sterling Silver, 925-1000 fine, is added the expense of workmanship, little or much, according to the design, and to that a moderate profit—but the aggregate is no more than is asked for wares less beautiful, and less renowned.

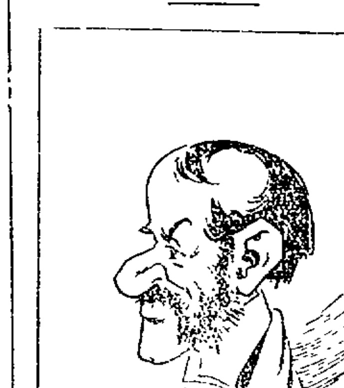

Too good for Dry Goods Stores—jewelers only.

THE HAT THAT MAKES THE MAN.

1—Bjones he had the homeliest face,
His smile would wrap a packing case,
And teething babies choked and cried
Whene'er Bjones looked sad or sighed.

2—He couldn't wear a hat at all,
A derby made his face too small,
A plug or Kossuth wide-awake
Would make the very landscape ache.

3—But when the golf cap came in style,
Bjones was out of sight a mile.
He's in it and is just the thing
With three rich widows on a string.

RAILWAY RUMBLINGS.

New Time Cards Go Into Effect Tomorrow.

H. C. Parker's Railway Record—Shipment of Electrical Machinery—Local and Personal.

The time card which goes into effect on the Pittsburg road tomorrow changes the running time of only one passenger train, No. 15, which will leave this city at 3:45 instead of 3:35 each morning as heretofore. There is a radical change in freight trains, however. All are renumbered and the running time of many of them has been changed and shortened. The speed of freight trains is much greater now than it was a few years ago.

The Wabash also changes time tomorrow and the new time cards were received by Col. Thompson this morning. On this line the passenger trains make a radical change, as detailed in these columns a few days ago.

AGAINST THE FUNDING BILL.

The San Francisco Trades and Labor council last night adopted a resolution protesting against the passage of the Pacific railroad funding bill and urging California's representatives to do all in their power to defeat the measure. The council denounced the funding bill as a measure "detrimental to the progress of California and opposed to the interests of the entire country."

SHIPMENT OF DYNAMOS.

Yesterday the electric works sent two more large 115 light dynamos to the Toledo Traction company, making four shipped to those parties in the past week. Two more machines of the same capacity will follow in a few days. Today's shipment included two 400-light incandescent dynamos to Coney Island and one machine of the same capacity to Meridan, Miss.

A PULLMAN CONDUCTOR'S HORRIBLE DEED.

The following Associated Press dispatch from Chicago, received this morning, gives the particulars of a shooting affair in which a man well known to the Pennsylvania railway men, the traveling men and the frequenters at the Pittsburg depot, is one of the chief actors: "Edward E. Edwards, a paper hanger, formerly a palace car conductor, between Pittsburg and Chicago, shot his wife in the face last night, while she was asleep. The woman was not fatally injured. She jumped through a window and escaped from her husband, who turned the pistol on himself and died instantly. A letter to the wife, said to have been written by a Pittsburg saloonkeeper and signed 'Butch' is reported to have been the cause of the shooting."

HOSTLERS' UNION.

Journeyman Hostlers' union, No. 6 689, was organized last evening, the work being performed by a committee from the Trades and Labor council. The officers elected were: President, J. S. Robinson; vice president, Ira D. Hoffman; secretary, W. Motherwell; treasurer, F. Brandenburger; guide, B. F. Faust; guardian, John Young; trustees, John Young, Phillip Fuchshober, Harry Bente. The union will hold its next meeting Tuesday evening, May 26, at Sons of Freedom hall. The union starts out with thirteen members.

THE BICYCLE QUESTION.

It is probable that all the roads in the Central Passenger committee will follow the lead of the Pennsylvania road in carrying bicycles free of charge. The Lake Shore is preparing to follow suit and it is expected that all the competitors of the Pennsylvania and Lake Shore will soon join the procession. The western roads will not at the present time take any action in the matter. They have had for a long time a provision in their agreement that a charge should be made for carrying the wheels and some of the roads declare that they will continue to make a charge no matter what the other roads do. The general objection seems to be that the bike is too unwieldy an article to carry in the baggage cars. Some road officials say that if they are to carry all the wheels that will be thrust upon them, once they begin to carry them for nothing, they will have to run more baggage cars than passenger cars on their trains.

H. C. PARKER'S RAILWAY RECORD.

The remains of the late H. C. Parker, traffic manager of the Lake Erie and Western, who died in Indianapolis Thursday night, have been taken to Norwalk, Ohio, where his parents reside, for interment. Mr. Parker was born July 4, 1849, in New York city. At the age of twenty he entered the service of the Empire fast freight lines. He rapidly advanced from a clerk in a local office to cashier in the Detroit office, then was again promoted and became superintendent's clerk and was assigned to establish agencies of the Empire line. He served in this capacity less than a year and was then made agent of the line at Fort Wayne, where he remained seven years. He was again promoted and became western agent of the Empire line, with headquarters at Peoria, Ill. In 1880 George L. Bradbury, who was then general manager of the Peoria, Decatur and Evansville railroad, placed Mr. Parker in charge of the freight department of that road. In April 1887, when Mr. Bradbury became general manager of the Lake Erie and Western, he called Mr. Parker to Indianapolis and made him traffic manager of that road, which position he has held ever since.

MINOR NOTES.

The Grand Rapids pay car was in the city today.

The Pittsburg locomotive works are closed today.

C. Marshall, Nickel Plate brakeman, has gone to Logansport to visit his parents.

Charles Tilbury has taken a position as fireman at the factory of Rhinesmith & Simonson.

Roy Jackson, of the electric works, has resumed work after an absence of three weeks.

Pharis M. Keller, a brakeman on the west end of the Pittsburg road, is rejoicing over the arrival of a ten pound girl baby.

After a week's illness, Ollie Alringer has returned to his duties in the electric works.

C. Tindell, of the Nickel Plate, has gone to Logansport to look after some private business.

Williard Smith, a Wabash machinist, went to Logansport this morning to spend Sunday with friends.

Brakeman C. A. Parker, of the Nickel Plate, has been promoted from the freight to the passenger service.

Ticket Agent and Mrs. J. E. Ross left this morning for Lebanon, Ohio, to visit Mrs. R.'s parents a few days.

G. Robinson, a Nickel Plate brakeman, has gone to Elkhart, Ind., to pack up his household goods preparatory to moving them and his family to this city.

The Rock Island road has given notice that it will meet the action of the Great Western in making second class tickets good in first class sleeping cars.

Hal Bitzberger, the Grand Rapids and Indiana fireman who has been so dangerously ill at St. Joseph hospital for two or three weeks, is slowly recovering.

Engineer Joseph Bracht, of the Nickel Plate, will resume his former position at the throttle of engine 124 next week after several months' absence.

Engineer James Quinn, of the Nickel Plate, is preparing for a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in western Pennsylvania. He will leave for that state Monday.

The Peoria and Eastern has decided to rebuild the shops at Urbana, Ill. The plans have been prepared, and yesterday were sent to President Ingalls by General Manager Barnard for his approval.

Clarence E. Misner, traveling fireman of the Pittsburg, has been engaged upon a new book of rules for several days. Some changes have recently been made and the rules affected by them have been reprinted and are being pasted into the old book.

General Superintendent McGuian, of the Grand Trunk, is introducing in many departments the rules under which he operated the Wabash. Passenger conductors have been notified that they must enter accurately on train journals the number of through and local passengers handled on the trains and on the parlor and sleeping cars, as important statistics are based on these reports.

On Wednesday, in carrying out the retrenchment policy, twenty one men in the yards of the Vandalia main line were dismissed from the service. This is the second reduction in yard forces along the line. The principal yard office at Terre Haute will be at the fair grounds.

M. Goldburger and others will soon incorporate the Fort Wayne Smelting and Refining works, which is now conducting business on Dock street. The company already has a furnace in operation and will enlarge it and build others as soon as the incorporation has been effected.

Mr. Russell, road foreman of engines on the Pittsburg division of the Fort Wayne road, was the guest of the local Pennsylvania railway officials yesterday. Mr. Russell is the oldest road foreman, in term of service, on any of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, having filled the office continually since 1873.

The Lima Northern was completed on Wednesday night to a point within four miles of the Michigan state line and the track layers are now five miles north of Napoleon. As now proposed, the terminal of the road will be Detroit Junction, four miles west of Detroit, and from that point the Lake Shore will be used to get into Detroit.

Patrick Nolan, the oldest baggagemaster in time of service on the New York Central, died on Tuesday at Syracuse. He had run on the Central road nearly fifty years and during that time never was in but one serious accident. He was opposed to running on Sunday, and the officers of the road have kept him on one train for the last thirty years, but he was never requested to work on Sunday. Had he lived till March next he would have been pensioned and retired.

Blood Poison.

Contagious Blood Poison has been appropriately called the curse of mankind. It is the one disease that physicians cannot cure; their mercurial and potash remedies only bottle up the poison in the system, to surely break forth in a more virulent form, resulting in a total wreck of the system.

Mr. Frank B. Martin, a prominent jeweler at 926 Pensylvania Ave., Washington, D.C., says: I was for a long time under treatment of two of the best physicians of this city, for a severe case of blood poison, but my condition grew worse all the while, notwithstanding the fact that they charged me three hundred dollars. My mouth was filled with eating sores; my tongue was almost eaten away, so that for three months I was unable to taste any solid food. My hair was coming out rapidly, and I was in a horrible fix. I had tried various treatments, and was nearly discouraged, when a friend recommended S.S.S. After I had taken four bottles, I began to get better, and when I had finished eighteen bottles, I was cured sound and well, my skin was without a blemish, and I have had no return of the disease. S.S.S. saved me from a life of misery." S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) will cure any case of blood poison. BEDRIDDEN.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

The Doctors Wanted Seven Hundred Dollars to Attempt the Case.

The following is a letter we received a short time ago from Mrs. M. C. Hinkley, 601 North Mississippi St., Indianapolis, Ind.:

Gentlemen: While suffering intensely from piles, I became interested in your advertisement in one of our daily papers and procured a package of your Pyramid Pile Cure from our druggist. Contrary to my expectations, the relief was instantaneous. I used two boxes of the Pile Cure and one of the Pills and am convinced that they are the only sure cure for piles on the market. I have been a sufferer from piles for fifteen years and have been confined to my bed about one half of the time, expecting and wishing for death for the pain was so great. I went to the college here and the doctors said my case was a new one to them, the great pain having brought on a large rupture, which they wanted seven hundred dollars to cut out. I was very much afraid that death would result from the blood poisoning which they said would result from the operation. I feel as though I can't praise the Pyramid Pile Cure and the Pyramid Pills too highly, as I am convinced that they saved my life. Before using your cure I weighed only ninety pounds and now I weigh one hundred and fifty and feel as well as I ever did in my life. You are at liberty to use this testimonial in any manner you may see fit, as I want all sufferers from this terrible disease to know that there has at last been compounded a remedy that will cure piles. MRS. M. C. HINKLEY.

There is no need of the danger, pain and expense of a surgical operation for any form of piles. The Pyramid Pile Cure does the work without pain and is the safest and best. Remember also that the Pyramid Pills are a certain cure for constipation, acting without griping and restoring natural action of the bowels.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists at 50 cents and $1.00, and the Pyramid Pills at 25 cents, or by mail from Pyramid Co., Albion, Mich.

A. R Hirons has given THE SENTINEL a bit of information which will be of interest and perhaps of great value to our readers. He says that inasmuch as frost has been predicted for this month it would be well for the people to know just how to save their grape vines. Mr. Hirons says that if people will spray their grape vines with cold water before the sun comes up in the morning the frost will have no effect upon them. This is a very simple remedy and will be well worth trying.

LaPearl Show Coming.

LaPearl's Big 10 and 20 cent Railroad Show will exhibit at Fort Wayne Thursday and Friday, May 21-22, afternoons and evenings, on Calhoun street jail flats. You will see more and better male and female bareback riders, gymnasts, acrobats, trapeze performers, contortionists, jugglers, funny clowns, leapers and tumblers, music, performing ponies dogs and goats, than with any other 10 and 20 cent show on earth.

Also the world's greatest aerialists, the great LaPeal children, four in number. LaPearl's Superb Marine Band, unrivaled for its artistic excellence, the finest musical organization traveling.

Be on the streets at noon and witness the Grand Free Street Parade, then go and see the greatest free exhibition ever witnessed at 1 and 7 o'clock p. m., the perilous dive of 60 feet into a net, at the show ground. Children under 9 years of age in the afternoon half price 16 18 19 20

LOOK AT THIS!

This Oak Finished Bedstead is worth $6, the French Dresser with Bevel Mirror, 24x20, would be cheap at $10, for you pay that for a common bureau; the Washstand usually brings $4. Now add them together, $6 and $10 and $4 makes $20.

We will sell you the above elegant cheap Chamber Suit, worth $20, for a few days only at $13 90.

That is the next thing to giving them away.

THIS REAL SUMMER WEATHER

Is bringing new faces every day to the NEW STORE—Glad of it. We want a thorough and critical examination of the new things we have taken so much care in selecting for you

To add to our already great business, we will on Monday, May 18th

Place on sale ONE CASE of about 2000 Yards of

JACONAT DUCHESSE

In a large variety of styles, at 8 1-3 Cents Per Yard.

These Organdies are retailed everywhere at 15 cents.

Another item that will interest wise buyers is our

Lace Curtain and Drapery Stocks

on the second floor.

Competition is possible on any two or three items that other storekeepers are willing to lose money on; but fair and general competition is out of the question. This is proven by our daily sales. There is not a CURTAIN and DRAPERY stock the equal of ours.

Cash Makes Right the Prices.
